Commencement Held At Charleston High

CHARLESTON -- Dr. James E. Hart, professor of education, University of Missouri, was the main speaker at commencement exercises for 144 graduating Charleston High School seniors last night.

Dr. Hart told the seniors that they must be selfish in their aims and desires in order to get what they want out of life and keep it. He said America is the richest country in the world but in order for us to keep it we must see that other countries share in our riches and prosperity for they see what we have and want to know why they can't have it too.

The students must be selfish and get all of the knowledge they can so that they can help other people. Dr. Hart said that the University of Missouri had one of the finest libraries yet so many students go in there and never take advantage of all the wisdom and knowledge of men before them. "How many would go into a jewelry store and pick up a 10¢ ring if they had their choice of anything in the store" asked Dr. Hart.

Mr. Wayne Goddard, principal, gave out the following awards: Salutatorian was Alton Dodson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burke Dodson, and valedictorian was Robert Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Harper.

Other awards given were:

Student Council Bookkeeping Award -- Sue Peyton.

Woman's Study Club Outstanding Sophomore Award -- Melissa DeLine.

Athena Club Chemistry Award -- Mike Dugan.

Athena Club Physics Award -- Robert Harper.

Eliza Reid Home Economics Award -- Brenda McDaniels.

Student Council Best Citizen Award -- Joyce Ferrell.

Business and Professional Women's Mathematics Award-- Janis Hequembourg.

Car-Train Crash Kills Two Babies

MALDEN -- Two small children, Paula, age three and Carl, three months, children of Mrs. Patsy Marcell Johnson, were killed instantly, and their mother is still in serious condition in the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital, Kennett, following a train - car collision Thursday.

The accident happened three and one-half miles west of Malden, with the train said to have been traveling at a speed of about 60 miles per hour. State trooper Joe Matthews, who investigated the accident, stated the accident happened on a gravel road, when Mrs. Johnson, 23, wife of Robert Lee Johnson, failed to see the train and her 1959 Plymouth station wagon was struck broadside.

The impact carried the car 80 feet, and was completely demolished. The engineer of the train was Bernard Meyers, 57, Cape Girardeau, who claimed the vision was clear and the approaching car had plenty of time to stop.

The bodies of the two children were taken to the Landess Funeral Home, and the Boyd Funeral Home, both in Malden.

Completion of Montgomery Manslaughter Trial In Sight

Montgomery Remains Cool In Testimony

Q. -- Mr. (Don) Owens (Mr. Montgomery's attorney) did not ask you, but I will. Are you or are you not a deacon in your church?

A. -- In my church when you become a deacon you remain a deacon . . . I served for three years . . . I would be listed as an inactive deacon . . .

Q. -- Is your minister here with you, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- We do not have a minister at this time . . .

Q. -- Is your prior minister not over here with you?

A. -- Yes, he is.

Q. -- What's his name?

A. -- The Rev. Ed Watson.

Q. -- Did he come with you, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, he lives in Marshall, Texas.

Q. -- Did he come with you, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, I believe he came the second day.

Q. -- You were at one time a deacon in church?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Would you tell a lie under oath, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, sir, not under oath and under no circumstances.

Q. -- What is your occupation, Mr. Montgomery.

A. -- I'm self employed really. . . I don't have a particular occupation . . It's sort of diversified investments. . .

Q. -- Just what is your occupation?

A. -- Work.

Q. -- When you made out your voter's registration (in Sikeston, Mo.) what occupation did you give?

A. -- I don't remember. . . It probably was put down for me.

Q. -- I believe it says "banker." Would that be an inaccuracy?

A. -- I would say it very well could be banker.

Q. -- You testified about a document (bill for legal fees) in regard to a Mr. (Charles) Black (an attorney)?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Was there a check for services rendered?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- What was the amount of that check?

A. -- $500. . .

Q. -- I believe you testified you were chained to the bed at John Gaston Hospital (after the wreck)?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- With the rest of the statements is that just as true? as everything else you are saying?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- What attorneys were representing you on that day (the morning after the wreck)?

A. -- At that particular time, I had not hired an attorney.

Q. -- Isn't it a fact that shortly after you were transferred to Baptist Hospital that Mr. Black was called and started representing you?

A. -- . . . I believe Mr. Black, a friend of mine, took it upon himself to find out the facts of what happened. Who the driver of the car was. . . I believe he was interested in that . . . .

A. -- Is it a fact (that you are saying) Mr. Black, on his own started out that day and did take statements from witnesses?

A. -- I guess he did. . . .

Q. -- Was Mr. Black working with John M. Heiskell, our former Shelby County attorney general, in representing you?

A. -- Yes, I believe he was. Yes, sir. . . .

Q. -- Do you know Mr. Tom Mitchell?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Did he ever represent you?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Do you know John Hooker (Nashville attorney who is the father of John Jay Hooker Jr., candidate)?

A. I don't know him. . Yes, I believe he did (represent me)?

Under Mr. Dwyer's questioning, Mr. Montgomery said he had had eight drinks between noon on Oct. 13, 1959, and 1:45 a.m. Oct. 14, 1959, but was not intoxicated when he, Mrs. Sells and Miss Bobbie L. Vance got into his car.

Q. You heard Miss Vance testify that you told Mrs. Sells to run the traffic lights:

A. Yes, I heard her.

Q. Do you deny that statement?

A. Absolutely!

Q. Do you know the sheriff of Sikeston, Mo., (Scott County)?

A. John Dennis. Yes, sir.

Q. He's that likeable fellow in the back of the courtroom?

A. He's in the back of the room.

Q. I think you are in business with him?

A. We have some land together. . . .

Q. You say Mrs. Sells was driving and she did nothing to cause you in any way to become excited?

A. She was driving in an orderly manner.

Q. You were drowsy at this time?

A. Yes. . . .

Q. If she were speeding you would have stopped the car?

A. Yes, if there had been anything wrong I would have. .

Q. I'll ask you if you recall telling her to go through the light at Fourth (and Monroe)?

A. Absolutely not!

Q. Do you deny that?

A. Yes. . . .

Q. Are you saying there is a possibility you told her to go through the light (at Monroe and Fourth)?

A. She may have asked. . .

Q. I'm asking you the questions, Mr. Montgomery! You give me an answer, then you can explain. Do you or don't you deny telling her to go through the light?

A. I believe she testified she started to brake the car. . . I do not ever remember this. That lady did not operate that car in any way in violation of the law. . .

Mr. Montgomery said he "very well could have been" dozing in the block before reaching the fatal intersection at Monroe and Wellington because he did not remember anything immediately before the crash. He earlier testified that Mrs. Sells was driving because she was going to Miss Vance's apartment to spend the night and he did not know the way to the apartment.

Joel Montgomery on Witness Stand

Surprise Witness Says Other Car Struck Montgomerys

MEMPHIS, Tenn. -- With only a few witnesses remaining, conclusion was expected soon in the involuntary manslaughter trial of a Missouri banker and a pretty Memphis divorcee, Joel Montgomery of Sikeston, Mo., and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells.

Attorneys were to begin their final arguments after the last few defense witnesses appeared this morning and the jury was expected to get the case by evening.

A surprise defense witness for Joel A. Montgomery testified yesterday that Miss Alice K. Gassaway had been drinking and ran a red light when her car struck Mr. Montgomery's.

Roy Turner, 29, of 1521 Russwood Road, a steamfitter, said he was following Miss Gassaway's car and saw the crash that killed Miss Gassaway's passenger, Miss Glenda Wiles, on Oct. 14, 1959.

During cross - examination, Exec. Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer fired question after question at Mr. Turner as to his motives for testifying.

Earlier, Mr. Montgomery had testified that his co-defendant, Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, was not operating his car in any way which would excite me or be dangerous."

Mr. Dwyer hammered at the testimony on cross-examination.

Mr. Turner said he had been with Miss Gassaway and Miss Wiles at the VFW Club at 616 Washington, that Miss Gassaway had several drinks from a bottle of vodka and that she was speeding and ran two red lights before running the red light at Wellington and Monroe, where the accident happened.

"Since I had been drinking that night, I wanted to stop (at the accident) and I didn't want to stop, so I turned right (on Monroe and kept going," Mr. Turner said when questioned defense attorney Don G. Owens.

Questioned by Mr. Dwyer, Mr. Turner said he did not contact anyone about what he saw until he got in touch with Mr. Owens in late February of this year.

"What caused you to call Mr. Owens in late February?" Mr. Dwyer asked heatedly.

"Maybe my conscience got a little better," Mr. Turner said.

Mr. Turner said he had never contacted police, the attorney general's office or Mrs. Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, either before Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960 or this trial.

"Are you being paid anything for coming up here?" Mr. Dwyer asked.

"No, sir!"

Mr. Dwyer asked, "After you saw Mr. Montgomery coming back here (from Sikeston, Mo., after a long extradition fight), you decided to call Mr. Don Owens and say you wanted to testify?"

"I'm just trying to tell what Mr. Turner said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Friday, May 27, 1789, Jicht, Bavaria: Dr. Doethe grows hair on a cuckoo clock.

* * *

At each of the 130,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery, a tiny specially placed American flag flutters for Memorial Day.

People come by the hundreds to lay wreaths--at the grave of a relative, a friend or an admired hero -- most among groups taking turns conducting brief ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

So it has been on Memorial Day year after year, in somewhat similar fashion since 1868. Observances are held at the nation's other 84 national cemeteries, but the Memorial Day focus is on Arlington.

That's because its rolling hills contain the bodies of more noted Americans than any other. They lie among the thousands who won no acclaim nor medals.

A book published on this Memorial Day, "Arlington, Monument to Heroes," recites the names and deeds of many of the most illustrious dead. And it gives in up-to-date detail the history of the hallowed cemetery, taking the reader on a kind of walking tour.

The book is by John V. Hinkel, a native of Washington and retired Army Reserve colonel who has long been a student of the lore of the city.

This Memorial Day will attract visitors to the grave of President John F. Kennedy. And Hinkel has a special chapter on this most recent major addition to the cemetery. He describes the daily line of "reverent pilgrims" which flow past "like a river."

Not far away is the grave of Pvt. J. F. Kennedy, who died May 16, 1864 and one of the first buried in Arlington.

Hinkel writes it is ironic that this most revered of cemeteries for American fighting men became a burial place because of an act of spite.

It involved the Custis-Lee mansion which overlooks President Kennedy's grave. That imposing home and land George Washington once owned was built in 1802 by his adopted son, George Washington Parke Custis, to house the first president's relics.

Mary Anne Custis, his daughter, married Robert E. Lee and lived with him there until Lee went off to command the Confederate forces in the Civil War.

Meigs arranged for the Army to take over the mansion and its sprawling acres and he set out to make uninhabitable the house where Lee had lived. Meigs ordered its rose garden turned into a burial ground for soldiers.

The L-shaped row of graves Meigs ordered still remains. So do two other Meigs creations--the tomb of the unknown dead of the War Between the States with the remains of 2,111 unidentified Union soldiers and the Temple of Fame, a memorial to George Washington and to 11 Union leaders.

Meigs himself is buried at Arlington.

The government had seized the mansion and its grounds for $26,800 because neither Lee nor his wife could come forth to pay the taxes on it personally as required by the law. The Supreme Court 20 years later voided this and Custis Lee gave title to the government for $150,000.

Hinkel notes another irony of Arlington history: On the first Memorial Day in 1868 -- it was called Decoration Day -- Southern women were curtly refused permission to place flowers on Confederate graves. Union graves were covered with flowers.

"That night there was a blustery wind --and in the report, as report has it," Hinkel wrote, "the sentries found the Confederate graves buried under flowers blown from the Union graves."

Hinkel recounts in capsule the deeds of many of the noted men and women who lie among the "Serried ranks on the quiet green slopes of Arlington."

He said in addition to the unknowns at the tomb, there are nearly 5,000 other unknowns buried in Arlington.

The roll call of famous generals and admirals who lie in Arlington stretches back through all of America's wars to revolutionary days.

NEEDED: REAPPRAISAL OF I-55 CONSTRUCTION

It is disappointing to learn that completion of Missouri's interstate highway construction will likely be delayed beyond the 1972 target date.

We hope that the Congress will find the money necessary to bring about the end to construction by the deadline. It certainly can find funds for a myriad of other prospects of considerably less merit.

Our concern lies with the entire network of interstate highways over the state, because they all are important, but necessarily it is more direct with regard to Interstate 55 passing along our outskirts.

The last section of this highway is not scheduled for completion until the last year of the program -- 1972 -- and that section as we understand it is in Cape and Perry counties.

It now appears that this link with those Interstate 55 sections that will creep southward in the next few years, and the completed section ending now at Fruitland, will be some months or years beyond 1972.

It is our feeling that the State Highway Commission should re-evaluate the schedule of construction and see if completion between Fruitland and St. Louis County cannot be advanced.

We call to the commission's attention the fact that millions of dollars in revenue is being lost to Missouri -- and highway dollars are included in that revenue -- by purchasing power that now travels to Memphis, Tenn., instead of St. Louis.

The building of the interstate to the south -- only 40 miles remains uncompleted between Fruitland and Memphis -- has made the Tennessee city as close or closer to Missourians than is St. Louis.

Thousands of people who once were business oriented to St. Louis are now going to Memphis because it is easier and quicker to reach than Missouri's major city. St. Louis today is only a few minutes closer to Cape Girardeau than is Memphis, and many from here are turning to the Tennessee city.

Who wants to fight the traffic to St. Louis when it is so much easier to go elsewhere?

The condition of Missouri's roads -- the curves and hills and the backed up traffic behind trucks and the terrible four lanes from Festus into St. Louis -- long ago turned traffic from the southeast part of the state over into Illinois.

Few want to face the danger inherent in Highway 61, and the horrible road they must travel. They either cross the bridge in Cape Girardeau or go to Perryville and then cross at the Chester, Ill., bridge

Those going to Columbia or Kansas City now go by way of Illinois, ridiculous as it seems, because the State Highway Commission gave priority to the southward advance of I-55 instead of the north. Its a longer way around, but a shorter trip because of the appalling Missouri roads.

No other part of the state is so handicapped in its roads to St. Louis and into the central part of Missouri as is the southeastern section.

It is our feeling that the State Highway Commission would be well disposed to take a new look at this regrettable situation and reappraise its interstate construction schedule on a more equitable priority basis.

If it doesn't, the orientation of business to Tennessee will become fixed to the tune of millions of dollars in lost revenue not only for commercial interests, but for the state and highway system as well.

In small jars, gleaming with gold ornamentation for status impact, are foumulas which will at least tone down tell-tale age lines in time for a man of importance to make his speech, a television appearance, or an appointment with a youth-conscious client.

Eye pads, another innovation for men, are said to be helpful in draining away the strain of wee hours in time for an alert and saintly appearance at the board meeting the morning after. The maker suggests their use after exposure to smoke-filled rooms and reading too much legal fine print.

Those fashion iconoclasts, today's young males who have refused to equate high style and scents with effeminacy, have paved the way for this boon is the pretty-up business during the past three years.

Once largely limited to producing shaving soaps and astringents, 156 firms, or 30 per cent more than last year-now turn out hundreds of virile-looking red, brown, black with gold packages containing jars, bottles, atomizers, and tubes that moisturize, lubricate, mentholate and emulsify with such ingredients as lanolin, silicone, vitamins, estrogen, albumen, gelatin, seseme, and sharks' oil.

Altogether there now are more than 303 different fragrance sold either as colognes or after-shave lotions usually with lusty names inspired by the rugged outdoors or the sea.

Today the super-immaculate man can begin his morning ablutions with a bath friction that has the tingling effect of a sauna; shampoo his locks with a soap on a rope; apply bathpowder with his brass knuckles puff; shave over a translucent foam that lets him see where the most bristles are; then proceed to astringents, protective creams, deodorants; nongreasy hair oils, hand cream, and colognes. He can hold up the bathroom even longer than a woman.

Though youth pioneered as toiletries customers, the older man in ever-growing competition with youth in business and romance is unabashedly shoving his way to the front of cosmetics counter.

Special lures for him are blemish mark-outs which, when applied subtly, lighten dark circles; as well as those soothing eyepads; and five to 10-minute face masks which, like a transparent coating of egg whites lifts sagging face muscles and sagging morale.

"My customers are smart men. They hold top jobs and plan to hang onto them." a merchandise manager said of his facial mask customers. "He knows he can replace his Brooks Brothers suit any day but not his face."

LIVING PROOF

Long recognized as some of the finest farming lands in the nation, it's no accident that the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta is also the most heavily protected cropland in the world. The crop protection of the modern farmer -- pesticides -- has been beneficially used there since 1924. Contrary to dire predictions of doomsaying conservationists, crop-spraying actually has increased wildlife in the Delta.

Today counties with open turkey seasons have almost doubled. In 1946, deer were legal in only a few counties. As late as '53 the legal kill of bucks was only 2,300. Population increases began about '46, skyrocketed more than 20 per cent yearly; the '63 kill is estimated at more than 18,000. Doves, rabbits and squirrels were never more abundant and fishing is unsurpassed.

This living evidence of increases in both crop production and game has understandably made farmers resentful of pesticide scare-talk. Facts of the Mississippi rebirth and abundance deny that wildlife populations are destroyed by pesticide programs.

Insect-control programs help produce higher cotton yields per acre, thereby allowing more land to be planted in soybeans, oats, wheat and soil-conservation programs that produce food and cover for game.

Modern farming practices are responsible for an increase in wildlife, longer open seasons and generously increased bag limits. Hunters and farmers would do well to understand and use these facts when the next pesticide with-hunt comes along.

BRASS BEHEMOTH

Among brass musical instruments, the colossal immensaphone, constructed by the Conn Company around the turn of the century, takes top honors for size. According to the Catholic Digest, it resembled a mammoth magaphone; it measured 12 feet across the bell and weighed 35 tons. The mighty windjammer could be heard 30 miles away.

GUILTY AS CHARGED?

Juvenile officers in Hawthorne, California have an anonymous letter that has some sound advice for all teenagers. The letter speaks for itself:

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment.

"The world does not owe you a living.

"Your city does not owe you amusements.

"You owe the world something!

"You owe it your time and energy, and your talents, so that no one will be at war, or in poverty, or sick and lonely, again.

"In plain, simple words, grow up!

"Develop a back-bone instead of a wish-bone!

"Your parents are probably tired of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating and denying themselves needed comforts for your every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality and thinking."

This letter may be a bit harsh in that it seems to take an indiscriminate potshot at all teenagers. No one age group is all bad or all good.

So, the teenager who is a problem to very few and who shows all the tendencies of becoming a top rate citizen is not a candidate for such a letter.

Show this letter to a teenager. Then ask him or her to answer honestly if he or she is guilty of any of the charges in the letter.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Of all the political races in the USA, perhaps the most opposite competitors are running for congress from the tobacco capitals of North Carolina -- Smith Bagley, millionaire grandson of the late R. J. Reynolds of Reynolds tobacco, and Nick Galinfianakis, son of a Greek immigrant.

Bagley, aged 31, is tall, handsome, a recent arrival from California, who says that he wants to go to congress to meet and date Jackie Kennedy.

He has adopted some of JFK's campaign techniques, is spending heavily on advertising, will probably run up a total bill of $100,000.

Bagley has considerable support from conservatives and segregationists, though he has divorced himself from the right wing and emphasized his help in securing scholarships for Negro students.

Nick Galinfianakis, the no. 1 candidate running against Bagley, is a young lawyer, part-time Duke University professor, and a member of the North Carolina legislature.

Galinfianakis says he got into politics when some of his friends raised $18 and filed his name as a candidate for the legislature.

"With a name as monstrous as mine, I thought it was a joke. I didn't think anyone would vote for a name like mine," says Galinfianakis.

"However, my father was born in Crete and had a sense of gratitude toward this country. He used to run water out of the spigot and say, 'look at the clean water that we have to drink. We couldn't get that back in Greece.' My father ran a little hot dog stand, and he felt a deep obligation to this country. I feel that in the legislature I've been discharging his obligation -- and mine."

There are two other candidates in the race, Harold Thomerson, assistant to retiring Rep. Ralph Scott, a conservative; and State Senator William Wood, a North Carolina liberal, both competent men. Chief political spotlight, however, has been focused on Bagley and Galinfianakis.

This race for congress is to represent the two tobacco capitals of the world. Bagley lives in Winston - Salem, the home of Reynolds Tobacco, Galinfianakis lives in Durham, the home of Liggett & Myers and American Tobacco, founded by Washington Duke of Bull Durham and Duke's Mixture. Essentially it's a conservative district, but the young Greek-American lawyer, who heads several important subcommittees in the North Carolina legislature, is given a chance of winning against the Scion of tobacco millions.

ANOTHER GREEK-AMERICAN

There is an interesting contrast between Galinfianakis on the East Coast and George Christopher on the West Coast. Christopher, a dairyman born in Greece, became mayor of San Francisco, now aspires to be governor of California.

Some people criticize me for digging back into Christopher's record to report that in 1940 he pleaded guilty to exacting kickbacks from dairy farmers and was fined $5,000 and given two years suspended sentence; also that he pleaded guilty in 1944 to selling watered milk and inferior "manufacturing" cream for Grade A cream. Personally, I believe that when a man is running for high office, the public has a right to know all of his record, especially when it involves criminal convictions.

However, regardless of the 1940-1944 record, it is now revealed that Christopher's dairy as late as 1964 was fined $8,000 by the state of California for paying kickbacks in San Mateo county.

The kickbacks were paid to retailers to expand the Christopher dairy farms milk market.

When the state of California prosecuted in superior court, the dairy agreed to a stipulation whereby it was fined $8,000 and put on probation for one year. The dairy was charged with 16 counts, for which the maximum fine on each count was $500. In other words, Christopher paid the maximum fine --$8,000.

Christopher owns 99 per cent of the stock in the Christopher farms dairy and is chairman of the board. At the time he was fined in the summer of 1964, Mitchell Davis, his brother-in-law, was president of the company and Christopher in talking to California Agriculture Department officials indicated that Davis would be dropped because of negligence, that he, Christopher, did not know about the kickbacks. However, current records show that Davis is still president.

Note -- W. F. O'Keefe, San Francisco business executive who was a close personal friend and adviser to Christopher during his campaign for mayor and part of his term, states: "Christopher 'divorced' himself from the dairy during his eight years in office by appointing his brother-in-law, Mickey Davis, as 'president.' This was a local standing joke. Detailed reports of the operation of the dairy were delivered to Christopher's home each night for his inspection. Mickey Davis was just a figurehead. Christopher knew every customer and his daily purchases. There is no question about the 'not too subtle' pressures exerted upon milk purchasers during his tenure as mayor."

FAR EAST NOTES

The Johnson administration is keeping open its pipelines to North Viet Nam. One reliable report from Hanoi records Ho Chi Minh as in favor of peace talks, but a prisoner of the younger hotheads around him... Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, a personal friend and loyal supporter of LBJ, probably will bow out of the Saigon post within the next few months. Age and health are the reasons.

The magistrate of a small township outside Paris recently erected a large sign at the entrance to the community: DRIVERS BEWARE: WE DO NOT HAVE A HOSPITAL.

HIGH TIDE OF DELINQUENCY

Following the summer riots -- in which the overwhelming number of participants were young people -- the President requested the FBI to investigate. Director J. Edgar Hoover has now made his report, and it is a sobering document.

These riots, which took place in a number of northern cities and in resort towns on the eastern and western seaboards, were not race riots and they were not the work of extremist organizations. The victims, Mr. Hoover points out, included both Negro and white storeowners. Back of the riots, he continues, is "the breakdown of respect for law and order among young people." And this, in part, he ascribes to "an immunity to public exposure for serious offense and often the absence of punishment of any kind." To quote him once more, the riots were "not the innocent exuberance of youth but were persistent, prolonged and violent."

In other words, the riots represented a high tide in the grim flood of juvenile delinquency. And the breakdown Mr. Hoover tells about is, in large measure, the result of parental failures in the home, of failure of the schools to properly instill respect for constituted authority and of failure of laws which pamper and privilege young lawbreakers, no matter how vicious they may be. Until the wrongdoer of any age learns that stern punishment awaits him, we may expect the crime statistics to grow more and more ominous.

H. L. Hunt Says

IN THE LONG RUN

It is obvious that the spread of socialism and the growth of centralized, unconstitutional government power in this country would never have reached its present stage of critical danger without the cooperation and help of the businessmen whom socialism and totalitarian government would destroy.

This strange paradox of successful and influential men helping their own worst enemies has bewildered many who have long been active in the fight for freedom and the Constitution. They ask how it is that businessmen can subsidize those who would confiscate their property, how newspapermen can urge on a trend in government that eventually will eliminate freedom of the press, how educators can welcome growing control of their own schools and colleges by Washington bureaucrats.

The answer is both simple and sad. These people are not thinking of tomorrow, but only of today. Hypnotized by what seem to be short-term gains, they lose sight entirely of the long-term losses.

When Maynard Keynes was confronted with the absurdity of the system of constant deficit spending by government which he advocated, and it was pointed out that in the long run it would destroy any country, his only answer was: "In the long run we are all dead."

That is the kind of thinking which accounts for the support of socialists by their victims. Seeking a bit of temporary "good will" to increase their popularity, they put out of their minds the ultimate consequences. In Winston Churchill's words, each one thinks that "if he is the one to feed the crocodile, the crocodile will eat him last." HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Adam Clayton Powell, Slapping Labor Leaders Around, Says President Never Chided or Pressured Him.

Washington, D. C.: -- In recent weeks President Johnson playfully has permitted a labor leader to sit in his Oval Room chair just to see how it feels.

Still two others spent three hours with Mr. Johnson during the height of the Da Nang crisis. And a labor man was at his table during the farewell White House dinner to Ambassador Lodge on the eve of his return to Saigon.

At the moment, what was discussed in all these hours is very much off the record. So is what they did not discuss.

But it is presumed that in some of these talks there loomed large the 6-foot-4 figure of Reverend Adam Clayton Powell, Democratic Representative from Harlem, the Congressman labor now refers to as the "one - man road - block."

There is no doubt that the labor men have wanted -- and do want -- the President to put the heat on the pastor.

There is no evidence that the President, devoted to the theory that politics is the art of the possible, has turned on the pressure.

It is not generally realized that the debonair Negro Congressman has prevented labor from getting what it has wanted most for more than 15 years. Some call it liberalized picketing laws, some refer to it as common situs picketing, and some dub it the end of the ban on secondary boycott.

Call it what you will. It means, for example, that a union would have the right to picket the entire Moonport project even if it had a dispute with only one of 50 contractors on the construction site. This would stop all work -- not just the operation of the company involved in the union dispute.

To understand the full force of labor's drive on this front, one should understand that the building and construction unions consider the right to situs picketing (now illegal) as a matter of life and death.

And since there are 18 construction unions, with a membership of 3.5 million, and it is the biggest unified bloc inside the AFL-CIO, the issue has become labor's number one campaign.

But Mr. Powell, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, after scheduling the situs bill for a floor vote the other week, reversed position. After all these years it would have passed but he blocked it suddenly and with no real explanation, though publicly he had supported it.

So I asked him why he threw up the road - block. It is accurate to report the Congressman's reply as follows:

No one telephoned or contacted him in behalf of labor.

He did not get a call on the matter from President Johnson, now Labor Secretary Wirtz, nor Speaker John McCormack.

Nor did any labor leaders talk to him. The latter men bypassed him and dealt with the pro-labor Congressman Frank Thompson, head of the labor sub-committee.

In fact, according to the Powell version, the President just never discussed the matter with him -- not even when they spent more than 90 minutes together in the White House talking about secondary education poverty.

And then there is the matter of a telephone conference call made in mid - April. At one end of the line were Speaker John McCormack and Representatives Carl Albert (Majority Leader), John Dent and Adam Powell. They were on extensions in the Speaker's office.

At the other end in the White House was President Johnson. They discussed social legislation -- but they never mentioned common situs picketing.

So the powerful Congressman Powell decided at the last minute that no one but the labor leaders really wanted to liberalize the picketing laws. And he blocked the move.

This came after he had made a compact with the same labor leaders to get the Hawkins equal enforcement bill through the House. Believing it had a deal, labor really pushed for that bill and it passed with a greater margin than any of the other civil rights legislation.

Powell told his intimates that he really was going to give labor what it wanted -- but in July or August. Then they blasted him and pinned on him the "one-man road - block" label.

So he said the hell with it and decided to wait at least until the 90th Congress before permitting the House to vote on labor's most wanted legislation.

But the labor men are smart wrestlers themselves. One fall does not make a bout. It should be a hot season in the old arena.

The Holiday Art Exhibit sponsored by the Sikeston Art League will be open to the public without charge from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Sunday, May 29, at the Holiday Inn. A reception honoring exhibiting artists and League patrons will be from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday, May 29.

Local Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hackett of 806 Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Shipman of Morehouse leave tomorrow to visit their son and daughter in Cincinnati, Ohio. They will be guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hackett Jr., and son Jimmie. The Hacketts are planning to return to Sikeston on Monday evening, but the Shipmans will go on to Detroit, Michigan, to spend some time with their son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Shipman.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Neil Smith and son Mark this weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Monte Shields and family of St. Louis. The Smiths are newcomers to Sikeston themselves, having moved here last September. They reside at 803 Cambridge Drive.

Miss Anne Wissman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wissman of 612 Maple, arrived home today after completing a semester at Southeastern State College. Anne plans on spending her summer vacation in summer school at Cape.

The Raymert Miller family of Sikeston, entertained Mrs. Miller's parents and a good friend from Sunday until Wednesday of this week. Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Helms and Mrs. Ed Smith all of Camdenton, Mo., were here to attend the State Convention of the Rebecca Oddfellow Lodge.

Mrs. Bob Hubbard and her children are planning to move from Sikeston to Mayfield, Kentucky, on June 2nd. Mr. Hubbard has been there since April 1 awaiting their arrival. The Hubbards now reside at 704 Mimosa Drive.

Art Entries To Be Made Today

At. 9 a.m. today the Holiday Inn became a bee hive of activity. Actually, before that, the crew to receive, label, store and later hang entries for the Holiday Art Exhibit arrived in a flurry of typewriters, file cards, identification slips and other tools of the trade. After the inevitable settling, room 200 opened for business, and business was ready for Miss Harriet E. Jones, Mrs. Phil Compagna, Mrs. Alex Waters, Miss Emily Brennecke, Mrs. Harley Barnes, and Mrs. A. B. Smith, who are there today to receive drawings, paintings and sculpture for the exhibit.

It is expected there will be more entries than in previous shows and a greater number of artists since a larger geographic area will be represented. More than 40 artists have conveyed their desire to enter the exhibit and others will come.

Any artist wishing to enter the exhibit may bring his entries to the Holiday Inn anytime until nine p.m. At this time the doors to room 200 will close on some mighty tired "receivers," and the feverish activity of checking labels and placing each entry begins. The Art League assures everyone that all will be serenity before 10 a.m. on Saturday when the doors will open to the pulic.

The exhibit will remain open until 10 p.m. on Saturday, and will be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Sunday. A reception for patrons of the Art League and exhibiting artists will be held at the exhibit from 8 until 10 p.m., Sunday, after which it will close.

Trinity WMS Has Meeting

The general meeting of the Trinity Baptist church Woman's Missionary Society met at the church Thursday, May 19.

A setting to resemble the sidewalk cafes of New Orleans was used. Each table was centered with a colorful candle surrounded by magnolia leaves and one white blossom.

Many magnolia leaves and white blossoms were placed at vantage points around the room adding to the Southern atmosphere of the occasion.

Mrs. M.L. Limbaugh, president, opened the meeting by reading the names of missionaries on the prayer calendar with Mrs. Orrin Hunt leading in prayer.

A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Limbaugh. Mrs. Lewis Conley read the secretary's report.

Mrs. Glenn Peel gave a report on Focus Week for the Girls Auxiliary members. Routine business was transacted.

The program for the evening was directed by Mrs. A. J. Day on mission work by Southern Baptists in Louisiana.

Mrs. A. M. Jackson talked about "Evangeline Country," having with her a copy of the poem and pictures of that area. She also had a cluster of leaves from the famed "Evangeline Oak."

Mrs. Hunt told of the history of Louisiana assisted by Mrs. Max Smotherman, Mrs. R. H. Mackley, Mrs. Hershel Hellem, Mrs. Hershel Deal, Mrs. John McVey and Miss Georgia Houchens.

Mrs. Conley told of the work being done by the Southern Baptists.

Mrs. Truman Bennett concluded the program with devitional thoughts with a scripture reading from John 4. The meeting closed with Miss Houchens playing "Take My Life and Let It Be" as a benediction.

A social hour was enjoyed as the members were served coffee, sweet rolls and doughnuts from a table spread with a red checked cloth and decorated with white blossoms. Those responsible for the decorations were Mrs. Earl Underhill, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. J. V. Stallings.

Conversation was enjoyed as "Louisiana coffee" was sipped.

Mrs. King Is Honored at Stork Shower

Mrs. Bill King was honored with a cradle shower Friday, May 13, at the home of Mrs. Harold Boardman. Hostesses were Mrs. Boardman, Mrs. Louis Jones and Mrs. Harry Buckles.

Small storks were used in decorating. The gifts were placed in a cradle with a large stork sitting in it.

Games were played and cookies, punch and coffee were served.

Mrs. Orrin Hunt, Mrs. Dale White, Mrs. C. J. McFarling, Jr., Mrs. John Epperson, Mrs. Mary Vaughn, Mrs. Mildred Day, Mrs. Laura Ball, Mrs. Dave Littleton, Mrs. Harold King, Mrs. Jimmy Bogle.

Mrs. R. T. Reed and Sandra, Mrs. Lida Jones, Mrs. Johnny King, Mrs. J. H. Calvin, Mrs. William South and Judy, Mrs. Emma Bohannon, Mrs. Jim Poe, Mrs. Austin Manes, Mrs. Doris Jackson, Mrs. Bill McFarling.

Mrs. Ruth King and Glenda, Mrs. Wallace King, Mrs. Charles Stearnes, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dace, Mrs. Joe Lewis, Mrs. Leacil Crouthers, Mrs. Gene Buckles, Mrs. Pearl Calvin, Mrs. Lenzie Beck and Mrs. Hershal Payne.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Held Friday At Church

MOREHOUSE -- The dining hall of the First Baptist church was the setting for the Mother-Daughter Banquet Friday evening. This banquet was given for the members of the Junior and Intermediate Girl's Auxiliaries and their mothers.

The theme for the evening, "Proclaim to Every Nation," was cut from green construction paper and sprinkled with gold glitter and attached to the wall with a large world map placed under it. One end of the dining hall was decorated with a spring scene. A blue background was for the sky with white clouds, and green trees behind a white picket fence entwined with mock orange further decorated the room. A huge sun hung from the ceiling with birds on either side.

The tables were overlaid with white paper with gold streamers down the center and bouquets of irises. Dolls dressed in costumes from other nations were placed on the tables. White candles provided the light for the evening. The guest table was decorated with yellow roses and yellow rose buds and white candles in milk glass containers.

The welcome and invocation was given by Rev Glen Bohannon followed by a period of getting acquainted. Each girl introduced herself and her mother. After dinner, group singing was led by Mrs. Jeanie Rahm. These songs were of Welsh, French and Canadian origin in keeping with the theme.

Special guests were recognized by the pastor. They were Mrs. Bernice Bryant, W.M.U. President; Mrs. Eva Laminack, G.A. director; Mrs. Jeanie Rahm, Jr. G.A. counsellor; and Mrs. Glenn Bohannon, Intermediate G.A. counseller.

A game called "Sweet Peas" was led by Mrs. Bohannon. The guest speaker for the evening was the Rev. C.D. Butler, pastor of the Murray Lane Baptist church in Sikeston. He showed slides that were taken on a trip he made to Alaska and then gave a talk on "You and Missions."

The benediction was by Mrs. Eva Laminack.

Gospel Singing To Be President

There will be a gospel singing at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the First Oneness Pentecostal church on Highway 60 West.

Featured will be the Beardsley Quartet and the Ray Harmony Quartet, both of St. Louis.

Local talent will be the Gospel Jubileers and the Thomann Trio.

Cards Rally In Nineth For Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals, rapidly gaining the knack of the big inning, shoved across three runs in the ninth inning to edge the Chicago Cubs Thursday night 3-2.

The Kansas City Athletics took the day off, preparing to open a home stand tonight against the Baltimore Orioles.

The Cardinals' victory was the second straight in which St. Louis came up with a big inning. On Wednesday, the Cards scored seven runs in the seventh inning, four of them on Curt Flood's grand-slam homer, to down the Cubs 9-1.

Pitcher Bob Gibson was down 2-0 entering the final inning, the Cubs picking up their runs on Byron Browne's homer in the fifth with one man on.

But Julian Javier led off the ninth with a hit, and Mike Shannon beat out a trickler down the third base line.

Flood bounced what appeared to be a doubleplay ball to Ron Santo, but the Cubs' third baseman threw the ball into right field with one run scoring. Orlando Cepeda then singled home Shannon and Tim McCarver ended the feast with a game-winning hit.

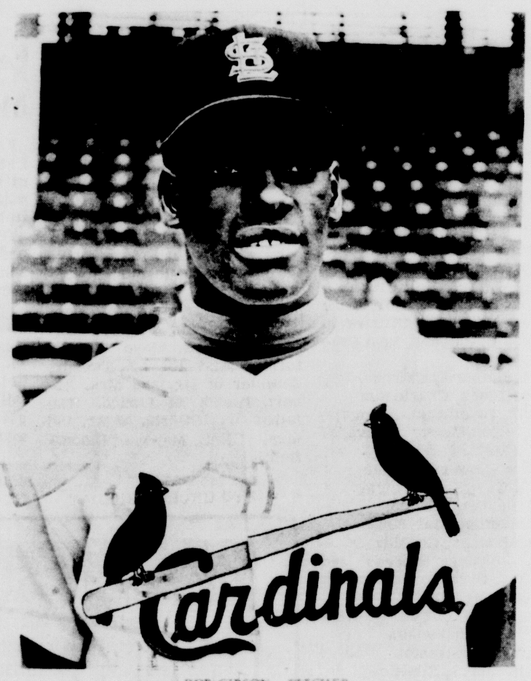
It was the second straight game Gibson has won on timely hitting by Shannon, Flood and Cepeda plus an error. Last Sunday the big righthander defeated Cincinnati 4-3 after two were out in the ninth.

And, earlier this season, Flood hit a two-run ninth-inning homer that gave Gibson a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets.

Tonight, Art Mahaffey 1-2 will be on the mound for the Cards, facing Cincinnati's Jim Maloney 4-0.

For Kansas City, Rollie Sheldon 2-4 will hurl against Baltimore's Wally Bunker 3-3.

TIM McCARVER drove home the winning run in the ninth inning last night to give the Cards the win. The Redbirds were down 2-0 going into the final frame.



BOB GIBSON - PITCHER

BOB GIBSON, collected some timely hitting and three runs in the ninth inning of last nights game against the Cubs to pull out a 3-2 victory.

Suicide Chain In California

Gregory Rogers, 23, a South San Francisco fireman, was in a group of men which cut down Murphy's body.

Three weeks ago, Rogers hanged himself in a clothes closet.

Mrs. Joe Ann Graham, 24, a mother of two, has a brother, Joseph Terron, in the South San Francisco Fire department. Terron was acquainted with Murphy and Rogers.

Tuesday Mrs. Graham hanged herself with electric cords from a shower rail at her Redwood City home.

"I've never heard of such a suicide chain developing anywhere before," said San Mateo County's coroner, Paul B. Jensen.

"I'm concerned and I certainly want to investigate them."

To have a well-ripened flavor, Cheddar cheese should be aged from six to nine months at a temperature of approximately 50 degrees Fahrenheit. This hard cheese made from cows' milk originated several hundred years ago in Cheddar, Somerset, England. It was introduced into America by English settlers who produced it in the colonies long before revolutionary days.

FISHING FACTS

THE SMALL FRY BARRIER

Sometimes the "little 'uns" get in the way.

This is often the complaint of pike fishermen who work far northern waters for the large fish. When nearly every cast is grabbed by an over-eager youngster, the trophy-hunting angler may come home enthused by the action but disappointed with the catch.

While such calamities may be dismissed as "bad luck," the fishing authorities at Mercury outboards cite under water observations that may indicate a deliberate pattern of large and small fish behavior.

While fishing crappie beds in a major Midwest impoundment, an inquisitive angler traded his rod and reel for SCUBA equipment and went below for a look-see.

About 20 feet below the surface his eyes focused on a huge ball of crappies clustered in and about a pile of cedar.

On the outside of the sphere were literally hundreds of small fish. Its "core" was composed of big, mature fish.

Back on the surface, the diver used this knowledge to advantage by dropping a weighted minnow quickly through the outer shield and into the core. Immediately, larger fish were caught.

While northern pike don't school in this fashion, there is a similarity. You have to cast through or beyond the small ones that frequent the fringe weeds their presence is often seen. They're tough to reach, and more difficult to haul out, as they will seldom venture beyond the perimeter of smaller fish to grab your lure.

The reason big fish hide behind a barrier of small ones is subject for debate, comment the Mercury lads, but there is proof that size does make a difference in this regard. Remember, you may have to penetrate the small fry to bring in that king-sized trophy.

All Mario Andretti Asks Is a Fast-Moving Car

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Before the Brooklyn Dodgers of the Continental Football League signed former all-pro Andy Robustelli as coach, at a contract in excess of $25,000, they tried for a couple of weeks to land Harland (Swede) Svare, another former Giant who was deposed as head man of the LA Rams. Svare turned them down—just as Robustelli had once nixed the New York Titans of the AFL. . . .

Robustelli says Buffalo and San Diego of the AFL could fit comfortably into any circle of NFL teams—competitionwise. . . .

At 26, Mario Andretti, the new racing whiz who won the pole position for the Indianapolis 500, is the enfant terrible of the gas buggy set. But that doesn't mean Mario is a novice at pushing a pedal. He's been through the farm system of racing—modified stocks, midgets, sprint cars (86-inch wheel base) and USAC sprint cars (96-inch wheel base). Mario could have made a living with stocks, but "that wasn't my goal—I wanted open cockpit racing." . . .

Understand Judge Roy Hofheinz desperately wants the Houston Oilers in his Dome palace under the contract terms he originally set out for them . . . before a feud with Bud Adams chased the team to Rice Stadium. Only thing is they'd have to find an angel to make up the money to Rice if the Oilers tried to drop out of their four-year contract (at $10,000 a game). And if Rice goes through with a projected roof over their playing field, the judge can forget it altogether. . . .

The Atlanta Braves rumored trying to peddle outfielder Rico Carty for a pitcher. They've approached both the Dodgers and the Phillies. . . .

Beef by our armed services in Viet Nam on the big league games radioed there is relayed to us by war correspondent Jim Lucas. "Apparently," he writes, "in Armed Forces Radio Service view, a game isn't valid unless it includes either San Francisco or Los Angeles of the National League. . . . Some of us live elsewhere. . . . We get deadly tired of listening to the Dodgers and the Giants." They also ignore the California Angels, so it can't be entirely a matter of saving money by beaming West Coast games. Check with AFRS reveals the whole operation will be consolidated in Washington soon and change the picture I mean, wave length. . . .

"Unbelievable," is what Dave Marr called the four-week siege of rain that impinged on the PGA tour. Not only do the pros sit around, but they spend a lot of money doing it. . . . No one cancels their expenses. . . .

Between you'n'me, has anyone noticed that the streaking San Francisco Giants, who were once supposed to harbor cliques with their Latin-American contingents, are now down to only three senors? Trades have left them with Jesus Alou, Tito Fuentes and Juan Marichal. . . .

Bills Introduced To Permit Soybeans

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Congressman Paul C. Jones and Senators Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long have joined in introducing in the House of Representatives and Senate, companion bills to permit the planting of soybeans in lieu of cotton in areas where rainfall has been so heavy this year that it has been impossible to plant cotton acreage allotments. Producers so effected would not lose benefits under the cotton program.

Hearings are scheduled before the House Agriculture Committee for Friday morning, May 20. Sponsors hope the Senate Committee will be able to act on the basis of those hearings. The Jones Bill in the House is H.R. 15151 and the Senate Bill is S. 3382.

As introduced, the bill would apply only to the calendar year 1966 and would become effective only on designation of a disaster area by the Secretary of Agriculture, Congressman Jones and the two Missouri Senators said.

Congressman Jones introduced the bill in the House May 18 and Senators Symington and Long joined in co-sponsoring a companion bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Ross Bass of Tennessee. Others joining are from Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Louisiana cotton sections all of which have suffered under heavy rains during the past few weeks -- the normal cotton-planting time. It is estimated that as much as 25 to 40 percent of Missouri cotton acreage has not been planted or has been flooded out.

Under existing legislative authority, allotted acreage not planted to cotton because of drought, flood or other natural disaster, is considered as planted to cotton for purposes of price support and diversion payments, if such acreage is not subsequently planted to any other income-producing crop in the same crop year.

Under the proposed change, the cotton producer who is unable to plant because of heavy rains will get the same consideration as the producer who loses his crop because of natural disaster.

The Hope Pearl holds the record for size of a pearl. It weighs nearly three ounces and has a circumference of 4½ inches.

Expansion Ideas Being Trimmed

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK AP -- Business is trimming some of its high-flying ideas on expansion this year-but only slightly. And the cutbacks are far from uniform. While some industries are lowering their sights, others say they now plan to spend more than they reported just two months ago.

These are the findings of a recheck of corporate intentions by the McGraw-Hill Department of Economics in mid-May. The latest figure puts capital spending this year at $61.3 billion, or $450 million less than the firms reported as their goals in March. The spending of these companies for new plants and equipment in 1965 was $52 billion.

The picture is further complicated by cross-currents in the machine tool busines.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association reports that new orders dropped in April by 16 per cent. These orders would nornally be for delivery next year.

But the association reports today that sales of used machine tools in April jumped to a record high, 33.6 per cent over a year earlier. The association says the demand is growing for production machinery that can be delivered immediately.

The slight lowering of capital spending plans for the rest of this year is credited to several factors: President Johnson's request to business to go slow because of the inflation threat, delays in machinery deliveries and construction, the sharp decline in the stock market, tight money, and rapidly rising capital goods prices.

Some corporations apparently just are not able to meet the goals set earlier, regardless of how they feel about volumtary cutbacks.

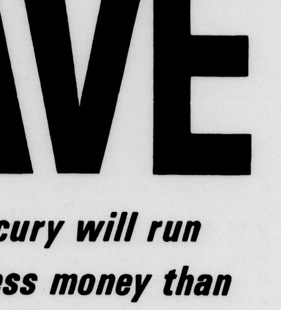
Industries with bigger spending goals in May than in March include electrical machinery, aerospace, shipbuilders, railroad equipment, stone, clay and glass, food, textiles, railroads and airlines.

Of all the companies checked, 42 per cent reported 1966 investment plans were unchanged from March, and 27 per cent reported higher spending goals. Lower dollar investment was reported planned by 31 per cent.

Governmeny reports of business spending intentions usually have run below those of private pollsters this year. But even the government figures showed such a big jump over 1965 outlays that the President moved to seek voluntary restraint lest the economy become overheated.

matter of Fact



Birling, or log rolling, is a favorite sport of the North American lumberjack traceable to the early lumbering era in Maine. The idea is to maneuver your opponent off balance and into the water. Contests are usually held after the log drive reaches the sawmill. The world's first birling championship was held in 1898 at the Omaha, Neb., exposition.

International Beauty Congress Postponed

LONG BEACH, Calif. AP -- To seek better television time and to avoid competition with summer tourists, the International Beauty Congress this year has been postponed until 1967.

Congress officials made the announcement Wednesday after the city council, which provides much of the money for the contest, agreed to amend its contract. The precise date depends upon negotiations for television coverage, the officials said.

The event originated as the Miss Universe Pageant in 1952 and in 1960 became the International Beauty Congress.

Court Set Up In England

LONDON AP -- Britain's Labor government today set up an independent court of inquiry into the causes of the national seamen's strike. It will probe the immediate dispute and the basic problems of British shipping.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter said the tribunal will begin work in a few days and may make an interim report in the next two weeks.

That would be early enough to provide a neutral view that could help settle the strike, now 11 days old and virtually deadlocked.

The 65,000-member national union of seamen is striking for a 40-hour-week package deal which amounts to a 17 per cent increase on the current basic wage of $42 for a 56-hour week.

Fifty-Two Graduate At New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Martha Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Moore was valedictorian of the 1966 graduating class of New Madrid High School, and Sue Fowler Essary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Fowler, was salutatorian of the 52 students.

This was announced at Commencement Exercises held in the auditorium Thursday night, when other honor awards were also presented by High School Principal Glenn E. Dyke.

In an assembly the following morning in the auditorium other awards were presented to high school students.

Among awards presented at the Commencement Exercises were Bookkeeping to Sue Fowler Essary, Secretarial to Linda Dees, Latin II to Terry Femmer, Shop and Woodworking to Robert White, Drafting to Donald Brotherton, History to Marthat Moore and Kathy Boyer, Psychology to Theresa Cravens, Geography to James Byrd, Sociology to Linda Dees, Economics to Patty Holland, Outstanding Senior in Home Economics to Sue Fowler Essary, Math and Science to Mike Shibley, Yearbook Staff to Theresa Clark, Outstanding Girl Athlete to Linda Dees, Free Throw Award to Gerald Harris.

Letters in volleyball to seniors were awarded to Linda Dees, Kathy Boyer, Susan King, Teresa Clark and Dianne Clark, and letters in basketball to seniors were awarded to James Byrd, Gerald Harris, Charles Herron and Mike Shibley.

A scholarship award presented by Delta Sigma Theta sorority went to Ella Sue Williams, and the regents scholarship to Southeast Missouri State College was presented to Sue Fowler Essary.

Both the valedictorian and salutatorian had given talks at the formal exercises Thursday evening. At that service the welcome was by Dr. Frank Wiley, superintendent of schools.

Principal Dyke made the presentation of awards and Harry F. Leuer, president of the Board of Education presented the diplomas. The school's mixed chorus and high school band each rendered a number and both invocation and benediction were by Rev. J. C. Thedford of the New Madrid Baptist Church.

Deloris Boy Honored at Bridal Party

Deloris Box of New Madrid, bride-elect of Perry Yount of Morehouse, was guest of honor at a wedding shower Friday with Mrs. J. Box of Sikeston as hostess.

The home was decorated for the occasion. The gift table was covered with a pink cloth overlaid with lace. Hanging from the ceiling directly over the table was a cluster of wedding bells and pink streamers. Small bells hung from each corner of the table.

Games were played and prizes won by Mrs. Everett Yount and Mrs. Ivan Phillips. They presented them to the honoree.

After the honoree opened the many gifts, refreshments of ice cream sodas and cookies were served.

Those attending were Mrs. Fay Box, mother of the honoree; Mrs. Evertt Young, mother of the prospective groom; Mrs. Luther Mitchem, sister of the honoree; Mrs. Jack Matthews, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Link DeWitt, Mrs. Malcome Chappell, Mrs. D. C. Crone and Mrs. J. Box.

Those unable to attend but sending gifts were Mrs. Billie Butler, Mrs. Buddy Newton, Mrs. Dorothy Young, Mrs. Jack Volina, Mrs. Laveka Yount, Mrs. Stella Slinkard, Mrs. Etlee Westfall, Mrs. H. R. Newton, Mrs. Earl Hannah, Mrs. Edith Frohock, Miss Patricia Newton, Miss Judy Beaker and Mrs. Malcome Tidwell.

THE DODGE BOYS GOT YA COVERED!
Those good guys in white hats back up their deals with the longest, strongest warranty* in the industry
How come the Dodge Boys beat competition to the draw again? 'Cause they got a way of doing business that the others can't match. New cars! New deals! And a way of backin' up their words in writing that lets you know you're wanted (and wanted back). See the Dodge Boys and join the Dodge Rebellion.
The famous 5-Year/50,000 Mile Dodge Warranty: Chrysler Corporation confidently warrants all of the following vital parts of its 1966 cars for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmanship will be replaced or repaired at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excepting manual clutch), torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential, and rear wheel bearings. REQUIRED MAINTENANCE: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; replace oil filter every second oil change; clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years; and every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

The Aztecs had a primitive cigarette in the form of tobacco stuffed into a hollow reed or cane tube. Other natives of Mexico, Central America and parts of South America crushed tobacco leaves and rolled the shreds in corn husks or other vegetable wrappers. The widespread use of the cigarette in the English-speaking world dates from the end of the Crimean War, which introduced the British soldiery to Turkish cigarettes.

No Need For Briefing

WASHINGTON AP -- Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today a half-hour's telephone conversation with President Johnson convinced him there is no immediate need for a bipartisan briefings on Viet Nam.

Dirksen suggested such a briefing Tuesday. He said it should cover political and military aspects of the situation.

He told an informal news conference today that Johnson had telephone him Wednesday to discuss the suggestion.

"The President said he had been trying to keep everybody informed of what is going on," Dirksen said. He noted that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNarmara had briefed members of both parties on recent visits to the Capitol.

"The President thought this pretty will took care of the situation," Dirksen said.

He said he agreed that "we can go for a while" without a formal leadership review with the President.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

This is the victory . . . even our faith. —(John 5:4)

If the good in our own life is not visible to our eyes we need to center our faith in God, and remember that we are His children. We must stand firm in our faith. We shall not go down in defeat or discouragement when we hold firm to the Truth. God is with us, and His Good is at work in our life and affairs.

Catron Man To Head National Postmasters

CATRON- Henry H. Womack, President of the Missouri Branch, National League of Postmasters of the United States, from Catron, Mo., and who had just been installed as the League's National President at Washington, D.C. headquarters, was the guest of honor and one of the main speakers for the Colorado Branch this past weekend. He had attended their meeting two years ago when he was the house guest of W. Calvin Berk, Postmaster at Idledale, Colorado, who he installed for the third consecutive term at this year's convention. Robert May, Eckley, Colorado, was elected president; and Ruth Stanley, Keota, Colorado, was also re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

There were a number of the regional officials from the postal department as guest speakers, and the local Chamber of Commerce, and Golden High School Centennial Singers that represented Colorado at the Worlds Fair provided entertainment for the annual banquet.

Following the Colorado stop, Postmaster Womack flew on to attend west coast conventions for several days before he returns home, and then he will resume his duty as their National office President, which he succeeded upon the resignation as postmaster of the former Henry Stoffer of Iowa, who is running for election as the congressman from his district.

Jim Warren In Auction Contest

KANSAS CITY - Jim Warren of West Plains, is the first entry to be accepted from the state of Missouri to compete in the 1966 World Champion Livestock Market Auctioneer contest.

The two day event will be held at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, Mich., during the Livestock Marketing Congress June 12th and 13th. The annual contest is conducted by the Missouri Auction School of Kansas City and endorsed by the nation's 800 Certified Livestock Markets. It is designed to determine auctioneering skill and ability. A total of 14 industry judges from throughout the United States will select the World Champion, Reserve World Champion, and 8 Regional and Reserve Champions. The present Champion is Glen Helberg of North Platte, Nebraska and Skinner Hardy of Bakersfield, California is Reserve World Champion.

Warren has been an auctioneer for over 25 years. His entry is being sponsored by the Charleston Auction Company of Charleston, where he has been auctioneering for the past 14 years. This market is owned and operated by Harry "Joker" Warren, II.

This market has enjoyed a steady growth the past 20 years under the Warren's management and is considered by many to be one of the most progressive in the 5 state area.

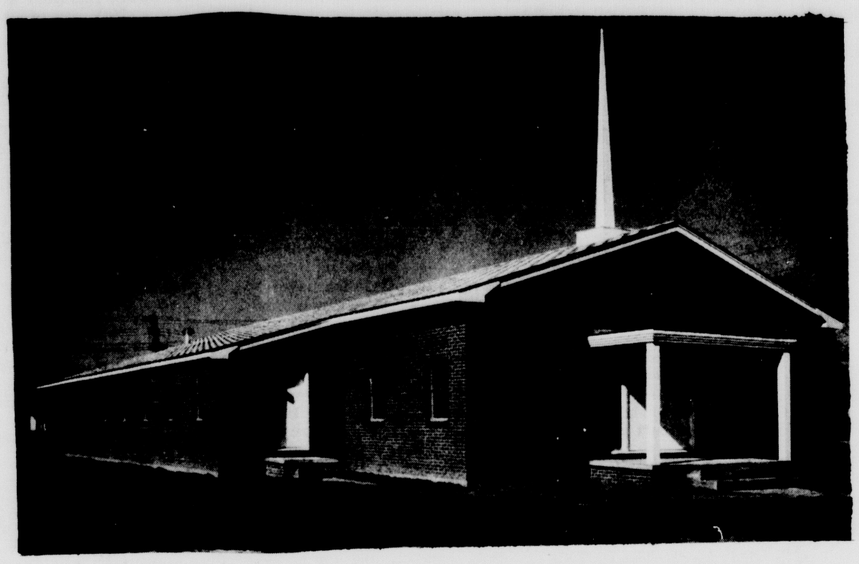
#31 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING WESTEND BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. J. W. GWIN, PASTOR



HISTORY

The Westend Baptist Church was organized at the City Hall in Sikeston. It was then named the Second Baptist. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Williams on the Jake Sides farm. Rev. N. A. Murray was the first pastor.

The present site at the corner of Maude and Fair Streets was purchased, and a Bush Harbor was built there. Later a basement was built and service was held there. It was then named First Baptist Colored. In 1929 the frame was erected and the cornerstone laid.

In 1944 the Church was enlarged and brick veneer was put on it.

In 1948 the old Lincoln School building was purchased and attached to the Church. In 1953 the name was changed to The Westend Baptist Church.

On September 14, 1962 lightening struck the building. The building, all of the furniture and equipment were completely destroyed by fire. Service was then held in the Lincoln School Auditorium. In seven months a beautiful edifice was rebuilt under the leadership of Rev. J. M. Blow. In 1963 our present pastor came to us. Under his ministery a parsonage was built on the Church campus. These buildings are completely furnished and equipped.

Rev. J. W. Gwin is the Pastor. Under his strong leadership many improvements have been made.

Exhibit A-6. TRACT No. 3011-33, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 SW 1/4, which point is 487.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-7. TRACT NO. 3011-34, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 308.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-8 You are hereby notified that a complaint in condemnation has heretofore been filed in the office of the Clerk of the above named court in an action to condemn a perpetual easement for the erection, operation, and maintenance of a line or lines of poles, towers, or other structures, wires, cables, and fixtures for the transmission of electric current. The easement taken is subject to existing easements for roads, railroads, canals, ditches, pipelines, telegraph lines, telephone lines, and other electric lines. The easement taken includes the perpetual right of ingress and egress, including the right to use, for the purposes of said easement, any and all right, title, and interest of the owner in and to any streets, roads, avenues, alleyways, and right-of-way upon, abutting, or in any way appertaining to the premises over which said easement passes; includes the perpetual right to remove buildings and improvements, except fences and except such buildings and improvements as are appurtenant to existing easements; includes the perpetual right to trim, cut down, remove, and destroy any trees which may interfere with or endanger said transmission line or lines or the maintenance or operation thereof; includes the perpetual right to set all necessary guy and brace poles and anchors and attach all necessary guy wires thereto; and includes the perpetual right to assign, license, permit, or otherwise agree to the sole or joint use or occupancy of such facilities by any other person, association, or corporation for the transmission of electric power and energy; reserving, however, to the owner the right to cultivate, use and occupy said property for any purpose consistent with the rights and privileges herein taken and which will not interfere with or endanger the construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said easement, but said right of cultivation, use and occupancy shall not include the erection of any structure on, or permission to the public to use any part of, said easement, or any requirement for the payment of damages for any injury to crops, trees, vines, seedlings, or improvements on said property which occurs as a result of and during construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said line or lines. In the event of permanent abandonment of said easement, the title and interest of the United States and its assigns shall vest in the owners of the underlying fee interest in said property at the time of abandonment. The properties over which these easements are to be taken are described in Exhibits A-6, A-7, and A-8. The authority for the taking is under the Act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. 357, as amended, 40 U.S.C. sec. 257 (1964); the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, 40 U.S.C. sec. 258a-258f (1964); Section 5 of the Act of December 22, 1944, sec. 5, 58 Stat. 890, 16 U.S.C. sec. 825s (1964); and the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1966, 79 Stat. 1096 (1965). You are further notified that if you have any objections or defense to the taking of your property you are required to serve upon plaintiff's attorney at the address herein designated within twenty days from and after May 27, 1966, an answer identifying the property in which you claim to have an interest, stating the nature and extent of the interest claimed and stating all your objections and defenses to the taking of your property. A failure so to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented. You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property. You are further notified that at the trial on just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have any interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

Armed Forces

LITTLE CREEK, Va (FHTNC) --Radarman Third Class Jerry W. Dewitt, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dewitt of Gray Ridge, Mo., is attending the four-week Petty Officer Leadership Academy at the U. S. Naval Amphibious School, near Virginia Beach, Va.

The course consists of instruction on world affairs, instructor training, naval history, American government, military bearing, honors and ceremonies and other subjects.

8TH INFANTRY DIV., Germany (AHTNC) -- Army Sgt. Charles M. Lawson, whose wife, Wanda, lives at 1130 Ruth St., Sikeston, Mo., was assigned May 18 to the 12th Engineer Battalion in Germany.

The sergeant is a 1946 graduate of Deering (Mo.) High School. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Lawson, live at 118 S. Prince, Lancaster, Pa.

III MARINE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE -- When a Marine starts to look for anything in a combat zone, an item not in the normal supply system, he begins with the nearest Gunnery Sergeant. But a do-it-yourself pizza kit?

Two or three wars ago it was Mom's apple pie, but now some of the troops have acquired a taste for pizza, and they would rather do it themselves.

Corporal David L. Harris, Fort Wayne, Ind., as the self-elected pizza chef for the men of Marine Composite Reconnaissance Squadron (VMCJ)-1 started his quest for pizza with his photo chief. It is not recorded just why the sergeant had pizza mix packed in his belongings, but he did, and he donated it to the pizza project.

There were a few more problems to overcome before the photo men could enjoy their pizza. They had the mix and a cook, but an oven was needed, a pizza pan would be handy and some extra ingredients to give it that special touch.

One member of the unit was talked into making a pizza pan. It turned out square and made of heavy aluminum foil, but a servicable pizza pan, none the less.

Now they had a cook, the mix and a pan. After a short session the unit thinkers decided that a 20mm ammunition can would make a good oven and canned heat ideal fuel. The kit was complete.

Make-shift heat was applied to the make-shift pizza in a make-shift pan in a make-shift oven. After a long wait the sizzling pizza was lifted out.

It looked like a pizza, it smelled like a pizza, if you discounted the smell of burning olive-drab paint, and those that happened to get a piece somewhere between the burned outer edge and the not too well done center, said it even tasted like pizza.

That was some time ago. The photographers turned cooks have improved their method as well as their recipe. Now they roll their own dough and 'Chef' Harris found a stick of pepperoni to add some flavor. He also found some cheese filled with hot pepper seeds to add a little more spice.

The second time around there were no burned edges and the center was done to a turn. There was less burned paint smell too.

Nothing Wrong With Puffin

NORFOLK, Va. AP -- There's nothing wrong with Puffin a westerly wind couldn't cure.

That was the word Wednesday from the Coast Guard cutter Conifer concerning the 15-foot rowboat in which two English journalists set out last Saturday to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

The Puffin was spotted by the Conifer about 10½ miles off Cape Charles on Virginia's eastern shore, its occupants in good condition.

David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, were not ready to give up, said Lt. T. D. Keith, the cutter's executive officer. He said their only needs were a dry chart and favorable winds.

When they set out from Virginia Beach, the two rowers had hoped to reach St. Ives, England, in less than 55 days.

Johnson Asks For Modern Bill

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson asked Congress today to modernize laws covering political campaign financing and set up a system under which millions more people might get a $100 income tax reduction for political contributions.

Johnson also proposed:

That all candidates and all committees submitting candidates for federal office be required to report every contribution and every expense item above $100.

That members of Senate and House be required to report on outside income, from such things as speeches, consultant or legal fees, or any sources other than from investments.

Administration officials estimated the tax break on contributions would cost the government perhaps $50 million in a presidential election year and perhaps $20 million in other years.

Officials said it was aimed largely at about 36 million persons who are mostly in the lower income tax brackets.

The administration wants to make the new system effective at the start of next year and officials said they thought they had reason for hope that Congress will go along.

The President sent Congress a proposed bill to carry out the new plan along with a letter to the Senate president and House speaker.

The new law would go far beyond the present statutes by applying many provisions to state and local elections as well as to primaries. Johnson said the exemption of primaries in present law is a major defect.

The new plan would limit to $5,000 the total financing any candidate could receive from any single source.

As Johnson put it:

"The present $5,000 limit could no longer be evaded by putting the maximum amount into different pockets in the same suit."

Existing celings on total expenditures by candidates for public office would be repealed --the limits are $25,000 on senatorial candidates and the $5,000 on House candidates.

Under existing law, national political committees can raise and spend no more than $3 million in any one year-but there is no limit on the number of such committees and the law doesn't apply to a committee active only in one state.

Steps Taken Today To Releive Farmers

The House Committee on Agriculture took steps today to bring relief to farmers who suffer from floods, drought or other natural disaster.

The legislation, if enacted, would bring immediate relief to rain-ridden midcontinent cotton areas.

The Committee drafted, for action next Tuesday, a bill authorizing farmers who are unable, because of natural disaster, to plant a crop, which is under an allotment or voluntary production reduction program, to receive price support and land diversion payments on this crop and to produce on their permitted acreages any other crop not subject to production adjustments.

Rep. Paul Jones of Missouri will introduce the new bill which is an expansion of individual bills offered in the House earlier this week by Mr. Jones, by Reps. E.C. Gathings of Arkansas, Thomas G. Abernathy of Mississippi, Frank A. Stubblefield of Kentucky -- all members of the Committee on Agriculture, and by Reps. Ottoe E. Passman of Louisiana, and Robert A. Everett of Tennessee.

The individual bills introduced earlier were intended to deal specifically with distress areas of Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, and a part of Texas, where continuing rains and floods have prevented the planting of the cotton crop, but where there still is time to plant some other crops such as soybeans.

The Committee decided informally that if such relief is provided it should extend to all crops under allotments or in voluntary production adjustment programs, and it ordered the new bill drafted, with Committee action set for Tuesday.

Circle Has Suprise Dinner

PARMA -- Mrs. D.C. Brorein was hostess to the Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church when she entertained 14 members and one guest at dinner in her home, Thursday, May 19. Mrs. Mary Harrison gave the prayer before serving began. All members joined in singing "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Brorein, who was surprised with a strawberry birthday cake baked by Mrs. David Shaw.

The regular monthly business meeting was conducted by Mrs. David Shaw, circle chairman. The treasurer's report and the minutes were read by Mrs. E. J. Reynolds.

Mrs. Pascal Gardner was in charge of the program, "The Day Geography Got Lost," which was the theme of the United Women of the Methodist church. The meditation was given by Mrs. Scott Barney and Mrs. H. R. Woodside presented a related article. The program was closed with prayer by Mrs. Tom Womack.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in quilting in the recreation room of the Methodist church.

Others attending were Mrs. Carl Shaw, Mrs. Joe Salyer, Mrs. Dock Pemberton, Mrs. Walter Frailey, Mrs. Charles Reinbott, Mrs. Sidney Lindley, and a guest, Mrs. Henry Overfield.

April birthdays celebrated were those of Mrs. Salyer, Mrs. Lindley, Mrs. Frailey, and Mrs. Dale Cravens.

Extension Club Has Meeting

BELL CITY - The Busy Bee Extension Club met May 19 at the home of Mrs. McQuire with five members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Seola Jones became a member during the meeting. Roll call was answered with my favorite dish. Mrs. J. C. Pullen, Jr., gave a report on the county council meeting.

The club discussed making a tour of a fabric store in the future.

Mrs. Mary Jordon will be hostess to the club Thursday, June 16. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

A caravan of Oldsmobiles, bound for the Texas centennial exposition, which will open in Dallas on June 6, arrived here early Saturday morning and stopped to secure greetings of the Governor James V. Allred of Texas from Mayor N.E. Fuchs and to exhibit two ancient Oldsmobiles before going on to Memphis.

The Cape Girardeau country club won 39 to 36 when it visited the Sikeston course Sunday for a game of the Southeast Missouri round robin tournament. Bill Malone was low scorer for Sikeston, turning in a 72, and nine Sikeston men shot under 80, but several of the club's highest ranking players did not come out for the match.

Mrs. Opal Heisler, who for the past several years has been connected with Grabers Department Store here, has accepted a position with The Ladies' Toggery, and will be glad to serve her friends there.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a dedicated nation, and a people claimed by God for his own, to proclaim the triumphs of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvellous light. (I Peter 2:9, NEB)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, I thank Thee for the privilege of serving Thee. Help me to work faithfully and prayerfully whenever and whereever possible. In the name of Christ. Amen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,
Daily Sikeston Standard

Report of the Courtesy Committee, I.O.O.F. -- Rep. H. O. Head read the report of the Courtesy Committee, which was on his motion, adopted.

To The Grand Lodge Of Missouri, I.O.O.F.:

We wish to entend our sincere thanks and appreciation to our brothers and sisters who made this Grand Lodge session possible and so enjoyable; also, to the management and employees of the City of Sikeston and all motels, hotels, and private homes.

Our sincere thanks to the radio, newspapers and other news media which gave us mention.

Our heartfelt thanks to the Deputy Sovereign Grand Master Bro. Black, for his presence and good message of the evening. Also, our other distinguished guests from Illinois, Iowa, Texas, and Kansas for their presence because it made our session most enjoyable. We extend our deepest thanks to John Sandberg, who made the report on his wonderful trip of the United Nation Pilgrimage, which was appreciated to the very depth and may we never falter in sponsoring those things that strengthen our young.

We realize that we have been the recipients of many courtesies from many brothers and sisters as well as businesses and residents of Sikeston. To all these and any others that have assisted in any way, we wish to extend our thanks and appreciation.

We also wish to extend our personal thanks to Mayor Kendall Sikes of Sikeston, and his staff, for every courtesy shown; and we wish for him extended happiness and prosperity in the days to come.

As we enter upon the final hours of this Grand Lodge session, we extend our thanks to Almighty God for watching over us during our deliberations at this session and we know that He will always be with us on the road to Friendship, Love and Truth.

Mr. Chas. L. Blanton, Editor
The Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Charley:

We arrived home Monday and found the Saturday Standard in our mail box which is prompt service. We read the old home town paper from cover to cover. I want to congratulate you and Leo Schade for the awards you won at the Press Convention. Also I want you to know that I enjoyed the coffee Club at Harris Drug store. The coffee was good and so was the conversation. We really enjoyed every minute of our three weeks in Sikeston for all our friends were so nice to us and seemed to be as glad to be with us as we were to be with them again. We tried to see as many of our friends as we could, but we know that we missed visiting with many of them, but perhaps we can visit with them the next time. We are very happy here in Florida, but we can never forget Sikeston and the friendly people there. We also noticed the progress that has been made in the year and a half since we left, especially the widening of the streets and the new street lights for which the people can thank the city council and Raymert Miller. Many new houses and buildings have also been erected. Sikeston is surely a progressive town. Again we thank all our good friends who entertained us so royally.

May God Bless You All

PRINTING LINOTYPE PRESSWORK

Like Cameras?

Without the process camera much of what we see in today's printing would be impossible to produce. Its tremendous flexibility and ability to scale all printing elements to fit makes its operator a man in demand. In today's new printing technology practically all copy passes through the camera. Today In U.S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date

In 1933, the Century of Progress Exposition opened in Chicago.

In 1946, the War Department issued a report saying that enlisted men in some cases were treated unfairly and recommended various changes.

Ten years ago--French troops raided and sealed off the Casbah Quarter of Algiers in search of terrorists and rebel arms, taking 6,000 Algerians in for screening and arresting 522 of them.

Five years ago -- The U. S. delegation to the Geneva conference on Laos accused the pro-Communist rebels in Laos of resuming attacks against rightist and neutralist forces in violation of a cease-fire.

One year ago -- U. S. Secretary-General U Thant said the Organization of American States replacing the United Nations as the principal mediator in the Dominican Republic could set, in his words, an embarrassing precedent.

Communist Infiltration Petitions

WASHINGTON AP -- The Rev. Bill Beeny, a St. Louis preacher, presented to the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday a batch of petitions asking that it investigate alleged Communist infiltration of civil rights groups.

Mr. Beeny, 38, said petitions and letters bearing 106,341 names were collected largely as a result of appeals on his daily broadcast of a program he described as "half convervative, half religious." He said the program is carried on 26 radio stations.

Rep. William M. Tuck, D-Va. ranking Democrat on the committee, and Rep. John Buchanan R-Ala., accepted a large package of petitions from Mr. Beeny, who said he would mail in the remainder.

Mr. Beeny said he was pastor of the St. Louis Baptist temple, and that his congregation numbered about 600. He said chapters of the John Birch Society helped circulate the petitions.

NEWCOMER — The suit-dress, a new name on the fashion scene, is interpreted here in beige and white trapunto-woven cotton. It features a convertible collar that can be turned up or worn flat. By the House of Dorell.

the Malden area two weeks ago from Michigan, and were making their home with a brother of Mrs. Johnson for the time being. Two other sons were not with their mother at the time of the accident.

The accident occurred about a half mile from where they were making their home.

In a single car accident Thursday, one mile west on route D, a 1964 Ford, driven by Troy Lee Woodring, 44, Campbell, struck a bridge railing. He received several fractured ribs, and a dislocated shoulder and was taken to the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital.

According to the state patrol, he was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Three persons were injured in an accident last night at 9:10 p.m. on highway 61, one mile west of Cape Girardeau, when a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Janet Ann Hoover, 17, Cape Girardeau, came over a hill at a high rate of speed, when the driver lost control and went into a ditch.

The driver received cuts and bruises on the leg, while a passenger, Eva Spradling, 33, Cape Girardeau, had cuts and bruises on her leg. A second passenger, Quintin W. Headrick, 20, Cape Girardeau, received bruises on his back, shoulders and arms. All three were taken to a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Bicycles Stolen

Two bicycles were stolen from the carport of Jack Britt, 235 Helen. One was a 26 inch red newly painted bicycle, and the other a 20 inch red and white bicycle, both taken early Thursday morning.

Invention of Bowling

The game of ninepins was brought to this country by Dutch settlers in the 17th century. The game became so popular that a blue law was passed to forbid its playing. Bowlers got around the law by adding a 10th pin and thus bowling, as it is known today, was invented.

Scientist Says There Is Life Out There

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES AP -- Does intellignece exist "out there?"

A scientist-priest says yes, and speculates some may be angel-like superior beings while others may be "fallen" creatures like ourselves.

The Rev. J. Joseph Lynch, Fordham University seismologist, told a symposium of the American Astronautical Society in suburban Anaheim Wednesday that God's desire to share His goodness "would be better satisfied by having myriads of galaxies inhabited by intelligent beings."

Commented Dr. Harold Klein, assistant director for life sciences at the U. S. Space Agency's Ames Research Center, who invited Dr. Lynch to speak:

"I confess I am surprised at the positive position taken by him. It is obvious the church is prepared for the contingency we may find intelligent life on other worlds. It is coming to grips with this problem"

Said Dr. Ernan McMullin, professor of philosophy at the University of Notre Dame, also on the sumposium panel:

"The possibility of a plurality of worlds has been discussed by theologians since the 14th Century."

After men like Dr. Frank Drake of Cornell University's Center for Radiophysics proposed huge radio observatories to hunt for emissions from distant civilizations, Dr. Lynch offered this admittedly theological clincher:

"It seems reasonable to suppose some of our extraterrestrial neighbors would survive the test of acknowledging God's supremacy, which He said caused some angels to fall and some, like ourselves, fail as we did in the person of our first parents Adam and Eve.

"We could expect, therefore, at least two broad classes of extraterrestrial neighbors: Those who survived the test and those who failed."

Dr. Lynch added there might even be a civilization worse than ours: "A race fallen but not redeemed -- a possibility I do not care to entertain -- would be far inferior to us."

MOREHOUSE GETS DIRECT DIALING

Beginning Sunday, June 5, all Morehouse eight-party rural telephone customers will be able to dial their own station-to station Long Distance telephone calls direct across the nation, John Donoho, manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, has announced.

"We are happy to extend this fast, convenient method of calling to our Morehouse rural customers," Donoho said.

Donoho explained how eight-party rural customers will place station-to-station cails. "Just lift your receiver and listen for the dial tone. Then dial the digit '1' followed by the three-digit Area Code number, and the two letters and five figures of the telephone number. It's just that easy," he pointed out.

"With DDD you can call friends and relatives who live far away, or, nearby," he added, "at the low station-to-station rates."

City customers will continue to place their station-to-station calls as they have in the past. "The method for placing calls is identical," Donoho explained.

For Direct Distance Dialing, the United States is divided into dialing areas, Donoho explained. Each area is identified by a code number consisting of three figures. For example, the Area Code for Chicago and vicinity is 312.

If a customer reaches a wrong number, he should find out the telephone number and city he reached, hang up, then dial "Operator" immediately. She will see that the customer is not charged for the call.

The Right Idea Forms In France

ESPARROS, France AP -- Nearly a thousand unmarried women are expected to flock into the Esparros region of the Pyrenees this weekend in search of husbands.

They are coming to a "bachelors' festival" which more than 600 lonely men in the region of southwest France are holding.

Hotels and restaurants for miles around will be swamped. The gendarmes are sending 100 men, 10 radio trucks and a helicopter to handle the crowds.

The village priest of Esparros, who hasn't rung the wedding bells for four years, is looking for plenty of ringing in the coming months.

This village of 240 has 28 bachelors, most of them 30 to 60 years old. It was among them the festival idea began. They got tired of going home alone, having dinner with aged parents, and going to bed early.

Mayor M. Duthu talked it over with the priest. They organized a committee and set aside May 29-30 for the affair.

Both issued official invitations to single women -- the mayor through official channels to all the other town halls of France, the priest to other churches.

Each visitor will receive a white numbered corsage. The first step will be to find the bachelor with the same number on his red boutonniere.

Mass will be celebrated Sunday in the open air as the church is too small. At noon the village officials will hold a wine reception. Then comes "dancing until dawn."

Animals tend to eat more when they have company.

There has been a change in weather. See it sleeted 2 day in Michigan. Rain Rain every where. Circuit Judge Marshall Craig wrote me 2 have it rain. It did. I saw him at Sikeston armery the other nite I wispered 2 him Its rained. some pretty gal kissed me as I came out Don't even know what she was I was watching Deverlera and his orchestra play. I was trying 2 see who the woman harpest was.

Mrs. Frank, home economist, punched me, said I was beautiful. I told her I had been told that before. Doctors call me Marilyn Monroe. My George calls me Sophia Tucker cause I talk so much, Hedda Hopper cause I got so many hats and Millie Walhousen calls me Granma Mosley cause I quilt so much.

Got to finish my Rose Sharon quilt. This is Sun. morn May 22, 1966. I'm to go 2 Bertrand M. E. church with Willette Thomas. Subject of church school lesson was corruption amidst prosperity by Walter E. Hurlenson.

Bertha Collier leader in adult women's class. Read a hymn High in Eternal Sons of Man. Bob Burkes sermon was The Shelter of the Most High. Those in adult women's class last Sunday morn. were Bertha Collier, leader, Tressie Maukin, Delphia Elliott, Eva Gaty, Florence Fenimore.

J. L. Young led church school with Eugenia Bush at piano. I understand Tinsey Benford is still a shut in. They had a wreck. It evidently diden't hurt Bob for he was at church school and church last Sun.

Those in choir last Sun. were Alberta McKinley, Mary Burke, Mrs. Redding, Lois and Linda Miller and Preston McKinley. He is our candlelighter and snuffer. I kissed Rosemary and Lewis as I went out. I really think she is beautiful. So is her mother, Helen Bagby. I saw Mrs. Woods. She is Arlen Millers sister.

I learned that my cousin Kate Allen had gone back 2 Hollywood Calif. 2 live with Ben Allen, her son. She wanted me 2 go live with her said she lived between 2 movie houses. Said we might catch a feller. I told her she hadent caught any either I came very near it tho. I flew back from Calif. by myself. Geo. was in Europe. Dutch Shankle, multi-milliane, kissed me goodby when I went 2 get off plane tired out some nice looking man near by as good looking as my late husband Geo. Sr. said won't you go to Miami Fla. with him. I said no I ain't a going 2 Miami, Fla. with no stranger. I've got relatives in Miami, Fla. I ain't going with no strange man. I bet stewardess were putting him up 2 it. They saw Dutch kiss me. They were just dying laughing. I dident take out guy insurance either. Just got 1 time 2 die. Me and Geo. Sr. swore we'd never ride a plane, but Geo. Jr. made me. Lockered owned that he was on that plan and he was the 1 that sent that arrow 2 the Powers man in Russia he was a spy.

He dident have 2 use it. They put him in jail. He is out left his wife cause she was a drunkard.

Last Wed. I went 2 W.S.C.S. at Bertrand M.E. church. Those present were Bob Burke, Cordia Farmer, Ilene Voelker, Bertha Collier, Clara Peters, Irene Gaty, Elva Gaty and Florence Fenimore, Blanche Miller.

We had a good lunch, business and missionary meeting. Pledges made. Helen Bagby I church treasurer and W.S.C.S. treas. Helen Bagby read minutes of last.

Bob Burke dismissed us with a prayer. Cordia Farmer took me and Blanche Miller. Brot me home last Thurs afternoon. Nanni Beard entertained me in her swank. She has those rooms all over and they really look nice. I want 2 entertain them in my room. I want 2 get a sette 1 chair she said Govt. wouldent let me. Govt. won't let us. Poor devils under dogs have anything comfortable I wanted a mirrow rug and interspring mattress. George Shelby and deruelcourt said we couldent have it.

I've been in their homes. They sure have soft. My dad Judge J. P. Bush always said if I made my bed hard lay on. It so I do I sit up most time.

I've joined the historical society of Charleston, Mo. Lillian Roberts wanted me 2 bring as if I don't belong. Yes I do I belong 2 Democrat club for years. See it meets Mon. nite at Charleston library. The OES Ime. past matron twice. I've sat in chapter when Mary Jane Truman was installed. Harry Truman came in 1 feller setting by me. He could take a pop at Harry Truman I said no you can't look at FBI all around. I can spot them about 6,000 people in Arena St. Louis. I see Mary Jane Truman installed. See 400 people attended Harry Trumans birthday dinner.

Recently I belong 2 W.C.T.U. Royal neighbors and W.S.C.S. We had 6 at home E.C. Club has Thurs. afternoon. They were Betty Wagner, Naomi Beard, Susie Q. Crossing Safety Standards Improved

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- With railroad crossing accidents on the increase, Gov. Warren Hearnes announced yesterday formation of a special committee to improve crossing safety standards.

William R. Clark, chairman of the Public Service Commission, is chairman. Working with him will be:

Judge Charles W. Stock of California, president of the Missouri Association of County Judges, Jack Stapleton Sr., chairman of the Highway Commission; Col. E. I. Mike Hockaday, superintendent of the Highway Patrol; Harold Harvey of St. Louis, general attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railroad; D. M. Schmitt of Kansas City, legislative representative of the railroad brotherhoods; R. Dale Findlay, executive secretary of the state safety council, and Eugene Walsh, the governor's legal secretary.

Schmitt will be vice chairman and Mrs. Karolyn Pond of the PSC legal staff, will serve as attorney for the committee.

"I am alarmed at the increased number of accidents which have occurred at grade crossings in Missouri since the first of the year," Hearnes said.

"Since January, 37 accidents in which 59 persons were killed or maimed have been reported to the railroad safety department of the Public Service Commission.

"Since Friday, seven persons have lost their lives at Kansas City and Montgomery City railroad crossings and we must take action to protect Missourians from these hazards."

The governor said the committee's job will be to find out what is causing the sharp rise in crossing accidents and recommend remedial legislation if necessary.

Revised Bible To Be Used By Catholics

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

BOSTON AP -- Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, has given official Roman Catholic approval to a Protestant version of the Bible.

The move, described by a priest as a "breakthrough for the ecumenical movement," means Roman Catholics everywhere can use the Revised Standard Version of the Oxford annotated Bible.

The approval covers "common usage," such as home Bible reading and study groups, but does not extend to liturgical use.

Cardinal Cushing gave the version his approval, known as an "imprimatur," late last month. The action was announced Wednesday.

An imprimatur is permission from an ecclesiastical authority that a book may be safely read by Roman Catholics without damage to faith or morals.

The revised Oxford version was authorized by the National Council of Churches of the U.S.A. in 1951 and first published by Oxford Press in 1962 for Protestant use.

The Oxford version has been used for the past three years in Bible courses at Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass., in an experiment.

The Rev. W. Van Etting Casey, a faculty member at the Jesuit institution, said the experiment proved successful and helped speed the approval, which he described as an ecumenical breakthrough.

Thus Roman Catholics now can use a Protestant Bible that also contains background material produced by American Protestant scholars.

Cardinal Cushing, a leader in the ecumenical movement, based his approval on the "best objective scholarship," Father Casey said. The recommendation for approval came from a committee of Protestant and Roman Catholic scholars.

The committee included Father Casey, the Rev. Phillip J. King of St. John's Seminary in Boston, who consulted with the Bible's co-editors, Dr. Herbert G. May of the Oberlin School of Theology and Dr. Bruce Metzer of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

None of the Protestant material in the revised Oxford edition has to be eliminated, church officials here said, adding that only 14 notations are required.

The notations concern the Roman Catholic belief that the mother of God, Mary was a virgin.

One such note concerns the version's reference to "brothers" of Jesus. It says the word also was used to indentify persons of other relationships, such as cousins.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

The defenses against sedition were rapidly strengthened. Other Congressional committees joined the House Un-American work of exposing Communists, pro-Communists, and suspected pro - Communists, not only in government service, but in the trades unions, the motion picture industry, the universities and schools, and in the press. The Atomic Energy Act of 1946, in making the most stringent provisions for secrecy, required the Atomic Energy Commission to establish a rigid screening of its own and its contractors' employees for "character, associations and loyalty." In 1947 President Truman promulgated the first formal loyalty program, requiring an investigation of the "loyalty" of all persons entering Federal civil employment and providing for the hearing of charges of disloyalty brought against any in the service. In the same year the Taft-Hartley Act required a non-Communist oath from officers of trades unions.

While the investigating committees had long been exposing suspected Communists in government, it was not until the summer of 1948 that the testimony of Elizabeth Bentley and Whittaker Chambers brought to the public the first tangible evidence that, at one time at any rate, there had existed Soviet espionage or been in a position improperly to influence government policy. This helped to awaken powerful support for the Mundt - Nixon bill, introduced by the Un - American Activities Committee earlier in the year. The Mundt-Nixon bill (not itself enacted, but largely incorporated in the Internal Security Act of 1950) adopted a rather new approach. In 1940 the Voorhis Act had sought to compel subversive organizations to register, to disclose their membership, and reveal their finances and activities. While the Communist Party was the principal target, the word "Communism" was not used, and the act was of no effect. The Mundt - Nixon bill now boldly defined "Communist action" and "Communist front" organizations, required them to register and make disclosure, and empowered the Attorney General to see that they did so. The Communists would thus expose themselves, and render themselves subject to the various disabilities that had been or might be imposed upon "subversives". Reliance on the principle of disclosure was believed preferable to the "outlawry" of Communism, as well as less repugnant to the Constitution. In effect, Communists would be isolated from the rest of the community, making it possible to reduce them to a status of second - class citizenship without, it seemed, imperilling the liberties of the great non - Communist majority. To many this seemed a valid solution for the problem of how to control those who were to destroy them, without in the process risking the destruction of the freedoms themselves.

Guyana Proclaims It's Independence

By PAUL FINCH

GEORGETOWN, Guyana AP -- Floodlights lit up the midnight sky Wednesday night and 50,000 Guyanese cheered as the five-colored flag of Guyana went up in place of the Union Jack, signaling independence for another British colony.

The joyous outburst came after a solemn moment in Queen Elizabeth Park when the British flag was lowered in darkness while bands played "God Save the Queen."

A few persons near the press box shouted, "Down! Down for good!"

Then the lights blazed on, and the bands switched to "Green Land of Guyana" as the new national banner was hoisted. Prime Minister Forbes Burnham wept.

Jagan told newsmen: "I have come, as I promised, to honor independence."

Jagan and his People's Progressive Party are boycotting all ceremonies aside from the flag raising and the opening of the first independent Parliament. His Chicago-born wife, Janet, refused to attend the ceremony Wednesday night.

Brunham's image burned on a fireworks screen at the park after a spectatular display of pyrotechnics.

Georgetown, which appeared sleepy earlier this week, came alive with thousands jamming the streets, dancing, cheering, and drinking rum.

Steel bands and calypso singers entertained in major night spots. The holiday was expected to run through the weekend and Monday, which is a religious day.

Flag raising ceremonies took place simultaneously in every town and village of the new nation on the northern coast of South America. They marked the end of 385 years of British, Dutch and French rule.

Johnson Says U.S. Not Over -Extended

KANSAS CITY AP -- Commander Andy Borg of the Veterans of Foreign Wars said today President Johnson has assured him the U.S. military establishment is not overextended and can cope with any aggression.

Borg had written the President that contradictory statements over foreign policy and doubt as to the real enemy in Viet Nam had caused confusion among Americans. Borg called it "a national neurosis about our foreign policy."

As to the foreign policy committee Johnson replied:

"I have noted and I shall consider further your suggestions about bringing to bear distinguished men from outside the government to examine and make recommendations about our foreign policy. We are undertaking steps in this direction which, I trust, will commend themselves to you when they are announced."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

No Man is an island, entire of itself;
—John Donne

This oft quoted phrase by John Donne is typical of one of his great themes in life, man's relation to his fellow man. An English poet, theologian and preacher, Donne had a faith that would not permit him to take an oath which probably kept him from getting his degree at Oxford University. He studied law at Lincoln Inn, then the Humanities. Noting his brilliance, King James I urged him to enter the Anglican clergy. He had been raised a Catholic. After much thought and years of theological study Donne entered the Anglican church in 1615. He was made chaplain to the King, and divinity reader at Lincoln Inn. In 1626 he became dean of St. Paul's Cathedral. He preached to the King and nobility, but was also popular with the people. In a time of great preachers Donne's sermons were unexcelled. They are still read today and he has perhaps reached his greatest acclaim in the Twentieth Century.

Buying Beef For Your Home Freezer

If you own a home freezer, chances are you've thought about stocking it with beef. Whether you plan to buy several cuts, a quarter, or a whole carcass, there are several factors to consider if you want to be sure of getting the best buy for your money.

One way to be sure is to let the U.S. Department of Agriculture help. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service offers a grading program which tells you not only the quality of the beef you buy, but also the amount of meat you can expect to get from an individual carcass.

Most consumers are familiar with USDA's quality grades for beef. The shield-shaped grade mark is an excellent guide to the quality of the beef you buy.

If you want tender, juicy, flavorful meat, it is best to freeze only high-quality beef. This is why U.S. Choice, the most popular grade of beef, is also widely used in home freezing.

In addition to grading for quality, C&MS also grades beef for yield. The yield grades, which are used mainly by packers and suppliers, measure the amount of usable meat in a carcass or wholesale cut. There are five numerical grades ranging from yield grade 1, which marks carcasses of the highest yield, to number 5, found on carcasses of the lowest yield.

Under ordinary circumstances, as consumers, you do not have to be concerned with yield grades. Their benefit, unlike the quality grades, reaches you indirectly through their use as a pricing tool. But if you buy beef in carcass or wholesale form, yield grades can help you get more beef for your money.

The higher-yield carcasses may cost a little more, but there will be more usable meat--meatier cuts -- in a No. 1 or No. 2 carcass than in No. 5 of the same quality grade.

For example, if you buy 650 pound carcass, each higher yield grade will give you at least 20 more pounds of boneless meat. There are similar differences between wholesale cuts and quarters of beef.

If you plan to buy part of a carcass, you should decide whether you want to get more steaks and roasts or more stewing and ground meat. A hindquarter gives you more steaks -- porterhouse, club, and T-bone -- and oven roasts. The forequarter will contain more cuts, such as those from the chuck, which must be pot roasted or made into ground and stew meat.

Another factor to consider is cost. Because they contain more desirable cuts, hindquarters generally cost several cents per pound more than forequarters of the same grade.

As a prospective buyer, you should also consider the cutting and processing of the meat. Make sure the meat is packaged in portions which fit the size of your family or which will be easy to cook. Most dealers will cut the meat to suit your needs.

Supermarket specials on particular cuts also offer a good way to stock your freezer with the family's favorites. Buying meat this way assures you of getting only the cuts you prefer.

Home freezers are designed to save money on grocery bills by allowing you to stock up on foods when supplies are plentiful and prices favorable.

But buying beef in such cuts or of such quality that do not meet your family's preference can hardly be called money-saving.

This is a pitfall which a consumer encounters when he buys beef in a form with which he is unfamiliar. In addition there may be hidden dangers -- disreputable dealers -- which make the buying difficult.

The majority of firms are reputable in their dealings with customers and in their advertising. However, there are some who will take advantage of a customer who lacks a knowledge of the product he is buying.

Misrepresentation and "bait and switch" advertising are two of the most common practices the buyer must watch. Misrepresentation may include leading the buyer to believe he is buying a specific USDA grade, while, in fact, supplying him with meat from a lower grade animal or meat which has not been graded at all. Or, the buyer might receive meat from the forequarter instead of the hindquarter he thought he was buying.

"Bait and switch" advertising refers to the practice of advertising meat at a price designed to attract customers and then switching the customer to a higher priced meat.

Don't be taken in by advertising which offers "something for nothing." No dealer can afford to give beef away, and reputable ones will not pretend to do so.

To be sure, look for the Federal grade mark on the meat itself. The grade mark is your assurance that the beef will be the quality you want, and that you are getting real value for the price you pay.

Ground Lamb Blends Well With Carrots

Take a pound and a half of ground lamb and mix with grated carrots and a few other ingredients. Result? Some meat patties which offer about as economical a main dish as can be found.

This is a quick dish to prepare on days when there's a rush. Not only is the mixing time quick, says Reba Staggs, meat expert, but so is broiling time with six to eight minutes on each side.

Lamb Thrifties

1½ pounds ground lamb
1 cup grated raw carrots
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons grated onion

Combine all ingredients and shape into patties. Set regulator for broiling. Place patties on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so the tops of the patties are 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil 5 to 7 minutes on each side. 6 servings.

Inviting Attack

By
Congressmen
Craig Homer,
California

Up to 149 million American lives can be lost, according to testimony in House Armed Services files, unless surprise nuclear attack upon the United States is deterred.

With a national population of 195 million people, this means you have a 76.4% chance of being one of those fatalities.

That is precisely the stake-- your life-- you have on a bet that the President and the Secretary of Defense know what they are doing and are correctly answering the questions: "What does it take to deter the Soviets?" and " Will we have it after the cutbacks are made?"

The "cut backs" are those involved in the reported plans of the President and the Secretary of Defense to materially reduce the strategic megatonnage of the United States.

They have announced 425 manned bombers will be scraped. At an average payload of 40 MT per aircraft, 17,000 megatons of nuclear firepower will be eliminated, to reduce by 59 5% our present capacity to retaliate.

To partially offset this reduction, they plan, by 1971, to add 210 new bombers and 360 new missiles to the strategic forces. If these carry the same average payloads as existing weapons, the 17,000 megaton reduction will be offset by a total of 8,760 megatons by 1971.

On this basis the new, 1971, level of our strategic megatonnage will be 71% of what it is today.

Note, with extreme caution, this calculation generously assumes the yet undesigned replacement bombers will actually carry the same average payloads as existing weapons. They are to be the FB111, a variant of the TFX fighter aircraft still under development.

Retired SAC Commander, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, says of the FB111. "this will be inadequate to do the job for several reasons . . . insufficient ranges, insufficient size. It is just not big enough."

The Secretary of Defense estimated earlier this year that the present superiority of United States strategic forces over the Soviet Union's exceeds 3 or 4 to 1."

Thus, at its most generous interpretation, the proposed cutback will reduce this ratio to something around 2 or 3 to 1.

If General LeMay is correct and the FB111 proves inadequate and its megatonnage unavailable, the ratio will slip to between 1.25 and 1.66 to 1.

It is clear that the President and the Secretary of Defense still see a need for U.S. strategic retaliatory forces to deter Soviet surprise attack. Otherwise they would simply eliminate them rather than reduce them.

Marxist-Leninist dogma compels Soviet leaders to carry forward a program of world domination. It charges them, further, to carry it forward with maximum haste, utilizing the highest degree of force which can be employed without provoking retaliatory action that would impose unacceptable damage on the communist homeland and base of power. If they do not do so, they are guilty of the communist "sin" of "deviation" from dogma.

The principal -- perhaps the only -- reason for U. S. Strategic forces is to have the capability to impose unacceptable damage on the communist homeland which, in fact, deters communist leaders from a dogmatic decision to strike us to expedite the program of world domination. Our strategic forces are now realistically based on an understanding of this communist doctrine and are in sensible response to it.

Because our strategic nuclear striking forces are superior to those of the Soviets, they provide an effective major war deterrent that guards not only our country but the free world. The United States is a roadblock to communist domination.

Without this major war deterrent, we would never have been able to encircle Russia with military bases, fight a limited war in Korea, provide an effective airlift to Berlin when the Reds cut off access to that city, maintain our troops in Europe, blockade Cuba, help the Chinese Nationalists at Quemoy and act effectively in the Vietnam situation. The Soviets did not intervene because of the supremacy in strategic nuclear striking power of the United States. That was, and is, the only reason. Weaken or destroy that supremacy and what is there to prevent the Soviets from having a free hand everywhere?

Plans to reduce the strategic forces of the United States by the elimination of hundreds of nuclear bomb-carrying aircraft have set Kremlin computers whirling.

If it is determined that, at a certain point, the cutbacks in our strategic retaliatory capability will weaken us so that we cannot hurt them to the point of unacceptability, then communist doctrine requires Soviet leaders to launch, at that point, and explosive attack against us to remove the United States as a roadblock to communist domination.

The Soviets tend to accept rather large damage factors before they classify them as unacceptable. In World War II they readily accepted 25 million human fatalities and the destruction of 40% of their industrial capacity without considering the combined loss "unacceptable" damage.

The President has never claimed expertise in the area of assessing strategic force capabilities and vulnerabilities. And the judgment and advice of the Secretary of State is no more infallible now than in the past, when his judgment has at times proved fallible.

It has not been revealed how our President and the Secretary of Defense arrived at the conclusion that the proposed cutbacks will not trigger a Soviet surprise Sunday punch. Far better assurances are needed than have been given that they proceed with wisdom.

The United States is a government "of, by and for" the people. It is not, supposedly, a dictatorship. We Americans have a right to know the facts and participate in decisions which control our national and individual survival.

There is a right to know the answers to the many questions posed by the proposed cutbacks so that their validity can be checked and rechecked.

Unless necessary information is furnished so that independent judgements can be made, the only safe assumption is that the projected lowering of present United States strategic capabilities is deadly risky business, to be opposed vigorously.

The joy of the Lord is your strength. —(Neh 8:10)

As we approach our senior years, we should continue to enjoy the breath in us that God has given, and to live happily and joyously. We too are children of God, and when our minds are filled with the thought of happy life is for living then we refuse to give way to negative opinions or appearances. Through prayer we keep in tune with the healing power of God.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Every day my husband grabs the newspaper before I do. He reads only two things -- the sports page and your column. This takes about 15 minutes.

But he doesn't hand the paper over when he has finished reading it. No siree. He spends another 15 minutes drawing moustaches on all the pictures -- then he puts pipes in all the mouths. It makes me boil to have to reach a paper after he has marked it up.

Just once I'd like to see what you look like without a moustache and a pipe, Ann. Say something to the big nut. -- H.L.A.

Dear H.L.A.: I have nothing to say to him but I DO have something to say to you: Order a second subscription. Enjoy the paper with your coffee and let him decorate his foolish head off.

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago an Army buddy of my husband's telephoned to say he is now a patient in the veteran's hospital 10 miles from here. He said he had a weekend pass and asked if he could come to our house. I agree, thinking it would be a pleasant treat.

Well, it has been a series of drunken orgies every weekend since January. I told my husband that I cannot stand it anymore and he said, "Shut up. This is my house, too."

Our three children are ashamed to have guests over and I am a nervous wreck. Last weekend the men got so bombed they couldn't make the stairs. I heard them falling down and getting up all night long. This morning I found them asleep on the floor.

My husband used to enjoy a few quiet beers but he never got drunk until this friend showed up. Please tell me what to do. -- LOST WEEKENDS

Dear Lost: Go to the director of the veteran's hospital. Ask to speak to the doctor in charge of your husband's friend. Describe the weekends.

When the patient is restricted to the hospital (as he surely will be) everyone will be a lot better off.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter who is a senior in college became engaged to a young sailor. Harvey is assigned to a ship at a nearby naval base.

When Harvey is in port, he sleeps on a cot in the basement and keeps his civilian clothes in our closet. I like Harvey but I don't think he ought to be sleeping here weekends and cluttering up our closets with his clothes.

My wife, daughter and I have been having some bitter arguments over this. We all read your column and think you are a fair - minded person. Please settle it. -- RICHIE

Dear Rich: You are bucking the strongest union in the world -- a wife and daughter.

I assume Harvey is sleeping on that cot -- by himself. Since he is going to be a member of the family soon, I say it's OK to let him spend occasional weekends at your home and save the cost of a hotel room.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Morehouse Rural Telephone Customers to Get Direct Distance Dialing, Sunday, June 5

Direct Distance Dialing is the fastest, most convenient way to place station-to-station Long Distance calls. It's easy, too. Here's how Morehouse rural customers will dial Long Distance station-to-station calls beginning Sunday, June 5.

JUST DIAL THE DIGIT "1" FOLLOWED BY THE AREA CODE AND TELEPHONE NUMBER

For Example: To Call Chicago, KLondike 7-2098

Dial	"1" (DDD Code)	312 (Area Code)	KL (Two Letters)	7-2098 (Five Figures)

The operator will come on the line and ask what telephone number you are calling from. Tell her and, in seconds, you're talking Long Distance.

If you reach a wrong number, find out the telephone number and city you reached. Hang up and dial "operator" immediately. She will see that you are not charged for the call.

Commencement Held At Charleston High

CHARLESTON -- Dr. James E. Hart, professor of education, University of Missouri, was the main speaker at commencement exercises for 144 graduating Charleston High School seniors last night.

Dr. Hart told the seniors that they must be selfish in their aims and desires in order to get what they want out of life and keep it. He said America is the richest country in the world but in order for us to keep it we must see that other countries share in our riches and prosperity for they see what we have and want to know why they can't have it too.

The students must be selfish and get all of the knowledge they can so that they can help other people. Dr. Hart said that the University of Missouri had one of the finest libraries yet so many students go in there and never take advantage of all the wisdom and knowledge of men before them. "How many would go into a jewelry store and pick up a 10¢ ring if they had their choice of anything in the store" asked Dr. Hart.

Car-Train Crash Kills Two Babies

MALDEN -- Two small children, Paula, age three and Carl, three months, children of Mrs. Patsy Marcell Johnson, were killed instantly, and their mother is still in serious condition in the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital, Kennett, following a train - car collision Thursday.

The accident happened three and one-half miles west of Malden, with the train said to have been traveling at a speed of about 60 miles per hour. State trooper Joe Matthews, who investigated the accident, stated the accident happened on a gravel road, when Mrs. Johnson, 23, wife of Robert Lee Johnson, failed to see the train and her 1959 Plymouth station wagon was struck broadside.

The impact carried the car 80 feet, and was completely demolished. The engineer of the train was Bernard Meyers, 57, Cape Girardeau, who claimed the vision was clear and the approaching car had plenty of time to stop.

The bodies of the two children were taken to the Landess Funeral Home, and the Boyd Funeral Home, both in Malden.

Completion of Montgomery Manslaughter Trial In Sight

Montgomery Remains Cool In Testimony

Q. -- Mr. (Don) Owens (Mr. Montgomery's attorney) did not ask you, but I will. Are you or are you not a deacon in your church?

A. -- In my church when you become a deacon you remain a deacon . . . I served for three years . . . I would be listed as an inactive deacon . . .

Q. -- Is your minister here with you, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- We do not have a minister at this time . . .

Q. -- Is your prior minister not over here with you?

A. -- Yes, he is.

Q. -- What's his name?

A. -- The Rev. Ed Watson.

Q. -- Did he come with you, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, he lives in Marshall, Texas.

Q. -- Did he come with you, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, I believe he came the second day.

Q. -- You were at one time a deacon in church?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Would you tell a lie under oath, Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, sir, not under oath and under no circumstances.

Q. -- What is your occupation, Mr. Montgomery.

A. -- I'm self employed really. . . I don't have a particular occupation . . It's sort of diversified investments. . .

Q. -- Just what is your occupation?

A. -- Work.

Q. -- When you made out your voter's registration (in Sikeston, Mo.) what occupation did you give?

A. -- I don't remember. . . It probably was put down for me.

Q. -- I believe it says "banker." Would that be an inaccuracy?

A. -- I would say it very well could be banker.

Q. -- You testified about a document (bill for legal fees) in regard to a Mr. (Charles) Black (an attorney)?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Was there a check for services rendered?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- What was the amount of that check?

A. -- $500. . .

Q. -- I believe you testified you were chained to the bed at John Gaston Hospital (after the wreck)?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- With the rest of the statements is that just as true? as everything else you are saying?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- What attorneys were representing you on that day (the morning after the wreck)?

A. -- At that particular time, I had not hired an attorney.

Q. -- Isn-t it a fact that shortly after you were transferred to Baptist Hospital that Mr. Black was called and started representing you?

A. -- . . . I believe Mr. Black, a friend of mine, took it upon himself to find out the facts of what happened. Who the driver of the car was. . . I believe he was interested in that . . . .

A. -- Is it a fact (that you are saying) Mr. Black, on his own started out that day and did take statements from witnesses?

A. -- I guess he did. . . .

Q. -- Was Mr. Black working with John M. Heiskell, our former Shelby County attorney general, in representing you?

A. -- Yes, I believe he was. Yes, sir. . . .

Q. -- Do you know Mr. Tom Mitchell?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Did he ever represent you?

A. -- Yes.

Q. -- Do you know John Hooker (Nashville attorney who is the father of John Jay Hooker Jr., candidate)?

A. I don't know him. . Yes, I believe he did (represent me)?

Under Mr. Dwyer's questioning, Mr. Montgomery said he had had eight drinks between noon on Oct. 13, 1959, and 1:45 a.m. Oct. 14, 1959, but was not intoxicated when he, Mrs. Sells and Miss Bobbie L. Vance got into his car.

Q. You heard Miss Vance testify that you told Mrs. Sells to run the traffic lights:

A. Yes, I heard her.

Q. Do you deny that statement?

A. Absolutely!

Q. Do you know the sheriff of Sikeston, Mo., (Scott County)?

A. John Dennis. Yes, sir.

Q. He's that likeable fellow in the back of the courtroom?

A. He's in the back of the room.

Q. I think you are in business with him?

A. We have some land together. . . .

Q. You say Mrs. Sells was driving and she did nothing to cause you in any way to become excited?

A. She was driving in an orderly manner.

Q. You were drowsy at this time?

A. Yes. . . .

Q. If she were speeding you would have stopped the car?

A. Yes, if there had been anything wrong I would have. .

Q. I'll ask you if you recall telling her to go through the light at Fourth (and Monroe)?

A. Absolutely not!

Q. Do you deny that?

A. Yes. . . .

Q. Are you saying there is a possibility you told her to go through the light (at Monroe and Fourth)?

A. She may have asked. . .

Q. I'm asking you the questions, Mr. Montgomery! You give me an answer, then you can explain. Do you or don't you deny telling her to go through the light?

A. I believe she testified she started to brake the car. . . I do not ever remember this. That lady did not operate that car in any way in violation of the law. . .

Mr. Montgomery said he "very well could have been" dozing in the block before reaching the fatal intersection at Monroe and Wellington because he did not remember anything immediately before the crash. He earlier testified that Mrs. Sells was driving because she was going to Miss Vance's apartment to spend the night and he did not know the way to the apartment.

Joel Montgomery on Witness Stand

Surprise Witness Says Other Car Struck Montgomerys

MEMPHIS, Tenn. -- With only a few witnesses remaining, conclusion was expected soon in the involuntary manslaughter trial of a Missouri banker and a pretty Memphis divorcee, Joel Montgomery of Sikeston, Mo., and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells.

Attorneys were to begin their final arguments after the last few defense witnesses appeared this morning and the jury was expected to get the case by evening.

A surprise defense witness for Joel A. Montgomery testified yesterday that Miss Alice K. Gassaway had been drinking and ran a red light when her car struck Mr. Montgomery's.

Roy Turner, 29, of 1521 Russwood Road, a steamfitter, said he was following Miss Gassaway's car and saw the crash that killed Miss Gassaway's passenger, Miss Glenda Wiles, on Oct. 14, 1959.

During cross - examination, Exec. Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert K. Dwyer fired question after question at Mr. Turner as to his motives for testifying.

Earlier, Mr. Montgomery had testified that his co-defendant, Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, was not operating his car in any way which would excite me or be dangerous."

Mr. Dwyer hammered at the testimony on cross-examination.

Mr. Turner said he had been with Miss Gassaway and Miss Wiles at the VFW Club at 616 Washington, that Miss Gassaway had several drinks from a bottle of vodka and that she was speeding and ran two red lights before running the red light at Wellington and Monroe, where the accident happened.

"Since I had been drinking that night, I wanted to stop (at the accident) and I didn't want to stop, so I turned right (on Monroe and kept going," Mr. Turner said when questioned defense attorney Don G. Owens.

Questioned by Mr. Dwyer, Mr. Turner said he did not contact anyone about what he saw until he got in touch with Mr. Owens in late February of this year.

"What caused you to call Mr. Owens in late February?" Mr. Dwyer asked heatedly.

"Maybe my conscience got a little better," Mr. Turner said.

Mr. Turner said he had never contacted police, the attorney general's office or Mrs. Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, either before Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960 or this trial.

"Are you being paid anything for coming up here?" Mr. Dwyer asked.

"No, sir!"

Mr. Dwyer asked, "After you saw Mr. Montgomery coming back here (from Sikeston, Mo., after a long extradition fight), you decided to call Mr. Don Owens and say you wanted to testify?"

"I'm just trying to tell what Mr. Turner said.

Mr. Dwyer hammered at the testimony on cross-examination.

Mr. Turner said he had been with Miss Gassaway and Miss Wiles at the VFW Club at 616 Washington, that Miss Gassaway had several drinks from a bottle of vodka and that she was speeding and ran two red lights before running the red light at Wellington and Monroe, where the accident happened.

"Since I had been drinking that night, I wanted to stop (at the accident) and I didn't want to stop, so I turned right (on Monroe and kept going," Mr. Turner said when questioned defense attorney Don G. Owens.

Questioned by Mr. Dwyer, Mr. Turner said he did not contact anyone about what he saw until he got in touch with Mr. Owens in late February of this year.

"What caused you to call Mr. Owens in late February?" Mr. Dwyer asked heatedly.

"Maybe my conscience got a little better," Mr. Turner said.

Mr. Turner said he had never contacted police, the attorney general's office or Mrs. Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, either before Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960 or this trial.

"Are you being paid anything for coming up here?" Mr. Dwyer asked.

"No, sir!"

Mr. Dwyer asked, "After you saw Mr. Montgomery coming back here (from Sikeston, Mo., after a long extradition fight), you decided to call Mr. Don Owens and say you wanted to testify?"

"I'm just trying to tell what Mr. Turner said.

Sikeston Graduation Set For Tonight

Graduation exercises for Sikeston High School, for the 229 seniors begins tonight at 7 p.m. The 65th commencement program will be held outdoors at the band shell.

Principal speakers will be student addresses by Michael Harber, entitled, "Truthful"; Carol Werneck on, "Thoughtful," Phillip Barkett, Jr. on "Tireless", and Kay Walton on "Thankful."

The musical program will be a selection by the senior inner choir, titled, "I'll Walk With God," with Miss Judith Matthews accompanist. The concert choir will give two selections, "Let Us break Bread Together," and "I Will Lift Mine Eyes," with Miss Judith Matthews at the piano.

The honor awards will be given by high school principal, Roger Sherman, who will be presented by Miss Martha Bess. The presentation of the senior class will be made by Supt. Lynn Twitty, who will be presented by Senior Gary Williams.

The senior diplomas will be awarded by Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the school board, who will be presented by Senior Mike Guess.

The benediction will be given by Senior Eugene Hitt, followed by the recessional of "Red and Black" by the Sophomore Band.

At each of the 130,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery, a tiny specially placed American flag flutters for Memorial Day.

People come by the hundreds to lay wreaths--at the grave of a relative, a friend or an admired hero -- most among groups taking turns conducting brief ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

So it has been on Memorial Day year after year, in somewhat similar fashion since 1868. Observances are held at the nation's other 84 national cemeteries, but the Memorial Day focus is on Arlington.

That's because its rolling hills contain the bodies of more noted Americans than any other. They lie among the thousands who won no acclaim nor medals.

A book published on this Memorial Day, "Arlington, Monument to Heroes," recites the names and deeds of many of the most illustrious dead. And it gives in up-to-date detail the history of the hallowed cemetery, taking the reader on a kind of walking tour.

The book is by John V. Hinkel, a native of Washington and retired Army Reserve colonel who has long been a student of the lore of the city.

This Memorial Day will attract visitors to the grave of President John F. Kennedy. And Hinkel has a special chapter on this most recent major addition to the cemetery. He describes the daily line of "reverent pilgrims" which flow past "like a river."

Not far away is the grave of Pvt. J. F. Kennedy, who died May 16, 1864 and one of the first buried in Arlington.

Hinkel writes it is ironic that this most revered of cemeteries for American fighting men became a burial place because of an act of spite.

It involved the Custis-Lee mansion which overlooks President Kennedy's grave. That imposing home and land George Washington once owned was built in 1802 by his adopted son, George Washington Parke Custis, to house the first president's relics.

Mary Anne Custis, his daughter, married Robert E. Lee and lived with him there until Lee went off to command the Confederate forces in the Civil War.

The Army quartermaster general in 1862 was Montgomery Meigs, a former Southerner who, Hinkel writes, "kept his most violent diatribes for his own previous commander -- Robert E. Lee."

Meigs arranged for the Army to take over the mansion and its sprawling acres and he set out to make uninhabitable the house where Lee had lived. Meigs ordered its rose garden turned into a burial ground for soldiers.

The L-shaped row of graves Meigs ordered still remains. So do two other Meigs creations--the tomb of the unknown dead of the War Between the States with the remains of 2,111 unidentified Union soldiers and the Temple of Fame, a memorial to George Washington and to 11 Union leaders.

Meigs himself is buried at Arlington.

The government had seized the mansion and its grounds for $26,800 because neither Lee nor his wife could come forth to pay the taxes on it personally as required by the law. The Supreme Court 20 years later voided this and Custis Lee gave title to the government for $150,000.

Hinkel notes another irony of Arlington history: On the first Memorial Day in 1868 -- it was called Decoration Day -- Southern women were curtly refused permission to place flowers on Confederate graves. Union graves were covered with flowers.

"That night there was a blustery wind --and in the report, as report has it," Hinkel wrote, "the sentries found the Confederate graves buried under flowers blown from the Union graves."

Hinkel recounts in capsule the deeds of many of the noted men and women who lie among the "Serried ranks on the quiet green slopes of Arlington."

He said in addition to the unknowns at the tomb, there are nearly 5,000 other unknowns buried in Arlington.

The roll call of famous generals and admirals who lie in Arlington stretches back through all of America's wars to revolutionary days.

NEEDED: REAPPRAISAL OF I-55 CONSTRUCTION

It is disappointing to learn that completion of Missouri's interstate highway construction will likely be delayed beyond the 1972 target date.

We hope that the Congress will find the money necessary to bring about the end to construction by the deadline. It certainly can find funds for a myriad of other prospects of considerably less merit.

Our concern lies with the entire network of interstate highways over the state, because they all are important, but necessarily it is more direct with regard to Interstate 55 passing along our outskirts.

The last section of this highway is not scheduled for completion until the last year of the program -- 1972 -- and that section as we understand it is in Cape and Perry counties.

It now appears that this link with those Interstate 55 sections that will creep southward in the next few years, and the completed section ending now at Fruitland, will be some months or years beyond 1972.

It is our feeling that the State Highway Commission should re-evaluate the schedule of construction and see if completion between Fruitland and St. Louis County cannot be advanced.

We call to the commission's attention the fact that millions of dollars in revenue is being lost to Missouri -- and highway dollars are included in that revenue -- by purchasing power that now travels to Memphis, Tenn., instead of St. Louis.

The building of the interstate to the south -- only 40 miles remains uncompleted between Fruitland and Memphis -- has made the Tennessee city as close or closer to Missourians than is St. Louis.

Thousands of people who once were business oriented to St. Louis are now going to Memphis because it is easier and quicker to reach than Missouri's major city. St. Louis today is only a few minutes closer to Cape Girardeau than is Memphis, and many from here are turning to the Tennessee city.

Who wants to fight the traffic to St. Louis when it is so much easier to go elsewhere?

The condition of Missouri's roads -- the curves and hills and the backed up traffic behind trucks and the terrible four lanes from Festus into St. Louis -- long ago turned traffic from the southeast part of the state over into Illinois.

Few want to face the danger inherent in Highway 61, and the horrible road they must travel. They either cross the bridge in Cape Girardeau or go to Perryville and then cross at the Chester, Ill., bridge

Those going to Columbia or Kansas City now go by way of Illinois, ridiculous as it seems, because the State Highway Commission gave priority to the southward advance of I-55 instead of the north. Its a longer way around, but a shorter trip because of the appalling Missouri roads.

No other part of the state is so handicapped in its roads to St. Louis and into the central part of Missouri as is the southeastern section.

It is our feeling that the State Highway Commission would be well disposed to take a new look at this regrettable situation and reappraise its interstate construction schedule on a more equitable priority basis.

If it doesn't, the orientation of business to Tennessee will become fixed to the tune of millions of dollars in lost revenue not only for commercial interests, but for the state and highway system as well.

In small jars, gleaming with gold ornamentation for status impact, are foumulas which will at least tone down tell-tale age lines in time for a man of importance to make his speech, a television appearance, or an appointment with a youth-conscious client.

Eye pads, another innovation for men, are said to be helpful in draining away the strain of wee hours in time for an alert and saintly appearance at the board meeting the morning after. The maker suggests their use after exposure to smoke-filled rooms and reading too much legal fine print.

Those fashion iconoclasts, today's young males who have refused to equate high style and scents with effeminacy, have paved the way for this boon is the pretty-up business during the past three years.

Once largely limited to producing shaving soaps and astringents, 156 firms, or 30 per cent more than last year-now turn out hundreds of virile-looking red, brown, black with gold packages containing jars, bottles, atomizers, and tubes that moisturize, lubricate, mentholate and emulsify with such ingredients as lanolin, silicone, vitamins, estrogen, albumen, gelatin, seseme, and sharks' oil.

Altogethe. there now are more than 303 different fragrance sold either as colognes or after-shave lotions usually with lusty names inspired by the rugged outdoors or the sea.

Today the super-immaculate man can begin his morning ablutions with a bath friction that has the tingling effect of a sauna; shampoo his locks with a soap on a rope; apply bathpowder with his brass knuckles puff; shave over a translucent foam that lets him see where the most bristles are; then proceed to astringents, protective creams, deodorants; nongreasy hair oils, hand cream, and colognes. He can hold up the bathroom even longer than a woman.

Though youth pioneered as toiletries customers, the older man in ever-growing competition with youth in business and romance is unabashedly shoving his way to the front of cosmetics counter.

Special lures for him are blemish mark-outs which, when applied subtly, lighten dark circles; as well as those soothing eyepads; and five to 10-minute face masks which, like a transparent coating of egg whites lifts sagging face muscles and sagging morale.

"My customers are smart men. They hold top jobs and plan to hang onto them." a merchandise manager said of his facial mask customers. "He knows he can replace his Brooks Brothers suit any day but not his face."

LIVING PROOF

Long recognized as some of the finest farming lands in the nation, it's no accident that the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta is also the most heavily protected cropland in the world. The crop protection of the modern farmer -- pesticides -- has been beneficially used there since 1924. Contrary to dire predictions of doomsaying conservationists, crop-spraying actually has increased wildlife in the Delta.

Today counties with open turkey seasons have almost doubled. In 1946, deer were legal in only a few counties. As late as '53 the legal kill of bucks was only 2,300. Population increases began about '46, skyrocketed more than 20 per cent yearly; the '63 kill is estimated at more than 18,000. Doves, rabbits and squirrels were never more abundant and fishing is unsurpassed.

This living evidence of increases in both crop production and game has understandably made farmers resentful of pesticide scare-talk. Facts of the Mississippi rebirth and abundance deny that wildlife populations are destroyed by pesticide programs.

Insect-control programs help produce higher cotton yields per acre, thereby allowing more land to be planted in soybeans, oats, wheat and soil-conservation programs that produce food and cover for game.

Modern farming practices are responsible for an increase in wildlife, longer open seasons and generously increased bag limits. Hunters and farmers would do well to understand and use these facts when the next pesticide with-hunt comes along.

GUILTY AS CHARGED?

Juvenile officers in Hawthorne, California have an anonymous letter that has some sound advice for all teenagers. The letter speaks for itself:

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment.

"The world does not owe you a living.

"Your city does not owe you amusements.

"You owe the world something!

"You owe it your time and energy, and your talents, so that no one will be at war, or in poverty, or sick and lonely, again.

"In plain, simple words, grow up!

"Develop a back-bone instead of a wish-bone!

"Your parents are probably tired of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating and denying themselves needed comforts for your every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality and thinking."

This letter may be a bit harsh in that it seems to take an indiscriminate potshot at all teenagers. No one age group is all bad or all good.

So, the teenager who is a problem to very few and who shows all the tendencies of becoming a top rate citizen is not a candidate for such a letter.

Show this letter to a teenager. Then ask him or her to answer honestly if he or she is guilty of any of the charges in the letter.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Of all the political races in the USA, perhaps the most opposite competitors are running for congress from the tobacco capitals of North Carolina -- Smith Bagley, millionaire grandson of the late R. J. Reynolds of Reynolds tobacco, and Nick Galinfianakis, son of a Greek immigrant.

Bagley, aged 31, is tall, handsome, a recent arrival from California, who says that he wants to go to congress to meet and date Jackie Kennedy.

He has adopted some of JFK's campaign techniques, is spending heavily on advertising, will probably run up a total bill of $100,000.

Bagley has considerable support from conservatives and segregationists, though he has divorced himself from the right wing and emphasized his help in securing scholarships for Negro students.

Nick Galinfianakis, the no. 1 candidate running against Bagley, is a young lawyer, part-time Duke University professor, and a member of the North Carolina legislature.

Galinfianakis says he got into politics when some of his friends raised $18 and filed his name as a candidate for the legislature.

"With a name as monstrous as mine, I thought it was a joke. I didn't think anyone would vote for a name like mine," says Galinfianakis.

"However, my father was born in Crete and had a sense of gratitude toward this country. He used to run water out of the spigot and say, 'look at the clean water that we have to drink. We couldn't get that back in Greece.' My father ran a little hot dog stand, and he felt a deep obligation to this country. I feel that in the legislature I've been discharging his obligation -- and mine."

There are two other candidates in the race, Harold Thomerson, assistant to retiring Rep. Ralph Scott, a conservative; and State Senator William Wood, a North Carolina liberal, both competent men. Chief political spotlight, however, has been focused on Bagley and Galinfianakis.

This race for congress is to represent the two tobaco capitals of the world. Bagley lives in Winston - Salem, the home of Reynolds Tobacco, Galinfianakis lives in Durham, the home of Liggett & Myers and American Tobacco, founded by Washington Duke of Bull Durham and Duke's Mixture. Essentially it's a conservative district, but the young Greek-American lawyer, who heads several important subcommittees in the North Carolina legislature, is given a chance of winning against the Scion of tobacco millions.

ANOTHER GREEK-AMERICAN

There is an interesting contrast between Galinfianakis on the East Coast and George Christopher on the West Coast. Christopher, a dairyman born in Greece, became mayor of San Francisco, now aspires to be governor of California.

Some people criticize me for digging back into Christopher's record to report that in 1940 he pleaded guilty to exacting kickbacks from dairy farmers and was fined $5,000 and given two years suspended sentence; also that he pleaded guilty in 1944 to selling watered milk and inferior "manufacturing" cream for Grade A cream. Personally, I believe that when a man is running for high office, the public has a right to know all of his record, especially when it involves criminal convictions.

However, regardless of the 1940-1944 record, it is now revealed that Christopher's dairy as late as 1964 was fined $8,000 by the state of California for paying kickbacks in San Mateo county.

The kickbacks were paid to retailers to expand the Christopher dairy farms milk market.

When the state of California prosecuted in superior court, the dairy agreed to a stipulation whereby it was fined $8,000 and put on probation for one year. The dairy was charged with 16 counts, for which the maximum fine on each count was $500. In other words, Christopher paid the maximum fine --$8,000.

Christopher owns 99 per cent of the stock in the Christopher farms dairy and is chairman of the board. At the time he was fined in the summer of 1964, Mitchell Davis, his brother-in-law, was president of the company and Christopher in talking to California Agriculture Department officials indicated that Davis would be dropped because of negligence, that he, Christopher, did not know about the kickbacks. However, current records show that Davis is still president.

Note -- W. F. O'Keefe, San Francisco business executive who was a close personal friend and adviser to Christopher during his campaign for mayor and part of his term, states: "Christopher 'divorced' himself from the dairy during his eight years in office by appointing his brother-in-law, Mickey Davis, as 'president.' This was a local standing joke. Detailed reports of the operation of the dairy were delivered to Christopher's home each night for his inspection. Mickey Davis was just a figurehead. Christopher knew every customer and his daily purchases. There is no question about the 'not too subtle' pressures exerted upon milk purchasers during his tenure as mayor."

HIGH TIDE OF DELINQUENCY

Following the summer riots -- in which the overwhelming number of participants were young people -- the President requested the FBI to investigate. Director J. Edgar Hoover has now made his report, and it is a sobering document.

These riots, which took place in a number of northern cities and in resort towns on the eastern and western seaboards, were not race riots and they were not the work of extremist organizations. The victims, Mr. Hoover points out, included both Negro and white storeowners. Back of the riots, he continues, is "the breakdown of respect for law and order among young people." And this, in part, he ascribes to "an immunity to public exposure for serious offense and often the absence of punishment of any kind." To quote him once more, the riots were "not the innocent exuberance of youth but were persistent, prolonged and violent."

In other words, the riots represented a high tide in the grim flood of juvenile delinquency. And the breakdown Mr. Hoover tells about is, in large measure, the result of parental failures in the home, of failure of the schools to properly instill respect for constituted authority and of failure of laws which pamper and privilege young lawbreakers, no matter how vicious they may be. Until the wrongdoer of any age learns that stern punishment awaits him, we may expect the crime statistics to grow more and more ominous.

H. L. Hunt Says

IN THE LONG RUN

It is obvious that the spread of socialism and the growth of centralized, unconstitutional government power in this country would never have reached its present stage of critical danger without the cooperation and help of the businessmen whom socialism and totalitarian government would destroy.

This strange paradox of successful and influential men helping their own worst enemies has bewildered many who have long been active in the fight for freedom and the Constitution. They ask how it is that businessmen can subsidize those who would confiscate their property, how newspapermen can urge on a trend in government that eventually will eliminate freedom of the press, how educators can welcome growing control of their own schools and colleges by Washington bureaucrats.

The answer is both simple and sad. These people are not thinking of tomorrow, but only of today. Hypnotized by what seem to be short-term gains, they lose sight entirely of the long-term losses.

When Maynard Keynes was confronted with the absurdity of the system of constant deficit spending by government which he advocated, and it was pointed out that in the long run it would destroy any country, his only answer was: "In the long run we are all dead."

That is the kind of thinking which accounts for the support of socialists by their victims. Seeking a bit of temporary "good will" to increase their popularity, they put out of their minds the ultimate consequences. In Winston Churchill's words, each one thinks that "if he is the one to feed the crocodile, the crocodile will eat him last." HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Adam Clayton Powell, Slapping Labor Leaders Around, Says President Never Chided or Pressured Him.

Washington, D. C.: -- In recent weeks President Johnson playfully has permitted a labor leader to sit in his Oval Room chair just to see how it feels.

Still two others spent three hours with Mr. Johnson during the height of the Da Nang crisis. And a labor man was at his table during the farewell White House dinner to Ambassador Lodge on the eve of his return to Saigon.

At the moment, what was discussed in all these hours is very much off the record. So is what they did not discuss.

But it is presumed that in some of these talks there loomed large the 6-foot-4 figure of Reverend Adam Clayton Powell, Democratic Representative from Harlem, the Congressman labor now refers to as the "one - man road - block."

There is no doubt that the labor men have wanted -- and do want -- the President to put the heat on the pastor.

There is no evidence that the President, devoted to the theory that politics is the art of the possible, has turned on the pressure.

It is not generally realized that the debonair Negro Congressman has prevented labor from getting what it has wanted most for more than 15 years. Some call it liberalized picketing laws, some refer to it as common situs picketing, and some dub it the end of the ban on secondary boycott.

Call it what you will. It means, for example, that a union would have the right to picket the entire Moonport project even if it had a dispute with only one of 50 contractors on the construction site. This would stop all work -- not just the operation of the company involved in the union dispute.

To understand the full force of labor's drive on this front, one should understand that the building and construction unions consider the right to situs picketing (now illegal) as a matter of life and death.

And since there are 18 construction unions, with a membership of 3.5 million, and it is the biggest unified bloc inside the AFL-CIO, the issue has become labor's number one campaign.

But Mr. Powell, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, after scheduling the situs bill for a floor vote the other week, reversed position. After all these years it would have passed but he blocked it suddenly and with no real explanation, though publicly he had supported it.

So I asked him why he threw up the road - block. It is accurate to report the Congressman's reply as follows:

No one telephoned or contacted him in behalf of labor.

He did not get a call on the matter from President Johnson, now Labor Secretary Wirtz, nor Speaker John McCormack.

Nor did any labor leaders talk to him. The latter men bypassed him and dealt with the pro-labor Congressman Frank Thompson, head of the labor sub-committee.

In fact, according to the Powell version, the President just never discussed the matter with him -- not even when they spent more than 90 minutes together in the White House talking about secondary education poverty.

And then there is the matter of a telephone conference call made in mid - April. At one end of the line were Speaker John McCormack and Representatives Carl Albert (Majority Leader), John Dent and Adam Powell. They were on extensions in the Speaker's office.

At the other end in the White House was President Johnson. They discussed social legislation -- but they never mentioned common situs picketing.

So the powerful Congressman Powell decided at the last minute that no one but the labor leaders really wanted to liberalize the picketing laws. And he blocked the move.

This came after he had made a compact with the same labor leaders to get the Hawkins equal enforcement bill through the House. Believing it had a deal, labor really pushed for that bill and it passed with a greater margin than any of the other civil rights legislation.

Powell told his intimates that he really was going to give labor what it wanted -- but in July or August. Then they blasted him and pinned on him the "one-man road - block" label.

So he said the hell with it and decided to wait at least until the 90th Congress before permitting the House to vote on labor's most wanted legislation.

But the labor men are smart wrestlers themselves. One fall does not make a bout. It should be a hot season in the old arena.

At each of the 130,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery, a tiny specially placed American flag flutters for Memorial Day.

People come by the hundreds to lay wreaths--at the grave of a relative, a friend or an admired hero -- most among groups taking turns conducting brief ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

So it has been on Memorial Day year after year, in somewhat similar fashion since 1868. Observances are held at the nation's other 84 national cemeteries, but the Memorial Day focus is on Arlington.

That's because its rolling hills contain the bodies of more noted Americans than any other. They lie among the thousands who won no acclaim nor medals.

A book published on this Memorial Day, "Arlington, Monument to Heroes," recites the names and deeds of many of the most illustrious dead. And it gives in up-to-date detail the history of the hallowed cemetery, taking the reader on a kind of walking tour.

The book is by John V. Hinkel, a native of Washington and retired Army Reserve colonel who has long been a student of the lore of the city.

This Memorial Day will attract visitors to the grave of President John F. Kennedy. And Hinkel has a special chapter on this most recent major addition to the cemetery. He describes the daily line of "reverent pilgrims" which flow past "like a river."

Not far away is the grave of Pvt. J. F. Kennedy, who died May 16, 1864 and one of the first buried in Arlington.

Hinkel writes it is ironic that this most revered of cemeteries for American fighting men became a burial place because of an act of spite.

It involved the Custis-Lee mansion which overlooks President Kennedy's grave. That imposing home and land George Washington once owned was built in 1802 by his adopted son, George Washington Parke Custis, to house the first president's relics.

Mary Anne Custis, his daughter, married Robert E. Lee and lived with him there until Lee went off to command the Confederate forces in the Civil War.

The Army quartermaster general in 1862 was Montgomery Meigs, a former Southerner who, Hinkel writes, "kept his most violent diatribes for his own previous commander -- Robert E. Lee."

Meigs arranged for the Army to take over the mansion and its sprawling acres and he set out to make uninhabitable the house where Lee had lived. Meigs ordered its rose garden turned into a burial ground for soldiers.

The L-shaped row of graves Meigs ordered still remains. So do two other Meigs creations--the tomb of the unknown dead of the War Between the States with the remains of 2,111 unidentified Union soldiers and the Temple of Fame, a memorial to George Washington and to 11 Union leaders.

Meigs himself is buried at Arlington.

The government had seized the mansion and its grounds for $26,800 because neither Lee nor his wife could come forth to pay the taxes on it personally as required by the law. The Supreme Court 20 years later voided this and Custis Lee gave title to the government for $150,000.

Hinkel notes another irony of Arlington history: On the first Memorial Day in 1868 -- it was called Decoration Day -- Southern women were curtly refused permission to place flowers on Confederate graves. Union graves were covered with flowers.

"That night there was a blustery wind --and in the report, as report has it," Hinkel wrote, "the sentries found the Confederate graves buried under flowers blown from the Union graves."

Hinkel recounts in capsule the deeds of many of the noted men and women who lie among the "Serried ranks on the quiet green slopes of Arlington."

He said in addition to the unknowns at the tomb, there are nearly 5,000 other unknowns buried in Arlington.

The roll call of famous generals and admirals who lie in Arlington stretches back through all of America's wars to revolutionary days.

NEEDED: REAPPRAISAL OF I-55 CONSTRUCTION

It is disappointing to learn that completion of Missouri's interstate highway construction will likely be delayed beyond the 1972 target date.

We hope that the Congress will find the money necessary to bring about the end to construction by the deadline. It certainly can find funds for a myriad of other prospects of considerably less merit.

Our concern lies with the entire network of interstate highways over the state, because they all are important, but necessarily it is more direct with regard to Interstate 55 passing along our outskirts.

The last section of this highway is not scheduled for completion until the last year of the program -- 1972 -- and that section as we understand it is in Cape and Perry counties.

It now appears that this link with those Interstate 55 sections that will creep southward in the next few years, and the completed section ending now at Fruitland, will be some months or years beyond 1972.

It is our feeling that the State Highway Commission should re-evaluate the schedule of construction and see if completion between Fruitland and St. Louis County cannot be advanced.

We call to the commission's attention the fact that millions of dollars in revenue is being lost to Missouri -- and highway dollars are included in that revenue -- by purchasing power that now travels to Memphis, Tenn., instead of St. Louis.

The building of the interstate to the south -- only 40 miles remains uncompleted between Fruitland and Memphis -- has made the Tennessee city as close or closer to Missourians than is St. Louis.

Thousands of people who once were business oriented to St. Louis are now going to Memphis because it is easier and quicker to reach than Missouri's major city. St. Louis today is only a few minutes closer to Cape Girardeau than is Memphis, and many from here are turning to the Tennessee city.

Who wants to fight the traffic to St. Louis when it is so much easier to go elsewhere?

The condition of Missouri's roads -- the curves and hills and the backed up traffic behind trucks and the terrible four lanes from Festus into St. Louis -- long ago turned traffic from the southeast part of the state over into Illinois.

Few want to face the danger inherent in Highway 61, and the horrible road they must travel. They either cross the bridge in Cape Girardeau or go to Perryville and then cross at the Chester, Ill., bridge

Those going to Columbia or Kansas City now go by way of Illinois, ridiculous as it seems, because the State Highway Commission gave priority to the southward advance of I-55 instead of the north. Its a longer way around, but a shorter trip because of the appalling Missouri roads.

No other part of the state is so handicapped in its roads to St. Louis and into the central part of Missouri as is the southeastern section.

It is our feeling that the State Highway Commission would be well disposed to take a new look at this regrettable situation and reappraise its interstate construction schedule on a more equitable priority basis.

If it doesn't, the orientation of business to Tennessee will become fixed to the tune of millions of dollars in lost revenue not only for commercial interests, but for the state and highway system as well.

In small jars, gleaming with gold ornamentation for status impact, are foumulas which will at least tone down tell-tale age lines in time for a man of importance to make his speech, a television appearance, or an appointment with a youth-conscious client.

Eye pads, another innovation for men, are said to be helpful in draining away the strain of wee hours in time for an alert and saintly appearance at the board meeting the morning after. The maker suggests their use after exposure to smoke-filled rooms and reading too much legal fine print.

Those fashion iconoclasts, today's young males who have refused to equate high style and scents with effeminacy, have paved the way for this boon is the pretty-up business during the past three years.

Once largely limited to producing shaving soaps and astringents, 156 firms, or 30 per cent more than last year now turn out hundreds of virile-looking red, brown, black with gold packages containing jars, bottles, atomizers, and tubes that moisturize, lubricate, mentholate and emulsify with such ingredients as lanolin, silicone, vitamins, estrogen, albumen, gelatin, seseme, and sharks' oil.

Altogether there now are more than 303 different fragrance sold either as colognes or after-shave lotions usually with lusty names inspired by the rugged outdoors or the sea.

Today the super-immaculate man can begin his morning ablutions with a bath friction that has the tingling effect of a sauna; shampoo his locks with a soap on a rope; apply bathpowder with his brass knuckles puff; shave over a translucent foam that lets him see where the most bristles are; then proceed to astringents, protective creams, deodorants; nongreasy hair oils, hand cream, and colognes. He can hold up the bathroom even longer than a woman.

Though youth pioneered as toiletries customers, the older man in ever-growing competition with youth in business and romance is unabashedly shoving his way to the front of cosmetics counter.

Special lures for him are blemish mark-outs which, when applied subtly, lighten dark circles; as well as those soothing eyepads; and five to 10-minute face masks which, like a transparent coating of egg whites lifts sagging face muscles and sagging morale.

"My customers are smart men. They hold top jobs and plan to hang onto them," a merchandise manager said of his facial mask customers. "He knows he can replace his Brooks Brothers suit any day but not his face."

LIVING PROOF

Long recognized as some of the finest farming lands in the nation, it's no accident that the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta is also the most heavily protected cropland in the world. The crop protection of the modern farmer -- pesticides -- has been beneficially used there since 1924. Contrary to dire predictions of doomsaying conservationists, crop-spraying actually has increased wildlife in the Delta.

Today counties with open turkey seasons have almost doubled. In 1946, deer were legal in only a few counties. As late as '53 the legal kill of bucks was only 2,300. Population increases began about '46, skyrocketed more than 20 per cent yearly; the '63 kill is estimated at more than 18,000. Doves, rabbits and squirrels were never more abundant and fishing is unsurpassed.

This living evidence of increases in both crop production and game has understandably made farmers resentful of pesticide scare-talk. Facts of the Mississippi rebirth and abundance deny that wildlife populations are destroyed by pesticide programs.

Insect-control programs help produce higher cotton yields per acre, thereby allowing more land to be planted in soybeans, oats, wheat and soil-conservation programs that produce food and cover for game.

Modern farming practices are responsible for an increase in wildlife, longer open seasons and generously increased bag limits. Hunters and farmers would do well to understand and use these facts when the next pesticide with-hunt comes along.

GUILTY AS CHARGED?

Juvenile officers in Hawthorne, California have an anonymous letter that has some sound advice for all teenagers. The letter speaks for itself:

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment.

"The world does not owe you a living.

"Your city does not owe you amusements.

"You owe the world something!

"You owe it your time and energy, and your talents, so that no one will be at war, or in poverty, or sick and lonely, again.

"In plain, simple words, grow up!

"Develop a back-bone instead of a wish-bone!

"Your parents are probably tired of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating and denying themselves needed comforts for your every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality and thinking."

This letter may be a bit harsh in that it seems to take an indiscriminate potshot at all teenagers. No one age group is all bad or all good.

So, the teenager who is a problem to very few and who shows all the tendencies of becoming a top rate citizen is not a candidate for such a letter.

Show this letter to a teenager. Then ask him or her to answer honestly if he or she is guilty of any of the charges in the letter.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Of all the political races in the USA, perhaps the most opposite competitors are running for congress from the tobacco capitals of North Carolina -- Smith Bagley, millionaire grandson of the late R. J. Reynolds of Reynolds tobacco, and Nick Galinfianakis, son of a Greek immigrant.

Bagley, aged 31, is tall, handsome, a recent arrival from California, who says that he wants to go to congress to meet and date Jackie Kennedy.

He has adopted some of JFK's campaign techniques, is spending heavily on advertising, will probably run up a total bill of $100,000.

Bagley has considerable support from conservatives and segregationists, though he has divorced himself from the right wing and emphasized his help in securing scholarships for Negro students.

Nick Galinfianakis, the no. 1 candidate running against Bagley, is a young lawyer, part-time Duke University professor, and a member of the North Carolina legislature.

Galinfianakis says he got into politics when some of his friends raised $18 and filed his name as a candidate for the legislature.

"With a name as monstrous as mine, I thought it was a joke. I didn't think anyone would vote for a name like mine," says Galinfianakis.

"However, my father was born in Crete and had a sense of gratitude toward this country. He used to run water out of the spigot and say, 'look at the clean water that we have to drink. We couldn't get that back in Greece.' My father ran a little hot dog stand, and he felt a deep obligation to this country. I feel that in the legislature I've been discharging his obligation -- and mine."

There are two other candidates in the race, Harold Thomerson, assistant to retiring Rep. Ralph Scott, a conservative; and State Senator William Wood, a North Carolina liberal, both competent men. Chief political spotlight, however, has been focused on Bagley and Galinfianakis.

This race for congress is to represent the two tobaco capitals of the world. Bagley lives in Winston - Salem, the home of Reynolds Tobacco, Galinfianakis lives in Durham, the home of Liggett & Myers and American Tobacco, founded by Washington Duke of Bull Durham and Duke's Mixture. Essentially it's a conservative district, but the young Greek-American lawyer, who heads several important subcommittees in the North Carolina legislature, is given a chance of winning against the Scion of tobacco millions.

ANOTHER GREEK-AMERICAN

There is an interesting contrast between Galinfianakis on the East Coast and George Christopher on the West Coast. Christopher, a dairyman born in Greece, became mayor of San Francisco, now aspires to be governor of California.

Some people criticize me for digging back into Christopher's record to report that in 1940 he pleaded guilty to exacting kickbacks from dairy farmers and was fined $5,000 and given two years suspended sentence; also that he pleaded guilty in 1944 to selling watered milk and inferior "manufacturing" cream for Grade A cream. Personally, I believe that when a man is running for high office, the public has a right to know all of his record, especially when it involves criminal convictions.

However, regardless of the 1940-1944 record, it is now revealed that Christopher's dairy as late as 1964 was fined $8,000 by the state of California for paying kickbacks in San Mateo county.

The kickbacks were paid to retailers to expand the Christopher dairy farms milk market.

When the state of California prosecuted in superior court, the dairy agreed to a stipulation whereby it was fined $8,000 and put on probation for one year. The dairy was charged with 16 counts, for which the maximum fine on each count was $500. In other words, Christopher paid the maximum fine --$8,000.

Christopher owns 99 per cent of the stock in the Christopher farms dairy and is chairman of the board. At the time he was fined in the summer of 1964, Mitchell Davis, his brother-in-law, was president of the company and Christopher in talking to California Agriculture Department officials indicated that Davis would be dropped because of negligence, that he, Christopher, did not know about the kickbacks. However, current records show that Davis is still president.

Note -- W. F. O'Keefe, San Francisco business executive who was a close personal friend and adviser to Christopher during his campaign for mayor and part of his term, states: "Christopher 'divorced' himself from the dairy during his eight years in office by appointing his brother-in-law, Mickey Davis, as 'president.' This was a local standing joke. Detailed reports of the operation of the dairy were delivered to Christopher's home each night for his inspection. Mickey Davis was just a figurehead. Christopher knew every customer and his daily purchases. There is no question about the 'not too subtle' pressures exerted upon milk purchasers during his tenure as mayor."

HIGH TIDE OF DELINQUENCY

Following the summer riots -- in which the overwhelming number of participants were young people -- the President requested the FBI to investigate. Director J. Edgar Hoover has now made his report, and it is a sobering document.

These riots, which took place in a number of northern cities and in resort towns on the eastern and western seaboards, were not race riots and they were not the work of extremist organizations. The victims, Mr. Hoover points out, included both Negro and white storeowners. Back of the riots, he continues, is "the breakdown of respect for law and order among young people." And this, in part, he ascribes to "an immunity to public exposure for serious offense and often the absence of punishment of any kind." To quote him once more, the riots were "not the innocent exuberance of youth but were persistent, prolonged and violent."

In other words, the riots represented a high tide in the grim flood of juvenile delinquency. And the breakdown Mr. Hoover tells about is, in large measure, the result of parental failures in the home, of failure of the schools to properly instill respect for constituted authority and of failure of laws which pamper and privilege young lawbreakers, no matter how vicious they may be. Until the wrongdoer of any age learns that stern punishment awaits him, we may expect the crime statistics to grow more and more ominous.

H. L. Hunt Says

IN THE LONG RUN

It is obvious that the spread of socialism and the growth of centralized, unconstitutional government power in this country would never have reached its present stage of critical danger without the cooperation and help of the businessmen whom socialism and totalitarian government would destroy.

This strange paradox of successful and influential men helping their own worst enemies has bewildered many who have long been active in the fight for freedom and the Constitution. They ask how it is that businessmen can subsidize those who would confiscate their property, how newspapermen can urge on a trend in government that eventually will eliminate freedom of the press, how educators can welcome growing control of their own schools and colleges by Washington bureaucrats.

The answer is both simple and sad. These people are not thinking of tomorrow, but only of today. Hypnotized by what seem to be short-term gains, they lose sight entirely of the long-term losses.

When Maynard Keynes was confronted with the absurdity of the system of constant deficit spending by government which he advocated, and it was pointed out that in the long run it would destroy any country, his only answer was: "In the long run we are all dead."

That is the kind of thinking which accounts for the support of socialists by their victims. Seeking a bit of temporary "good will" to increase their popularity, they put out of their minds the ultimate consequences. In Winston Churchill's words, each one thinks that "if he is the one to feed the crocodile, the crocodile will eat him last." HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Adam Clayton Powell, Slapping Labor Leaders Around, Says President Never Chided or Pressured Him.

Washington, D. C.: -- In recent weeks President Johnson playfully has permitted a labor leader to sit in his Oval Room chair just to see how it feels.

Still two others spent three hours with Mr. Johnson during the height of the Da Nang crisis. And a labor man was at his table during the farewell White House dinner to Ambassador Lodge on the eve of his return to Saigon.

At the moment, what was discussed in all these hours is very much off the record. So is what they did not discuss.

But it is presumed that in some of these talks there loomed large the 6-foot-4 figure of Reverend Adam Clayton Powell, Democratic Representative from Harlem, the Congressman labor now refers to as the "one - man road - block."

There is no doubt that the labor men have wanted -- and do want -- the President to put the heat on the pastor.

There is no evidence that the President, devoted to the theory that politics is the art of the possible, has turned on the pressure.

It is not generally realized that the debonair Negro Congressman has prevented labor from getting what it has wanted most for more than 15 years. Some call it liberalized picketing laws, some refer to it as common situs picketing, and some dub it the end of the ban on secondary boycott.

Call it what you will. It means, for example, that a union would have the right to picket the entire Moonport project even if it had a dispute with only one of 50 contractors on the construction site. This would stop all work -- not just the operation of the company involved in the union dispute.

To understand the full force of labor's drive on this front, one should understand that the building and construction unions consider the right to situs picketing (now illegal) as a matter of life and death.

And since there are 18 construction unions, with a membership of 3.5 million, and it is the biggest unified bloc inside the AFL-CIO, the issue has become labor's number one campaign.

But Mr. Powell, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, after scheduling the situs bill for a floor vote the other week, reversed position. After all these years it would have passed but he blocked it suddenly and with no real explanation, though publicly he had supported it.

So I asked him why he threw up the road - block. It is accurate to report the Congressman's reply as follows:

No one telephoned or contacted him in behalf of labor.

He did not get a call on the matter from President Johnson, now Labor Secretary Wirtz, nor Speaker John McCormack.

Nor did any labor leaders talk to him. The latter men bypassed him and dealt with the pro-labor Congressman Frank Thompson, head of the labor sub-committee.

In fact, according to the Powell version, the President just never discussed the matter with him -- not even when they spent more than 90 minutes together in the White House talking about secondary education poverty.

And then there is the matter of a telephone conference call made in mid - April. At one end of the line were Speaker John McCormack and Representatives Carl Albert (Majority Leader), John Dent and Adam Powell. They were on extensions in the Speaker's office.

At the other end in the White House was President Johnson. They discussed social legislation -- but they never mentioned common situs picketing.

So the powerful Congressman Powell decided at the last minute that no one but the labor leaders really wanted to liberalize the picketing laws. And he blocked the move.

This came after he had made a compact with the same labor leaders to get the Hawkins equal enforcement bill through the House. Believing it had a deal, labor really pushed for that bill and it passed with a greater margin than any of the other civil rights legislation.

Powell told his intimates that he really was going to give labor what it wanted -- but in July or August. Then they blasted him and pinned on him the "one-man road - block" label.

So he said the hell with it and decided to wait at least until the 90th Congress before permitting the House to vote on labor's most wanted legislation.

But the labor men are smart wrestlers themselves. One fall does not make a bout. It should be a hot season in the old arena.

New B&PW Officers Installed Wednesday

Mrs. Tony Statler was installed president of the Business and Professional Woman's Club in a dinner meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Mid-Towner Restaurant.

Hostesses were Mrs. Walter Powell, Mrs. Harold Pitman, Mrs. Darrell Alcorn, Mrs. Cecil Owen, Mrs. Bill Storey and Mrs. Albert Peters, Jr.

Three guests, Bernadine Starnes, Betty Jo Yeragain and Margaret Rone, were present. The minures were read by the secretary, Mrs. Storey, and corrected. Miss Electa O'Hara, audit chariman, reported that the club's books were in good order.

Thank you nites were read from Edna Lager, Flossie Duncan and Margaret Rone for the club's help at the recent convention in Kansas City.

Reports on the convention were given by Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Robert Black, the club's career girl candidate and delegate. The club won a club criteria award, a programming award, a membership achievement award and was recognized for having three gold card members.

Mrs. Margaret Rone, newly installed state federation president, installed the new officers, Mrs. Statler, president; Mrs. Owen, first vice president; Miss Addie Mae Jones, second vice president; Mrs. W.W. Wilkison, recording secretary; Mrs. Carl Elam, corresponding secretary and Miss Mary Ann Meyer, treasurer.

Miss Callie Burket was honored as she will be moving to Joplin this summer. Miss Burket and Mrs. Rone were presented gifts by the club.

The three gold card members, Mrs. R. Clinton Scott, Mrs. Powell, and Mrs. Warren Topp, were recognized for bringing five new members each into the club during the past year.

The club collect was given by Mrs. Storey and the benediction was by Mrs. Pitman.

The tables were covered with white cloths and decorated with fresh ivy and spring flowers. A miniature Cotton Carnival Float made by the club for decoration at the state convention centered the head talbe.

The new committee chairmen are cards and flowers, Mrs. Oma DeJarnett; civic particiapation, Mrs. Alouise Carroll; Cotton Carnival Float, Mrs. June Topp and Mrs. Bonnie Strickland; legislation, Mrs. Evelyn Black; Loan Closet, Mrs. Edna Shankle; membership, Miss Addie Mae Jones; National Business Women's Week, Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, orientation, ex-presidents and Director of District VI, Mrs. Flossie Duncan; personal development, Mrs. Clara Eisenbach; public relations, Mrs. Margaret Taylor; Woman of the Year, Mrs. Billie Burch and world affairs, Mrs. Virgina DuSablon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hackett of 806 Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Shipman of Morehouse leave tomorrow to visit their son and daughter in Cincinnati, Ohio. They will be guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hackett Jr., and son Jimmie. The Hacketts are planning to return to Sikeston on Monday evening, but the Shipmans will go on to Detroit, Michigan, to spend some time with their son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Shipman.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Neil Smith and son Mark this weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Monte Shields and family of St. Louis. The Smiths are newcomers to Sikeston themselves, having moved here last September. They reside at 803 Cambridge Drive.

Miss Anne Wissman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wissman of 612 Maple, arrived home today after completing a semester at Southeastern State College. Anne plans on spending her summer vacation in summer school at Cape.

The Raymert Miller family of Sikeston, entertained Mrs. Miller's parents and a good friend from Sunday until Wednesday of this week. Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Helms and Mrs. Ed Smith all of Camdenton, Mo., were here to attend the State Convention of the Rebecca Oddfellow Lodge.

Mrs. Bob Hubbard and her children are planning to move from Sikeston to Mayfield, Kentucky, on June 2nd. Mr. Hubbard has been there since April 1 awaiting their arrival. The Hubbards now reside at 704 Mimosa Drive.

Art Entries To Be Made Today

At 9 a.m. today the Holiday Inn became a bee hive of activity. Actually, before that, the crew to receive, label, store and later hang entries for the Holiday Art Exhibit arrived in a flurry of typewriters, file cards, identification slips and other tools of the trade. After the inevitable settling, room 200 opened for business, and business was ready for Miss Harriet E. Jones, Mrs. Phil Compagna, Mrs. Alex Waters, Miss Emily Brennecke, Mrs. Harley Barnes, and Mrs. A. B. Smith, who are there today to receive drawings, paintings and sculpture for the exhibit.

It is expected there will be more entries than in previous shows and a greater number of artists since a larger geographic area will be represented. More than 40 artists have conveyed their desire to enter the exhibit and others will come.

Any artist wishing to enter the exhibit may bring his entries to the Holiday Inn anytime until nine p.m. At this time the doors to room 200 will close on some mighty tired "receivers," and the feverish activity of checking labels and placing each entry begins. The Art League assures everyone that all will be serenity before 10 a.m. on Saturday when the doors will open to the pulic.

The exhibit will remain open until 10 p.m. on Saturday, and will be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Sunday. A reception for patrons of the Art League and exhibiting artists will be held at the exhibit from 8 until 10 p.m., Sunday, after which it will close.

Trinity WMS Has Meeting

The general meeting of the Trinity Baptist church Woman's Missionary Society met at the church Thursday, May 19.

A setting to resemble the sidewalk cafes of New Orleans was used. Each table was centered with a colorful candle surrounded by magnolia leaves and one white blossom.

Many magnolia leaves and white blossoms were placed at vantage points around the room adding to the Southern atmosphere of the occasion.

Mrs. M.L. Limbaugh, president, opened the meeting by reading the names of missionaries on the prayer calendar with Mrs. Orrin Hunt leading in prayer.

A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Limbaugh. Mrs. Lewis Conley read the secretary's report.

Mrs. Glenn Peel gave a report on Focus Week for the Girls Auxiliary members. Routine business was transacted.

The program for the evening was directed by Mrs. A. J. Day on mission work by Southern Baptists in Louisiana.

Mrs. A. M. Jackson talked about "Evangeline Country," having with her a copy of the poem and pictures of that area. She also had a cluster of leaves from the famed "Evangeline Oak."

Mrs. Hunt told of the history of Louisiana assisted by Mrs. Max Smotherman, Mrs. R. H. Mackley, Mrs. Hershel Hellem, Mrs. Hershel Deal, Mrs. John McVey and Miss Georgia Houchens.

Mrs. Conley told of the work being done by the Southern Baptists.

Mrs. Truman Bennett concluded the program with devitional thoughts with a scripture reading from John 4. The meeting closed with Miss Houchens playing "Take My Life and Let It Be" as a benediction.

A social hour was enjoyed as the members were served coffee, sweet rolls and doughnuts from a table spread with a red checked cloth and decorated with white blossoms. Those responsible for the decorations were Mrs. Earl Underhill, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. J. V. Stallings.

Conversation was enjoyed as "Louisiana coffee" was sipped.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Held Friday At Church

MOREHOUSE -- The dining hall of the First Baptist church was the setting for the Mother-Daughter Banquet Friday evening. This banquet was given for the members of the Junior and Intermediate Girl's Auxiliaries and their mothers.

The theme for the evening, "Proclaim to Every Nation," was cut from green construction paper and sprinkled with gold glitter and attached to the wall with a large world map placed under it. One end of the dining hall was decorated with a spring scene. A blue background was for the sky with white clouds, and green trees behind a white picket fence entwined with mock orange further decorated the room. A huge sun hung from the ceiling with birds on either side.

The tables were overlaid with white paper with gold streamers down the center and bouquets of irises. Dolls dressed in costumes from other nations were placed on the tables. White candles provided the light for the evening. The guest table was decorated with yellow roses and yellow rose buds and white candles in milk glass containers.

The welcome and invocation was given by Rev Glen Bohannon followed by a period of getting acquainted. Each girl introduced herself and her mother. After dinner, group singing was led by Mrs. Jeanie Rahm. These songs were of Welsh, French and Canadian origin in keeping with the theme.

Special guests were recognized by the pastor. They were Mrs. Bernice Bryant, W.M.U. President; Mrs. Eva Laminack, G.A. director; Mrs. Jeanie Rahm, Jr. G.A. counsellor; and Mrs. Glenn Bohannon, Intermediate G.A. counseller.

A game called "Sweet Peas" was led by Mrs. Bohannon. The guest speaker for the evening was the Rev. C.D. Butler, pastor of the Murray Lane Baptist church in Sikeston. He showed slides that were taken on a trip he made to Alaska and then gave a talk on "You and Missions."

The benediction was by Mrs. Eva Laminack.

Gospel Singing To Be President

There will be a gospel singing at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the First Oneness Pentecostal church on Highway 60 West.

Featured will be the Beardsley Quartet and the Ray Harmony Quartet, both of St. Louis.

Local talent will be the Gospel Jubileers and the Thomann Trio.

Local Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hackett of 806 Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Shipman of Morehouse leave tomorrow to visit their son and daughter in Cincinnati, Ohio. They will be guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hackett Jr., and son Jimmie. The Hacketts are planning to return to Sikeston on Monday evening, but the Shipmans will go on to Detroit, Michigan, to spend some time with their son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Shipman.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Neil Smith and son Mark this weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Monte Shields and family of St. Louis. The Smiths are newcomers to Sikeston themselves, having moved here last September. They reside at 803 Cambridge Drive.

Miss Anne Wissman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wissman of 612 Maple, arrived home today after completing a semester at Southeastern State College. Anne plans on spending her summer vacation in summer school at Cape.

The Raymert Miller family of Sikeston, entertained Mrs. Miller's parents and a good friend from Sunday until Wednesday of this week. Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Helms and Mrs. Ed Smith all of Camdenton, Mo., were here to attend the State Convention of the Rebecca Oddfellow Lodge.

Mrs. Bob Hubbard and her children are planning to move from Sikeston to Mayfield, Kentucky, on June 2nd. Mr. Hubbard has been there since April 1 awaiting their arrival. The Hubbards now reside at 704 Mimosa Drive.

Art Entries To Be Made Today

At. 9 a.m. today the Holiday Inn became a bee hive of activity. Actually, before that, the crew to receive, label, store and later hang entries for the Holiday Art Exhibit arrived in a flurry of typewriters, file cards, identification slips and other tools of the trade. After the inevitable settling, room 200 opened for business, and business was ready for Miss Harriet E. Jones, Mrs. Phil Compagna, Mrs. Alex Waters, Miss Emily Brennecke, Mrs. Harley Barnes, and Mrs. A. B. Smith, who are there today to receive drawings, paintings and sculpture for the exhibit.

It is expected there will be more entries than in previous shows and a greater number of artists since a larger geographic area will be represented. More than 40 artists have conveyed their desire to enter the exhibit and others will come.

Cards Rally In Nineth For Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals, rapidly gaining the knack of the big inning, shoved across three runs in the ninth inning to edge the Chicago Cubs Thursday night 3-2.

The Cardinals' victory was the second straight in which St. Louis came up with a big inning. On Wednesday, the Cards scored seven runs in the seventh inning, four of them on Curt Flood's grand-slam homer, to down the Cubs 9-1.

Pitcher Bob Gibson was down 2-0 entering the final inning, the Cubs picking up their runs on Byron Browne's homer in the fifth with one man on.

But Julian Javier led off the ninth with a hit, and Mike Shannon beat out a trickler down the third base line.

Flood bounced what appeared to be a doubleplay ball to Ron Santo, but the Cubs' third baseman threw the ball into right field with one run scoring. Orlando Cepeda then singled home Shannon and Tim McCarver ended the feast with a game-winning hit.

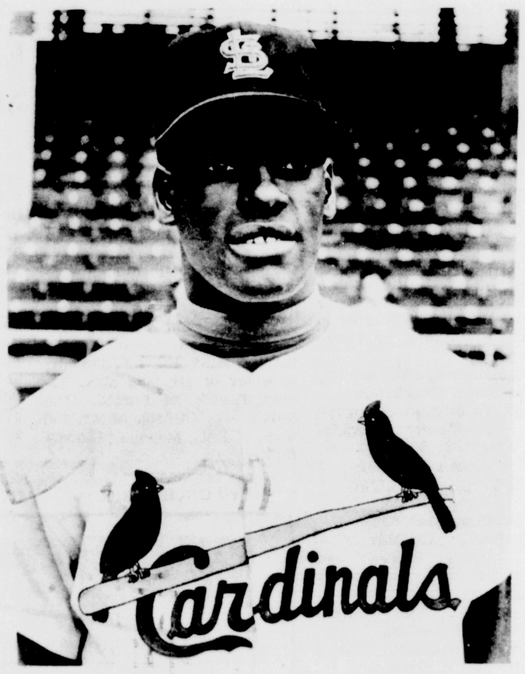
It was the second straight game Gibson has won on timely hitting by Shannon, Flood and Cepeda plus an error. Last Sunday the big righthander defeated Cincinnati 4-3 after two were out in the ninth.

And, earlier this season, Flood hit a two-run ninth-inning homer that gave Gibson a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets.

Tonight, Art Mahaffey 1-2 will be on the mound for the Cards, facing Cincinnati's Jim Maloney 4-0.

For Kansas City, Rollie Sheldon 2-4 will hurl against Baltimore's Wally Bunker 3-3.

TIM McCARVER drove home the winning run in the ninth inning last night to give the Cards the win. The Redbirds were down 2-0 going into the final frame.



BOB GIBSON - PITCHER

BOB GIBSON, collected some timely hitting and three runs in the ninth inning of last nights game against the Cubs to pull out a 3-2 victory.

Suicide Chain In California

Gregory Rogers, 23, a South San Francisco fireman, was in a group of men which cut down Murphy's body.

Three weeks ago, Rogers hanged himself in a clothes closet.

Mrs. Joe Ann Graham, 24, a mother of two, has a brother, Joseph Terron, in the South San Francisco Fire department. Terron was acquainted with Murphy and Rogers.

Tuesday Mrs. Graham hanged herself with electric cords from a shower rail at her Redwood City home.

"I've never heard of such a suicide chain developing anywhere before," said San Mateo County's coroner, Paul B. Jensen.

THE SMALL FRY BARRIER

This is often the complaint of pike fishermen who work far northern waters for the large fish. When nearly every cast is grabbed by an over-eager youngster, the trophy-hunting angler may come home enthused by the action but disappointed with the catch.

While such calamities may be dismissed as "bad luck," the fishing authorities at Mercury outboards cite under water observations that may indicate a deliberate pattern of large and small fish behavior.

While fishing crappie beds in a major Midwest impoundment, an inquisitive angler traded his rod and reel for SCUBA equipment and went below for a look-see.

About 20 feet below the surface his eyes focused on a huge ball of crappies clustered in and about a pile of cedar.

On the outside of the sphere were literally hundreds of small fish. Its "core" was composed of big, mature fish.

Back on the surface, the diver used this knowledge to advantage by dropping a weighted minnow quickly through the outer shield and into the core. Immediately, larger fish were caught.

While northern pike don't school in this fashion, there is a similarity. You have to cast through or beyond the small ones that frequent the fringe weeds their presence is often seen. They're tough to reach, and more difficult to haul out, as they will seldom venture beyond the perimeter of smaller fish to grab your lure.

The reason big fish hide behind a barrier of small ones is subject for debate, comment the Mercury lads, but there is proof that size does make a difference in this regard. Remember, you may have to penetrate the small fry to bring in that king-sized trophy.

Bills Introduced To Permit Soybeans

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Congressman Paul C. Jones and Senators Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long have joined in introducing in the House of Representatives and Senate, companion bills to permit the planting of soybeans in lieu of cotton in areas where rainfall has been so heavy this year that it has been impossible to plant cotton acreage allotments. Producers so effected would not lose benefits under the cotton program.

Hearings are scheduled before the House Agriculture Committee for Friday morning, May 20. Sponsors hope the Senate Committee will be able to act on the basis of those hearings. The Jones Bill in the House is H.R. 15151 and the Senate Bill is S. 3382.

As introduced, the bill would apply only to the calendar year 1966 and would become effective only on designation of a disaster area by the Secretary of Agriculture, Congressman Jones and the two Missouri Senators said.

Congressman Jones introduced the bill in the House May 18 and Senators Symington and Long joined in co-sponsoring a companion bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Ross Bass of Tennessee. Others joining are from Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Louisiana cotton sections all of which have suffered under heavy rains during the past few weeks -- the normal cotton-planting time. It is estimated that as much as 25 to 40 percent of Missouri cotton acreage has not been planted or has been flooded out.

Under existing legislative authority, allotted acreage not planted to cotton because of drought, flood or other natural disaster, is considered as planted to cotton for purposes of price support and diversion payments, if such acreage is not subsequently planted to any other income-producing crop in the same crop year.

Under the proposed change, the cotton producer who is unable to plant because of heavy rains will get the same consideration as the producer who loses his crop because of natural disaster.

The Hope Pearl holds the record for size of a pearl. It weighs nearly three ounces and has a circumference of 4½ inches.

Expansion Ideas Being Trimmed

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK AP -- Business is trimming some of its high-flying ideas on expansion this year-but only slightly. And the cutbacks are far from uniform. While some industries are lowering their sights, others say they now plan to spend more than they reported just two months ago.

These are the findings of a recheck of corporate intentions by the McGraw-Hill Department of Economics in mid-May. The latest figure puts capital spending this year at $61.3 billion, or $450 million less than the firms reported as their goals in March. The spending of these companies for new plants and equipment in 1965 was $52 billion.

The picture is further complicated by cross-currents in the machine tool busines.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association reports that new orders dropped in April by 16 per cent. These orders would normally be for delivery next year.

But the association reports today that sales of used machine tools in April jumped to a record high, 33.6 per cent over a year earlier. The association says the demand is growing for production machinery that can be delivered immediately.

The slight lowering of capital spending plans for the rest of this year is credited to several factors: President Johnson's request to business to go slow because of the inflation threat, delays in machinery deliveries and construction, the sharp decline in the stock market, tight money, and rapidly rising capital goods prices.

Some corporations apparently just are not able to meet the goals set earlier, regardless of how they feel about volumtary cutbacks.

Industries with bigger spending goals in May than in March include electrical machinery, aerospace, shipbuilders, railroad equipment, stone, clay and glass, food, textiles, railroads and airlines.

Of all the companies checked, 42 per cent reported 1966 investment plans were unchanged from March, and 27 per cent reported higher spending goals. Lower dollar investment was reported planned by 31 per cent.

Governmeny reports of business spending intentions usually have run below those of private pollsters this year. But even the government figures showed such a big jump over 1965 outlays that the President moved to seek voluntary restraint lest the economy become overheated.

Birling, or log rolling, is a favorite sport of the North American lumberjack traceable to the early lumbering era in Maine. The idea is to maneuver your opponent off balance and into the water. Contests are usually held after the log drive reaches the sawmill. The world's first birling championship was held in 1898 at the Omaha, Neb., exposition.

Cards Rally In Nineth For Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals, rapidly gaining the knack of the big inning, shoved across three runs in the ninth inning to edge the Chicago Cubs Thursday night 3-2.

The Cardinals' victory was the second straight in which St. Louis came up with a big inning. On Wednesday, the Cards scored seven runs in the seventh inning, four of them on Curt Flood's grand-slam homer, to down the Cubs 9-1.

Pitcher Bob Gibson was down 2-0 entering the final inning, the Cubs picking up their runs on Byron Browne's homer in the fifth with one man on.

But Julian Javier led off the ninth with a hit, and Mike Shannon beat out a trickler down the third base line.

Flood bounced what appeared to be a doubleplay ball to Ron Santo, but the Cubs' third baseman threw the ball into right field with one run scoring. Orlando Cepeda then singled home Shannon and Tim McCarver ended the feast with a game-winning hit.

It was the second straight game Gibson has won on timely hitting by Shannon, Flood and Cepeda plus an error. Last Sunday the big righthander defeated Cincinnati 4-3 after two were out in the ninth.

And, earlier this season, Flood hit a two-run ninth-inning homer that gave Gibson a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets.

Tonight, Art Mahaffey 1-2 will be on the mound for the Cards, facing Cincinnati's Jim Maloney 4-0.

TIM McCARVER drove home the winning run in the ninth inning last night to give the Cards the win. The Redbirds were down 2-0 going into the final frame.

BOB GIBSON, collected some timely hitting and three runs in the ninth inning of last nights game against the Cubs to pull out a 3-2 victory.

Suicide Chain In California

Gregory Rogers, 23, a South San Francisco fireman, was in a group of men which cut down Murphy's body.

Three weeks ago, Rogers hanged himself in a clothes closet.

Mrs. Joe Ann Graham, 24, a mother of two, has a brother, Joseph Terron, in the South San Francisco Fire department. Terron was acquainted with Murphy and Rogers.

Tuesday Mrs. Graham hanged herself with electric cords from a shower rail at her Redwood City home.

"I've never heard of such a suicide chain developing anywhere before," said San Mateo County's coroner, Paul B. Jensen.

"I'm concerned and I certainly want to investigate them."

Congressman Jones introduced the bill in the House May 18 and Senators Symington and Long joined in co-sponsoring a companion bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Ross Bass of Tennessee. Others joining are from Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Louisiana cotton sections all of which have suffered under heavy rains during the past few weeks -- the normal cotton-planting time. It is estimated that as much as 25 to 40 percent of Missouri cotton acreage has not been planted or has been flooded out.

Under existing legislative authority, allotted acreage not planted to cotton because of drought, flood or other natural disaster, is considered as planted to cotton for purposes of price support and diversion payments, if such acreage is not subsequently planted to any other income-producing crop in the same crop year.

Under the proposed change, the cotton producer who is unable to plant because of heavy rains will get the same consideration as the producer who loses his crop because of natural disaster.

The Hope Pearl holds the record for size of a pearl. It weighs nearly three ounces and has a circumference of 4½ inches.

Expansion Ideas Being Trimmed

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK AP -- Business is trimming some of its high-flying ideas on expansion this year-but only slightly. And the cutbacks are far from uniform.

While some industries are lowering their sights, others say they now plan to spend more than they reported just two months ago.

These are the findings of a recheck of corporate intentions by the McGraw-Hill Department of Economics in mid-May. The latest figure puts capital spending this year at $61.3 billion, or $450 million less than the firms reported as their goals in March. The spending of these companies for new plants and equipment in 1965 was $52 billion.

The picture is further complicated by cross-currents in the machine tool busines.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association reports that new orders dropped in April by 16 per cent. These orders would nornally be for delivery next year.

But the association reports today that sales of used machine tools in April jumped to a record high, 33.6 per cent over a year earlier. The association says the demand is growing for production machinery that can be delivered immediately.

The slight lowering of capital spending plans for the rest of this year is credited to several factors: President Johnson's request to business to go slow because of the inflation threat, delays in machinery deliveries and construction, the sharp decline in the stock market, tight money, and rapidly rising capital goods prices.

Some corporations apparently just are not able to meet the goals set earlier, regardless of how they feel about volumtary cutbacks.

Industries with bigger spending goals in May than in March include electrical machinery, aerospace, shipbuilders, railroad equipment, stone, clay and glass, food, textiles, railroads and airlines.

Of all the companies checked, 42 per cent reported 1966 investment plans were unchanged from March, and 27 per cent reported higher spending goals. Lower dollar investment was reported planned by 31 per cent.

Governmeny reports of business spending intentions usually have run below those of private pollsters this year. But even the government figures showed such a big jump over 1965 outlays that the President moved to seek voluntary restraint lest the economy become overheated.

matter of fact

Birling, or log rolling, is a favorite sport of the North American lumberjack traceable to the early lumbering era in Maine. The idea is to maneuver your opponent off balance and into the water. Contests are usually held after the log drive reaches the sawmill. The world's first birling championship was held in 1898 at the Omaha, Neb., exposition.

A '66 Mercury will run farther for less money than any other outboard

You've got a surprise coming: the fuel economy of the '66 Mercury outboards. The refreshing shock comes when you realize you've got the slowest fuel gauge on the lake. The new Mercurys have money-saving features like new exclusive Polar-Gap spark plugs and Thunderbolt ignition system (six-cylinder Mercurys) that cut fuel consumption 6%. You save on oil, too—new Quicksilver Formula 50 Super Outboard Motor Oil cuts oil consumption 50%! Use Formula 50 safely at a 50:1 gas-oil ratio (boat-tested for three million miles). And don't forget the other features that help make Mercury the world's most economical outboard: small-bore, short-stroke, in-line design; plus smaller, lighter pistons and connecting rods; fixed-jet carburetors and Power-Dome combustion chambers. See the money-savingest outboards—the '66 Mercurys—at your Mercury dealer. 3.9, 6, 9.8, 20, 35, 50, 65, 95 and 110 hp.

International Beauty Congress Postponed

LONG BEACH, Calif. AP -- To seek better television time and to avoid competition with summer tourists, the International Beauty Congress this year has been postponed until 1967.

Congress officials made the announcement Wednesday after the city council, which provides much of the money for the contest, agreed to amend its contract. The precise date depends upon negotiations for television coverage, the officials said.

The event originated as the Miss Universe Pageant in 1952 and in 1960 became the International Beauty Congress.

Court Set Up In England

LONDON AP -- Britain's Labor government today set up an independent court of inquiry into the causes of the national seamen's strike. It will probe the immediate dispute and the basic problems of British shipping.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter said the tribunal will begin work in a few days and may make an interim report in the next two weeks.

That would be early enough to provide a neutral view that could help settle the strike, now 11 days old and virtually deadlocked.

The 65,000-member national union of seamen is striking for a 40-hour-week package deal which amounts to a 17 per cent increase on the current basic wage of $42 for a 56-hour week.

THE DODGE BOYS GOT YA COVERED!

Those good guys in white hats back up their deals with the longest, strongest warranty* in the industry

How come the Dodge Boys beat competition to the draw again? 'Cause they got a way of doing business that the others can't match. New cars! New deals! And a way of backin' up their words in writing that lets you know you're wanted (and wanted back). See the Dodge Boys and join the Dodge Rebellion.

The famous 5-Year/50,000 Mile Dodge Warranty: Chrysler Corporation confidently warrants all of the following vital parts of its 1966 cars for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmanship will be replaced or repaired at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excepting manual clutch), torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential, and rear wheel bearings. REQUIRED MAINTENANCE: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; replace oil filter every second oil change; clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years; and every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

The Aztecs had a primitive cigarette in the form of tobacco stuffed into a hollow reed or cane tube. Other natives of Mexico, Central America and parts of South America crushed tobacco leaves and rolled the shreds in corn husks or other vegetable wrappers. The widespread use of the cigarette in the English-speaking world dates from the end of the Crimean War, which introduced the British soldiery to Turkish cigarettes.

No Need For Briefing

WASHINGTON AP -- Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today a half-hour's telephone conversation with President Johnson convinced him there is no immediate need for a bipartisan briefings on Viet Nam.

Dirksen suggested such a briefing Tuesday. He said it should cover political and military aspects of the situation.

He told an informal news conference today that Johnson had telephone him Wednesday to discuss the suggestion.

"The President said he had been trying to keep everybody informed of what is going on," Dirksen said. He noted that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNarmara had briefed members of both parties on recent visits to the Capitol.

"The President thought this pretty will took care of the situation," Dirksen said.

He said he agreed that "we can go for a while" without a formal leadership review with the President.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

If the good in our own life is not visible to our eyes we need to center our faith in God, and remember that we are His children. We must stand firm in our faith. We shall not go down in defeat or discouragement when we hold firm to the Truth. God is with us, and His Good is at work in our life and affairs.

Catron Man To Head National Postmasters

CATRON- Henry H. Womack, President of the Missouri Branch, National League of Postmasters of the United States, from Catron, Mo., and who had just been installed as the League's National President at Washington, D.C. headquarters, was the guest of honor and one of the main speakers for the Colorado Branch this past weekend. He had attended their meeting two years ago when he was the house guest of W. Calvin Berk, Postmaster at Idledale, Colorado, who he installed for the third consecutive term at this year's convention. Robert May, Eckley, Colorado, was elected president; and Ruth Stanley, Keota, Colorado, was also re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

There were a number of the regional officials from the postal department as guest speakers, and the local Chamber of Commerce, and Golden High School Centennial Singers that represented Colorado at the Worlds Fair provided entertainment for the annual banquet.

Following the Colorado stop, Postmaster Womack flew on to attend west coast conventions for several days before he returns home, and then he will resume his duty as their National office President, which he succeeded upon the resignation as postmaster of the former Henry Stoffer of Iowa, who is running for election as the congressman from his district.

Jim Warren In Auction Contest

KANSAS CITY - Jim Warren of West Plains, is the first entry to be accepted from the state of Missouri to compete in the 1966 World Champion Livestock Market Auctioneer contest.

The two day event will be held at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, Mich., during the Livestock Marketing Congress June 12th and 13th. The annual contest is conducted by the Missouri Auction School of Kansas City and endorsed by the nation's 800 Certified Livestock Markets. It is designed to determine auctioneering skill and ability. A total of 14 industry judges from throughout the United States will select the World Champion, Reserve World Champion, and 8 Regional and Reserve Champions. The present Champion is Glen Helberg of North Platte, Nebraska and Skinner Hardy of Bakersfield, California is Reserve World Champion.

Warren has been an auctioneer for over 25 years. His entry is being sponsored by the Charleston Auction Company of Charleston, where he has been auctioneering for the past 14 years. This market is owned and operated by Harry "Joker" Warren, II.

This market has enjoyed a steady growth the past 20 years under the Warren's management and is considered by many to be one of the most progressive in the 5 state area.

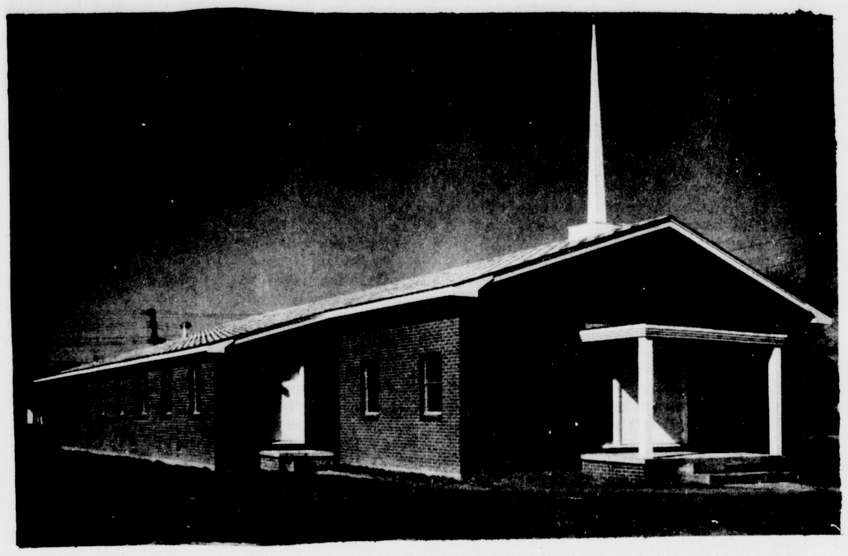
#31 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING WESTEND BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. J. W. GWIN, PASTOR



HISTORY

The Westend Baptist Church was organized at the City Hall in Sikeston. It was then named the Second Baptist. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Williams on the Jake Sides farm. Rev. N. A. Murray was the first pastor.

The present site at the corner of Maude and Fair Streets was purchased, and a Bush Harbor was built there. Later a basement was built and service was held there. It was then named First Baptist Colored. In 1929 the frame was erected and the cornerstone laid.

In 1944 the Church was enlarged and brick veneer was put on it.

In 1948 the old Lincoln School building was purchased and attached to the Church. In 1953 the name was changed to The Westend Baptist Church.

On September 14, 1962 lightening struck the building. The building, all of the furniture and equipment were completely destroyed by fire. Service was then held in the Lincoln School Auditorium. In seven months a beautiful edifice was rebuilt under the leadership of Rev. J. M. Blow. In 1963 our present pastor came to us. Under his ministery a parsonage was built on the Church campus. These buildings are completely furnished and equipped.

Rev. J. W. Gwin is the Pastor. Under his strong leadership many improvements have been made.

Catron Man To Head National Postmasters

CATRON- Henry H. Womack, President of the Missouri Branch, National League of Postmasters of the United States, from Catron, Mo., and who had just been installed as the League's National President at Washington, D.C. headquarters, was the guest of honor and one of the main speakers for the Colorado Branch this past weekend. He had attended their meeting two years ago when he was the house guest of W. Calvin Berk, Postmaster at Idledale, Colorado, who he installed for the third consecutive term at this year's convention. Robert May, Eckley, Colorado, was elected president; and Ruth Stanley, Keota, Colorado, was also re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

There were a number of the regional officials from the postal department as guest speakers, and the local Chamber of Commerce, and Golden High School Centennial Singers that represented Colorado at the Worlds Fair provided entertainment for the annual banquet.

Following the Colorado stop, Postmaster Womack flew on to attend west coast conventions for several days before he returns home, and then he will resume his duty as their National office President, which he succeeded upon the resignation as postmaster of the former Henry Stoffer of Iowa, who is running for election as the congressman from his district.

Jim Warren In Auction Contest

KANSAS CITY - Jim Warren of West Plains, is the first entry to be accepted from the state of Missouri to compete in the 1966 World Champion Livestock Market Auctioneer contest.

The two day event will be held at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, Mich., during the Livestock Marketing Congress June 12th and 13th. The annual contest is conducted by the Missouri Auction School of Kansas City and endorsed by the nation's 800 Certified Livestock Markets. It is designed to determine auctioneering skill and ability. A total of 14 industry judges from throughout the United States will select the World Champion, Reserve World Champion, and 8 Regional and Reserve Champions. The present Champion is Glen Helberg of North Platte, Nebraska and Skinner Hardy of Bakersfield, California is Reserve World Champion.

Warren has been an auctioneer for over 25 years. His entry is being sponsored by the Charleston Auction Company of Charleston, where he has been auctioneering for the past 14 years. This market is owned and operated by Harry "Joker" Warren, II.

This market has enjoyed a steady growth the past 20 years under the Warren's management and is considered by many to be one of the most progressive in the 5 state area.

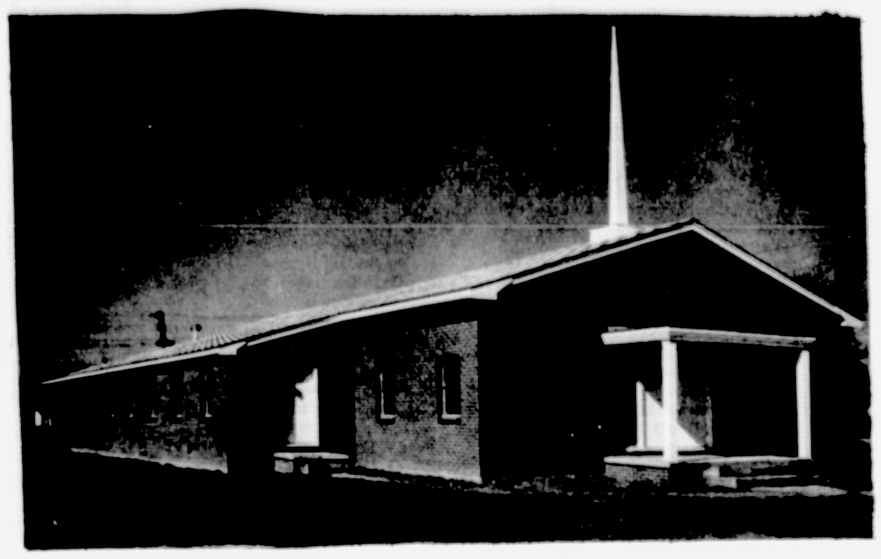
THIS WEEK SALUTING

WESTEND BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. J. W. GWIN, PASTOR



HISTORY

The Westend Baptist Church was organized at the City Hall in Sikeston. It was then named the Second Baptist. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Williams on the Jake Sides farm. Rev. N. A. Murray was the first pastor.

The present site at the corner of Maude and Fair Streets was purchased, and a Bush Harbor was built there. Later a basement was built and service was held there. It was then named First Baptist Colored. In 1929 the frame was erected and the cornerstone laid.

In 1944 the Church was enlarged and brick veneer was put on it.

In 1948 the old Lincoln School building was purchased and attached to the Church. In 1953 the name was changed to The Westend Baptist Church.

On September 14, 1962 lightening struck the building. The building, all of the furniture and equipment were completely destroyed by fire. Service was then held in the Lincoln School Auditorium. In seven months a beautiful edifice was rebuilt under the leadership of Rev. J. M. Blow. In 1963 our present pastor came to us. Under his ministery a parsonage was built on the Church campus. These buildings are completely furnished and equipped.

Rev. J. W. Gwin is the Pastor. Under his strong leadership many improvements have been made.

Exhibit A-7. TRACT NO. 3011-34, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 308.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-8 You are hereby notified that a complaint in condemnation has heretofore been filed in the office of the Clerk of the above named court in an action to condemn a perpetual easement for the erection, operation, and maintenance of a line or lines of poles, towers, or other structures, wires, cables, and fixtures for the transmission of electric current. The easement taken is subject to existing easements for roads, railroads, canals, ditches, pipelines, telegraph lines, telephone lines, and other electric lines. The easement taken includes the perpetual right of ingress and egress, including the right to use, for the purposes of said easement, any and all right, title, and interest of the owner in and to any streets, roads, avenues, alleyways, and right-of-way upon, abutting, or in any way appertaining to the premises over which said easement passes; includes the perpetual right to remove buildings and improvements, except fences and except such buildings and improvements as are appurtenant to existing easements; includes the perpetual right to trim, cut down, remove, and destroy any trees which may interfere with or endanger said transmission line or lines or the maintenance or operation thereof; includes the perpetual right to set all necessary guy and brace poles and anchors and attach all necessary guy wires thereto; and includes the perpetual right to assign, license, permit, or otherwise agree to the sole or joint use or occupancy of such facilities by any other person, association, or corporation for the transmission of electric power and energy; reserving, however, to the owner the right to cultivate, use and occupy said property for any purpose consistent with the rights and privileges herein taken and which will not interfere with or endanger the construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said easement, but said right of cultivation, use and occupancy shall not include the erection of any structure on, or permission to the public to use any part of, said easement, or any requirement for the payment of damages for any injury to crops, trees, vines, seedlings, or improvements on said property which occurs as a result of and during construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said line or lines. In the event of permanent abandonment of said easement, the title and interest of the United States and its assigns shall vest in the owners of the underlying fee interest in said property at the time of abandonment. The properties over which these easements are to be taken are described in Exhibits A-6, A-7, and A-8. The authority for the taking is under the Act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. 357, as amended, 40 U.S.C. sec. 257 (1964); the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, 40 U.S.C. sec. 258a-258f (1964); Section 5 of the Act of December 22, 1944, sec. 5, 58 Stat. 890, 16 U.S.C. sec. 825s (1964); and the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1966, 79 Stat. 1096 (1965). You are further notified that if you have any objections or defense to the taking of your property you are required to serve upon plaintiff's attorney at the address herein designated within twenty days from and after May 27, 1966, an answer identifying the property in which you claim to have an interest, stating the nature and extent of the interest claimed and stating all your objections and defenses to the taking of your property. A failure so to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented. You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property. You are further notified that at the trial on just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have any interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

Armed Forces

LITTLE CREEK, Va (FHTNC) --Radarman Third Class Jerry W. Dewitt, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dewitt of Gray Ridge, Mo., is attending the four-week Petty Officer Leadership Academy at the U. S. Naval Amphibious School, near Virginia Beach, Va.

The course consists of instruction on world affairs, instructor training, naval history, American government, military bearing, honors and ceremonies and other subjects.

8TH INFANTRY DIV., Germany (AHTNC) -- Army Sgt. Charles M. Lawson, whose wife, Wanda, lives at 1130 Ruth St., Sikeston, Mo., was assigned May 18 to the 12th Engineer Battalion in Germany.

The sergeant is a 1946 graduate of Deering (Mo.) High School. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Lawson, live at 118 S. Prince, Lancaster, Pa.

III MARINE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE -- When a Marine starts to look for anything in a combat zone, an item not in the normal supply system, he begins with the nearest Gunnery Sergeant. But a do-it-yourself pizza kit?

Two or three wars ago it was Mom's apple pie, but now some of the troops have acquired a taste for pizza, and they would rather do it themselves.

Corporal David L. Harris, Fort Wayne, Ind., as the self-elected pizza chef for the men of Marine Composite Reconnaissance Squadron (VMCJ)-1 started his quest for pizza with his photo chief. It is not recorded just why the sergeant had pizza mix packed in his belongings, but he did, and he donated it to the pizza project.

There were a few more problems to overcome before the photo men could enjoy their pizza. They had the mix and a cook, but an oven was needed, a pizza pan would be handy and some extra ingredients to give it that special touch.

One member of the unit was talked into making a pizza pan. It turned out square and made of heavy aluminum foil, but a servicable pizza pan, none the less.

Now they had a cook, the mix and a pan. After a short session the unit thinkers decided that a 20mm ammunition can would make a good oven and canned heat ideal fuel. The kit was complete.

Make-shift heat was applied to the make-shift pizza in a make-shift pan in a make-shift oven. After a long wait the sizzling pizza was lifted out.

It looked like a pizza, it smelled like a pizza, if you discounted the smell of burning olive-drab paint, and those that happened to get a piece somewhere between the burned outer edge and the not too well done center, said it even tasted like pizza.

That was some time ago. The photographers turned cooks have improved their method as well as their recipe. Now they roll their own dough and 'Chef' Harris found a stick of pepperoni to add some flavor. He also found some cheese filled with hot pepper seeds to add a little more spice.

The second time around there were no burned edges and the center was done to a turn. There was less burned paint smell too.

Nothing Wrong With Puffin

That was the word Wednesday from the Coast Guard cutter Conifer concerning the 15-foot rowboat in which two English journalists set out last Saturday to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

The Puffin was spotted by the Conifer about 10½ miles off Cape Charles on Virginia's eastern shore, its occupants in good condition.

David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, were not ready to give up, said Lt. T. D. Keith, the cutter's executive officer. He said their only needs were a dry chart and favorable winds.

When they set out from Virginia Beach, the two rowers had hoped to reach St. Ives, England, in less than 55 days.

Johnson Asks For Modern Bill

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson asked Congress today to modernize laws covering political campaign financing and set up a system under which millions more people might get a $100 income tax reduction for political contributions.

Johnson also proposed:

That all candidates and all committees submitting candidates for federal office be required to report every contribution and every expense item above $100.

That members of Senate and House be required to report on outside income, from such things as speeches, consultant or legal fees, or any sources other than from investments.

Administration officials estimated the tax break on contributions would cost the government perhaps $50 million in a presidential election year and perhaps $20 million in other years.

Officials said it was aimed largely at about 36 million persons who are mostly in the lower income tax brackets.

The administration wants to make the new system effective at the start of next year and officials said they thought they had reason for hope that Congress will go along.

The President sent Congress a proposed bill to carry out the new plan along with a letter to the Senate president and House speaker.

The new law would go far beyond the present statutes by applying many provisions to state and local elections as well as to primaries. Johnson said the exemption of primaries in present law is a major defect.

The new plan would limit to $5,000 the total financing any candidate could receive from any single source.

As Johnson put it:

"The present $5,000 limit could no longer be evaded by putting the maximum amount into different pockets in the same suit."

Existing celings on total expenditures by candidates for public office would be repealed --the limits are $25,000 on senatorial candidates and the $5,000 on House candidates.

Under existing law, national political committees can raise and spend no more than $3 million in any one year-but there is no limit on the number of such committees and the law doesn't apply to a committee active only in one state.

Steps Taken Today To Releive Farmers

The House Committee on Agriculture took steps today to bring relief to farmers who suffer from floods, drought or other natural disaster.

The legislation, if enacted, would bring immediate relief to rain-ridden midcontinent cotton areas.

The Committee drafted, for action next Tuesday, a bill authorizing farmers who are unable, because of natural disaster, to plant a crop, which is under an allotment or voluntary production reduction program, to receive price support and land diversion payments on this crop and to produce on their permitted acreages any other crop not subject to production adjustments.

Rep. Paul Jones of Missouri will introduce the new bill which is an expansion of individual bills offered in the House earlier this week by Mr. Jones, by Reps. E.C. Gathings of Arkansas, Thomas G. Abernathy of Mississippi, Frank A. Stubblefield of Kentucky -- all members of the Committee on Agriculture, and by Reps. Ottoe E. Passman of Louisiana, and Robert A. Everett of Tennessee.

The individual bills introduced earlier were intended to deal specifically with distress areas of Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, and a part of Texas, where continuing rains and floods have prevented the planting of the cotton crop, but where there still is time to plant some other crops such as soybeans.

The Committee decided informally that if such relief is provided it should extend to all crops under allotments or in voluntary production adjustment programs, and it ordered the new bill drafted, with Committee action set for Tuesday.

NOTICE OF CONDEMNATION TO: UNKNOWN OWNERS

TRACT NO. 3011-31, Perpetual Easement. A strip of land 100 feet in width within the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 21, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point within said S1/2SW1/4, which point is 653.5 feet North and 198.9 feet East of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 573.5 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 5.60 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-6. TRACT No. 3011-33, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 SW 1/4, which point is 487.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-7. TRACT NO. 3011-34, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 308.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-8 You are hereby notified that a complaint in condemnation has heretofore been filed in the office of the Clerk of the above named court in an action to condemn a perpetual easement for the erection, operation, and maintenance of a line or lines of poles, towers, or other structures, wires, cables, and fixtures for the transmission of electric current. The easement taken is subject to existing easements for roads, railroads, canals, ditches, pipelines, telegraph lines, telephone lines, and other electric lines. The easement taken includes the perpetual right of ingress and egress, including the right to use, for the purposes of said easement, any and all right, title, and interest of the owner in and to any streets, roads, avenues, alleyways, and right-of-way upon, abutting, or in any way appertaining to the premises over which said easement passes; includes the perpetual right to remove buildings and improvements, except fences and except such buildings and improvements as are appurtenant to existing easements; includes the perpetual right to trim, cut down, remove, and destroy any trees which may interfere with or endanger said transmission line or lines or the maintenance or operation thereof; includes the perpetual right to set all necessary guy and brace poles and anchors and attach all necessary guy wires thereto; and includes the perpetual right to assign, license, permit, or otherwise agree to the sole or joint use or occupancy of such facilities by any other person, association, or corporation for the transmission of electric power and energy; reserving, however, to the owner the right to cultivate, use and occupy said property for any purpose consistent with the rights and privileges herein taken and which will not interfere with or endanger the construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said easement, but said right of cultivation, use and occupancy shall not include the erection of any structure on, or permission to the public to use any part of, said easement, or any requirement for the payment of damages for any injury to crops, trees, vines, seedlings, or improvements on said property which occurs as a result of and during construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said line or lines. In the event of permanent abandonment of said easement, the title and interest of the United States and its assigns shall vest in the owners of the underlying fee interest in said property at the time of abandonment. The properties over which these easements are to be taken are described in Exhibits A-6, A-7, and A-8. The authority for the taking is under the Act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. 357, as amended, 40 U.S.C. sec. 257 (1964); the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, 40 U.S.C. sec. 258a-258f (1964); Section 5 of the Act of December 22, 1944, sec. 5, 58 Stat. 890, 16 U.S.C. sec. 825s (1964); and the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1966, 79 Stat. 1096 (1965). You are further notified that if you have any objections or defense to the taking of your property you are required to serve upon plaintiff's attorney at the address herein designated within twenty days from and after May 27, 1966, an answer identifying the property in which you claim to have an interest, stating the nature and extent of the interest claimed and stating all your objections and defenses to the taking of your property. A failure so to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented. You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property. You are further notified that at the trial on just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have any interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

Armed Forces

LITTLE CREEK, Va (FHTNC) --Radarman Third Class Jerry W. Dewitt, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dewitt of Gray Ridge, Mo., is attending the four-week Petty Officer Leadership Academy at the U. S. Naval Amphibious School, near Virginia Beach, Va.

The course consists of instruction on world affairs, instructor training, naval history, American government, military bearing, honors and ceremonies and other subjects.

8TH INFANTRY DIV., Germany (AHTNC) -- Army Sgt. Charles M. Lawson, whose wife, Wanda, lives at 1130 Ruth St., Sikeston, Mo., was assigned May 18 to the 12th Engineer Battalion in Germany.

The sergeant is a 1946 graduate of Deering (Mo.) High School. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Lawson, live at 118 S. Prince, Lancaster, Pa.

III MARINE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE -- When a Marine starts to look for anything in a combat zone, an item not in the normal supply system, he begins with the nearest Gunnery Sergeant. But a do-it-yourself pizza kit?

Two or three wars ago it was Mom's apple pie, but now some of the troops have acquired a taste for pizza, and they would rather do it themselves.

There were a few more problems to overcome before the photo men could enjoy their pizza. They had the mix and a cook, but an oven was needed, a pizza pan would be handy and some extra ingredients to give it that special touch.

One member of the unit was talked into making a pizza pan. It turned out square and made of heavy aluminum foil, but a servicable pizza pan, none the less.

Now they had a cook, the mix and a pan. After a short session the unit thinkers decided that a 20mm ammunition can would make a good oven and canned heat ideal fuel. The kit was complete.

Make-shift heat was applied to the make-shift pizza in a make-shift pan in a make-shift oven. After a long wait the sizzling pizza was lifted out.

It looked like a pizza, it smelled like a pizza, if you discounted the smell of burning olive-drab paint, and those that happened to get a piece somewhere between the burned outer edge and the not too well done center, said it even tasted like pizza.

That was some time ago. The photographers turned cooks have improved their method as well as their recipe. Now they roll their own dough and 'Chef' Harris found a stick of pepperoni to add some flavor. He also found some cheese filled with hot pepper seeds to add a little more spice.

Nothing Wrong With Puffin

That was the word Wednesday from the Coast Guard cutter Conifer concerning the 15-foot rowboat in which two English journalists set out last Saturday to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, were not ready to give up, said Lt. T. D. Keith, the cutter's executive officer. He said their only needs were a dry chart and favorable winds.

Johnson Asks For Modern Bill

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson asked Congress today to modernize laws covering political campaign financing and set up a system under which millions more people might get a $100 income tax reduction for political contributions.

Johnson also proposed:

That all candidates and all committees submitting candidates for federal office be required to report every contribution and every expense item above $100.

That members of Senate and House be required to report on outside income, from such things as speeches, consultant or legal fees, or any sources other than from investments.

Administration officials estimated the tax break on contributions would cost the government perhaps $50 million in a presidential election year and perhaps $20 million in other years.

Officials said it was aimed largely at about 36 million persons who are mostly in the lower income tax brackets.

The administration wants to make the new system effective at the start of next year and officials said they thought they had reason for hope that Congress will go along.

The new law would go far beyond the present statutes by applying many provisions to state and local elections as well as to primaries. Johnson said the exemption of primaries in present law is a major defect.

As Johnson put it:

Existing celings on total expenditures by candidates for public office would be repealed --the limits are $25,000 on senatorial candidates and the $5,000 on House candidates.

Under existing law, national political committees can raise and spend no more than $3 million in any one year-but there is no limit on the number of such committees and the law doesn't apply to a committee active only in one state.

Steps Taken Today To Releive Farmers

The legislation, if enacted, would bring immediate relief to rain-ridden midcontinent cotton areas.

The Committee drafted, for action next Tuesday, a bill authorizing farmers who are unable, because of natural disaster, to plant a crop, which is under an allotment or voluntary production reduction program, to receive price support and land diversion payments on this crop and to produce on their permitted acreages any other crop not subject to production adjustments.

Rep. Paul Jones of Missouri will introduce the new bill which is an expansion of individual bills offered in the House earlier this week by Mr. Jones, by Reps. E.C. Gathings of Arkansas, Thomas G. Abernathy of Mississippi, Frank A. Stubblefield of Kentucky -- all members of the Committee on Agriculture, and by Reps. Ottoe E. Passman of Louisiana, and Robert A. Everett of Tennessee.

The individual bills introduced earlier were intended to deal specifically with distress areas of Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, and a part of Texas, where continuing rains and floods have prevented the planting of the cotton crop, but where there still is time to plant some other crops such as soybeans.

The Committee decided informally that if such relief is provided it should extend to all crops under allotments or in voluntary production adjustment programs, and it ordered the new bill drafted, with Committee action set for Tuesday.

Circle Has Suprise Dinner

PARMA -- Mrs. D. C. Brorein was hostess to the Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church when she entertained 14 members and one guest at dinner in her home, Thursday, May 19. Mrs. Mary Harrison gave the prayer before serving began. All members joined in singing "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Brorein, who was surprised with a strawberry birthday cake baked by Mrs. David Shaw.

The regular monthly business meeting was conducted by Mrs. David Shaw, circle chairman. The treasurer's report and the minutes were read by Mrs. E. J. Reynolds.

Mrs. Pascal Gardner was in charge of the program, "The Day Geography Got Lost," which was the theme of the United Women of the Methodist church. The meditation was given by Mrs. Scott Barney and Mrs. H. R. Woodside presented a related article. The program was closed with prayer by Mrs. Tom Womack.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in quilting in the recreation room of the Methodist church.

Others attending were Mrs. Carl Shaw, Mrs. Joe Salyer, Mrs. Dock Pemberton, Mrs. Walter Frailey, Mrs. Charles Reinbott, Mrs. Sidney Lindley, and a guest, Mrs. Henry Overfield.

April birthdays celebrated were those of Mrs. Salyer, Mrs. Lindley, Mrs. Frailey, and Mrs. Dale Cravens.

Extension Club Has Meeting

BELL CITY - The Busy Bee Extension Club met May 19 at the home of Mrs. McQuire with five members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Seola Jones became a member during the meeting. Roll call was answered with my favorite dish. Mrs. J. C. Pullen, Jr., gave a report on the county council meeting.

The club discussed making a tour of a fabric store in the future.

Mrs. Mary Jordon will be hostess to the club Thursday, June 16. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Circle Has Suprise Dinner

PARMA -- Mrs. D. C. Brorein was hostess to the Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church when she entertained 14 members and one guest at dinner in her home, Thursday, May 19. Mrs. Mary Harrison gave the prayer before serving began. All members joined in singing "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Brorein, who was surprised with a strawberry birthday cake baked by Mrs. David Shaw.

The regular monthly business meeting was conducted by Mrs. David Shaw, circle chairman. The treasurer's report and the minutes were read by Mrs. E. J. Reynolds.

Mrs. Pascal Gardner was in charge of the program, "The Day Geography Got Lost," which was the theme of the United Women of the Methodist church. The meditation was given by Mrs. Scott Barney and Mrs. H. R. Woodside presented a related article. The program was closed with prayer by Mrs. Tom Womack.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in quilting in the recreation room of the Methodist church.

Others attending were Mrs. Carl Shaw, Mrs. Joe Salyer, Mrs. Dock Pemberton, Mrs. Walter Frailey, Mrs. Charles Reinbott, Mrs. Sidney Lindley, and a guest, Mrs. Henry Overfield.

April birthdays celebrated were those of Mrs. Salyer, Mrs. Lindley, Mrs. Frailey, and Mrs. Dale Cravens.

Extension Club Has Meeting

BELL CITY - The Busy Bee Extension Club met May 19 at the home of Mrs. McQuire with five members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Seola Jones became a member during the meeting. Roll call was answered with my favorite dish. Mrs. J. C. Pullen, Jr., gave a report on the county council meeting.

The club discussed making a tour of a fabric store in the future.

Mrs. Mary Jordon will be hostess to the club Thursday, June 16. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

For Today From The Upper Room

You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a dedicated nation, and a people claimed by God for his own, to proclaim the triumphs of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvellous light. (I Peter 2:9, NEB)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, I thank Thee for the privilege of serving Thee. Help me to work faithfully and prayerfully whenever and whereever possible. In the name of Christ. Amen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,
Daily Sikeston Standard

Report of the Courtesy Committee, I.O.O.F. -- Rep. H. O. Head read the report of the Courtesy Committee, which was on his motion, adopted.

To The Grand Lodge Of Missouri, I.O.O.F.:

We wish to entend our sincere thanks and appreciation to our brothers and sisters who made this Grand Lodge session possible and so enjoyable; also, to the management and employees of the City of Sikeston and all motels, hotels, and private homes.

Our sincere thanks to the radio, newspapers and other news media which gave us mention.

Our heartfelt thanks to the Deputy Sovereign Grand Master Bro. Black, for his presence and good message of the evening. Also, our other distinguished guests from Illinois, Iowa, Texas, and Kansas for their presence because it made our session most enjoyable. We extend our deepest thanks to John Sandberg, who made the report on his wonderful trip of the United Nation Pilgrimage, which was appreciated to the very depth and may we never falter in sponsoring those things that strengthen our young.

We realize that we have been the recipients of many courtesies from many brothers and sisters as well as businesses and residents of Sikeston. To all these and any others that have assisted in any way, we wish to extend our thanks and appreciation.

We also wish to extend our personal thanks to Mayor Kendall Sikes of Sikeston, and his staff, for every courtesy shown; and we wish for him extended happiness and prosperity in the days to come.

As we enter upon the final hours of this Grand Lodge session, we extend our thanks to Almighty God for watching over us during our deliberations at this session and we know that He will always be with us on the road to Friendship, Love and Truth.

Dear Charley:

We arrived home Monday and found the Saturday Standard in our mail box which is prompt service. We read the old home town paper from cover to cover. I want to congratulate you and Leo Schade for the awards you won at the Press Convention. Also I want you to know that I enjoyed the coffee Club at Harris Drug store. The coffee was good and so was the conversation. We really enjoyed every minute of our three weeks in Sikeston for all our friends were so nice to us and seemed to be as glad to be with us as we were to be with them again. We tried to see as many of our friends as we could, but we know that we missed visiting with many of them, but perhaps we can visit with them the next time. We are very happy here in Florida, but we can never forget Sikeston and the friendly people there. We also noticed the progress that has been made in the year and a half since we left, especially the widening of the streets and the new street lights for which the people can thank the city council and Raymert Miller. Many new houses and buildings have also been erected. Sikeston is surely a progressive town. Again we thank all our good friends who entertained us so royally.

Today In U.S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date

In 1933, the Century of Progress Exposition opened in Chicago.

In 1946, the War Department issued a report saying that enlisted men in some cases were treated unfairly and recommended various changes.

Ten years ago -- French troops raided and sealed off the Casbah Quarter of Algiers in search of terrorists and rebel arms, taking 6,000 Algerians in for screening and arresting 522 of them.

Five years ago -- The U. S. delegation to the Geneva conference on Laos accused the pro-Communist rebels in Laos of resuming attacks against rightist and neutralist forces in violation of a cease-fire.

One year ago -- U. S. Secretary-General U Thant said the Organization of American States replacing the United Nations as the principal mediator in the Dominican Republic could set, in his words, an embarrassing precedent.

Communist Infiltration Petitions

WASHINGTON AP -- The Rev. Bill Beeny, a St. Louis preacher, presented to the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday a batch of petitions asking that it investigate alleged Communist infiltration of civil rights groups.

Mr. Beeny, 38, said petitions and letters bearing 106,341 names were collected largely as a result of appeals on his daily broadcast of a program he described as "half convervative, half religious." He said the program is carried on 26 radio stations.

Rep. William M. Tuck, D-Va. ranking Democrat on the committee, and Rep. John Buchanan R-Ala., accepted a large package of petitions from Mr. Beeny, who said he would mail in the remainder.

Mr. Beeny said he was pastor of the St. Louis Baptist temple, and that his congregation numbered about 600. He said chapters of the John Birch Society helped circulate the petitions.

Today In U.S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date

In 1933, the Century of Progress Exposition opened in Chicago.

In 1946, the War Department issued a report saying that enlisted men in some cases were treated unfairly and recommended various changes.

Ten years ago--French troops raided and sealed off the Casbah Quarter of Algiers in search of terrorists and rebel arms, taking 6,000 Algerians in for screening and arresting 522 of them.

Five years ago -- The U. S. delegation to the Geneva conference on Laos accused the pro-Communist rebels in Laos of resuming attacks against rightist and neutralist forces in violation of a cease-fire.

One year ago -- U. S. Secretary-General U Thant said the Organization of American States replacing the United Nations as the principal mediator in the Dominican Republic could set, in his words, an embarrassing precedent.

Communist Infiltration Petitions

WASHINGTON AP -- The Rev. Bill Beeny, a St. Louis preacher, presented to the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday a batch of petitions asking that it investigate alleged Communist infiltration of civil rights groups.

the Malden area two weeks ago from Michigan, and were making their home with a brother of Mrs. Johnson for the time being. Two other sons were not with their mother at the time of the accident.

The accident occurred about a half mile from where they were making their home.

In a single car accident Thursday, one mile west on route D, a 1964 Ford, driven by Troy Lee Woodring, 44, Campbell, struck a bridge railing. He received several fractured ribs, and a dislocated shoulder and was taken to the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital.

According to the state patrol, he was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Three persons were injured in an accident last night at 9:10 p.m. on highway 61, one mile west of Cape Girardeau, when a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Janet Ann Hoover, 17, Cape Girardeau, came over a hill at a high rate of speed, when the driver lost control and went into a ditch.

The driver received cuts and bruises on the leg, while a passenger, Eva Spradling, 33, Cape Girardeau, had cuts and bruises on her leg. A second passenger, Quintin W. Headrick, 20, Cape Girardeau, received bruises on his back, shoulders and arms. All three were taken to a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Robert Harper also received a $680 scholarship to the University of Kansas and was recognized as being a finalist in the National Merit Foundation. This ranks Harper as being in the top one-half of one per cent of the secondary seniors in the nations.

Sixty-One To Be Widened

The old U. S. highway 61, from the North "Y" in Sikeston to Malone Avenue will be made into a four-lane roadway according to district ten engineer, W. D. Carney.

A study on the widening of the roadway willl be made sometime within the next two weeks, after which the findings will be placed on the planning stage.

Breakin Reported

Judy Endy, 1725 Oklahoma, reported to the police, that a man broke a window in the back part of the house in an attempt to gain entrance early today. Officer Thurman Burns investigated the break-in.

Bicycles Stolen

Two bicycles were stolen from the carport of Jack Britt, 235 Helen. One was a 26 inch red newly painted bicycle, and the other a 20 inch red and white bicycle, both taken early Thursday morning.

Invention of Bowling

The game of ninepins was brought to this country by Dutch settlers in the 17th century. The game became so popular that a blue law was passed to forbid its playing. Bowlers got around the law by adding a 10th pin and thus bowling, as it is known today, was invented.

Scientist Says There Is Life Out There

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES AP -- Does intellignece exist "out there?"

A scientist-priest says yes, and speculates some may be angel-like superior beings while others may be "fallen" creatures like ourselves.

The Rev. J. Joseph Lynch, Fordham University seismologist, told a symposium of the American Astronautical Society in suburban Anaheim Wednesday that God's desire to share His goodness "would be better satisfied by having myriads of galaxies inhabited by intelligent beings."

Commented Dr. Harold Klein, assistant director for life sciences at the U. S. Space Agency's Ames Research Center, who invited Dr. Lynch to speak:

"I confess I am surprised at the positive position taken by him. It is obvious the church is prepared for the contingency we may find intelligent life on other worlds. It is coming to grips with this problem"

Said Dr. Ernan McMullin, professor of philosophy at the University of Notre Dame, also on the sumposium panel:

"The possibility of a plurality of worlds has been discussed by theologians since the 14th Century."

After men like Dr. Frank Drake of Cornell University's Center for Radiophysics proposed huge radio observatories to hunt for emissions from distant civilizations, Dr. Lynch offered this admittedly theological clincher:

"It seems reasonable to suppose some of our extraterrestrial neighbors would survive the test of acknowledging God's supremacy, which He said caused some angels to fall and some, like ourselves, fail as we did in the person of our first parents Adam and Eve.

"We could expect, therefore, at least two broad classes of extraterrestrial neighbors: Those who survived the test and those who failed."

Dr. Lynch added there might even be a civilization worse than ours: "A race fallen but not redeemed -- a possibility I do not care to entertain -- would be far inferior to us."

MOREHOUSE GETS DIRECT DIALING

Beginning Sunday, June 5, all Morehouse eight-party rural telephone customers will be able to dial their own station-to station Long Distance telephone calls direct across the nation, John Donoho, manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, has announced.

"We are happy to extend this fast, convenient method of calling to our Morehouse rural customers," Donoho said.

Donoho explained how eight-party rural customers will place station-to-station cails. "Just lift your receiver and listen for the dial tone. Then dial the digit '1' followed by the three-digit Area Code number, and the two letters and five figures of the telephone number. It's just that easy," he pointed out.

"With DDD you can call friends and relatives who live far away, or, nearby," he added, "at the low station-to-station rates."

City customers will continue to place their station-to-station calls as they have in the past. "The method for placing calls is identical," Donoho explained.

For Direct Distance Dialing, the United States is divided into dialing areas, Donoho explained. Each area is identified by a code number consisting of three figures. For example, the Area Code for Chicago and vicinity is 312.

If a customer reaches a wrong number, he should find out the telephone number and city he reached, hang up, then dial "Operator" immediately. She will see that the customer is not charged for the call.

The Right Idea Forms In France

ESPARROS, France AP -- Nearly a thousand unmarried women are expected to flock into the Esparros region of the Pyrenees this weekend in search of husbands.

They are coming to a "bachelors' festival" which more than 600 lonely men in the region of southwest France are holding.

Hotels and restaurants for miles around will be swamped. The gendarmes are sending 100 men, 10 radio trucks and a helicopter to handle the crowds.

The village priest of Esparros, who hasn't rung the wedding bells for four years, is looking for plenty of ringing in the coming months.

This village of 240 has 28 bachelors, most of them 30 to 60 years old. It was among them the festival idea began. They got tired of going home alone, having dinner with aged parents, and going to bed early.

Mayor M. Duthu talked it over with the priest. They organized a committee and set aside May 29-30 for the affair.

Both issued official invitations to single women -- the mayor through official channels to all the other town halls of France, the priest to other churches.

Each visitor will receive a white numbered corsage. The first step will be to find the bachelor with the same number on his red boutonniere.

Mass will be celebrated Sunday in the open air as the church is too small. At noon the village officials will hold a wine reception. Then comes "dancing until dawn."

Animals tend to eat more when they have company.

There has been a change in weather. See it sleeted 2 day in Michigan. Rain Rain every where. Circuit Judge Marshall Craig wrote me 2 have it rain. It did. I saw him at Sikeston armery the other nite I wispered 2 him Its rained. some pretty gal kissed me as I came out Don't even know what she was I was watching Deverlera and his orchestra play. I was trying 2 see who the woman harpest was.

Mrs. Frank, home economist, punched me, said I was beautiful. I told her I had been told that before. Doctors call me Marilyn Monroe. My George calls me Sophia Tucker cause I talk so much, Hedda Hopper cause I got so many hats and Millie Walhousen calls me Granma Mosley cause I quilt so much.

Got to finish my Rose Sharon quilt. This is Sun. morn May 22, 1966. I'm to go 2 Bertrand M. E. church with Willette Thomas. Subject of church school lesson was corruption amidst prosperity by Walter E. Hurlenson.

Bertha Collier leader in adult women's class. Read a hymn High in Eternal Sons of Man. Bob Burkes sermon was The Shelter of the Most High. Those in adult women's class last Sunday morn. were Bertha Collier, leader, Tressie Maukin, Delphia Elliott, Eva Gaty, Florence Fenimore.

J. L. Young led church school with Eugenia Bush at piano. I understand Tinsey Benford is still a shut in. They had a wreck. It evidently diden't hurt Bob for he was at church school and church last Sun.

Those in choir last Sun. were Alberta McKinley, Mary Burke, Mrs. Redding, Lois and Linda Miller and Preston McKinley. He is our candlelighter and snuffer. I kissed Rosemary and Lewis as I went out. I really think she is beautiful. So is her mother, Helen Bagby. I saw Mrs. Woods. She is Arlen Millers sister.

I learned that my cousin Kate Allen had gone back 2 Hollywood Calif. 2 live with Ben Allen, her son. She wanted me 2 go live with her said she lived between 2 movie houses. Said we might catch a feller. I told her she hadent caught any either I came very near it tho. I flew back from Calif. by myself. Geo. was in Europe. Dutch Shankle, multi-milliane, kissed me goodby when I went 2 get off plane tired out some nice looking man near by as good looking as my late husband Geo. Sr. said won't you go to Miami Fla. with him. I said no I ain't a going 2 Miami, Fla. with no stranger. I've got relatives in Miami, Fla. I ain't going with no strange man. I bet stewardess were putting him up 2 it. They saw Dutch kiss me. They were just dying laughing. I dident take out guy insurance either. Just got 1 time 2 die. Me and Geo. Sr. swore we'd never ride a plane, but Geo. Jr. made me. Lockered owned that he was on that plan and he was the 1 that sent that arrow 2 the Powers man in Russia he was a spy.

He dident have 2 use it. They put him in jail. He is out left his wife cause she was a drunkard.

Last Wed. I went 2 W.S.C.S. at Bertrand M.E. church. Those present were Bob Burke, Cordia Farmer, Ilene Voelker, Bertha Collier, Clara Peters, Irene Gaty, Elva Gaty and Florence Fenimore, Blanche Miller.

We had a good lunch, business and missionary meeting. Pledges made. Helen Bagby I church treasurer and W.S.C.S. treas. Helen Bagby read minutes of last.

Bob Burke dismissed us with a prayer. Cordia Farmer took me and Blanche Miller. Brot me home last Thurs afternoon. Nanni Beard entertained me in her swank. She has those rooms all over and they really look nice. I want 2 entertain them in my room. I want 2 get a sette 1 chair she said Govt. wouldent let me. Govt. won't let us. Poor devils under dogs have anything comfortable I wanted a mirrow rug and interspring mattress. George Shelby and derueicourt said we couldent have it.

I've been in their homes. They sure have soft. My dad Judge J. P. Bush always said if I made my bed hard lay on. It so I do I sit up most time.

I've joined the historical society of Charleston, Mo. Lillian Roberts wanted me 2 bring as if I don't belong. Yes I do I belong 2 Democrat club for years. See it meets Mon. nite at Charleston library. The OES Ime. past matron twice. I've sat in chapter when Mary Jane Truman was installed. Harry Truman came in 1 feller setting by me. He could take a pop at Harry Truman I said no you can't look at FBI all around. I can spot them about 6,000 people in Arena St. Louis. I see Mary Jane Truman installed. See 400 people attended Harry Trumans birthday dinner.

Recently I belong 2 W.C.T.U. Royal neighbors and W.S.C.S. We had 6 at home E.C. Club has Thurs. afternoon. They were Betty Wagner, Naomi Beard, Susie Q. Beard, Vera Ashmore, Willie Elkins and Florence Fenimore. We read club collect. Dues collected. We played bingo lots prizes. Mon. next Home E. C. Club meets with Betty Wagner. She was here Sat. afternoon. Her grandson wanted me 2 go home with them. I told him I couldent. I got 2 get a check up from Doc Fuergonson Clinic. Neomi Beard will take 2 get some shoes with roundin does.

Last Tues. night Willette Thomas and I went 2 see Greatest Story Ever Told. Alberta McKinley went 2. I saw Melvin Bowman and Sam Schyler Bowman. My gransons out. Melvin Bowman kissed her told her to come see me. She said she would some time. Saw Stella Emery of Elite Shop. I said did you know my sister Fannie Bush used 2 date her brother-in-law Jim Emery of Essex, Mo. She said yes I've seen Obermuergra 3 times. Last time at Bloomington, Ill. 1 time in Sikeston.

Bill Duncan of St. Louis, Mo. portrayed Peter. Bill Duncan is a lawyer in St. Louis, Mo. belongs 2 London Ltd.

Crossing Safety Standards Improved

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- With railroad crossing accidents on the increase, Gov. Warren Hearnes announced yesterday formation of a special committee to improve crossing safety standards.

William R. Clark, chairman of the Public Service Commission, is chairman. Working with him will be:

Judge Charles W. Stock of California, president of the Missouri Association of County Judges, Jack Stapleton Sr., chairman of the Highway Commission; Col. E. I. Mike Hockaday, superintendent of the Highway Patrol; Harold Harvey of St. Louis, general attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railroad; D. M. Schmitt of Kansas City, legislative representative of the railroad brotherhoods; R. Dale Findlay, executive secretary of the state safety council, and Eugene Walsh, the governor's legal secretary.

Schmitt will be vice chairman and Mrs. Karolyn Pond of the PSC legal staff, will serve as attorney for the committee.

"I am alarmed at the increased number of accidents which have occurred at grade crossings in Missouri since the first of the year," Hearnes said.

"Since January, 37 accidents in which 59 persons were killed or maimed have been reported to the railroad safety department of the Public Service Commission.

"Since Friday, seven persons have lost their lives at Kansas City and Montgomery City railroad crossings and we must take action to protect Missourians from these hazards."

The governor said the committee's job will be to find out what is causing the sharp rise in crossing accidents and recommend remedial legislation if necessary.

You see, a Realtor is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local board and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

He's trained to evaluate your castle (or home), recommend the right price, and show it only to interested buyers.

So whether you're selling a three-room bungalow or a 90-room chateau, see a Realtor. Look for this seal, which only he may display.

Bertha Collier leader in adult women's class. Read a hymn High in Eternal Sons of Man. Bob Burkes sermon was The Shelter of the Most High. Those in adult women's class last Sunday morn. were Bertha Collier, leader, Tressie Maukin, Delphia Elliott, Eva Gaty, Florence Fenimore.

J. L. Young led church school with Eugenia Bush at piano. I understand Tinsey Benford is still a shut in. They had a wreck. It evidently diden't hurt Bob for he was at church school and church last Sun.

Those in choir last Sun. were Alberta McKinley, Mary Burke, Mrs. Redding, Lois and Linda Miller and Preston McKinley. He is our candle lighter and snuffer. I kissed Rosemary and Lewis as I went out. I really think she is beautiful. So is her mother, Helen Bagby. I saw Mrs. Woods. She is Arlen Millers sister.

I learned that my cousin Kate Allen had gone back 2 Hollywood Calif. 2 live with Ben Allen, her son. She wanted me 2 go live with her said she lived between 2 movie houses. Said we might catch a feller. I told her she hadent caught any either I came very near it tho. I flew back from Calif. by myself. Geo. was in Europe. Dutch Shankle, multi-milliane, kissed me goodby when I went 2 get off plane tired out some nice looking man near by as good looking as my late husband Geo. Sr. said won't you go to Miami Fla. with him. I said no I ain't a going 2 Miami, Fla. with no stranger. I've got relatives in Miami, Fla. I ain't going with no strange man. I bet stewardess were putting him up 2 it. They saw Dutch kiss me. They were just dying laughing. I dident take out guy insurance either. Just got 1 time 2 die. Me and Geo. Sr. swore we'd never ride a plane, but Geo. Jr. made me. Lockered owned that he was on that plan and he was the 1 that sent that arrow 2 the Powers man in Russia he was a spy.

He dident have 2 use it. They put him in jail. He is out left his wife cause she was a drunkard.

Last Wed. I went 2 W.S.C.S. at Bertrand M.E. church. Those present were Bob Burke, Cordia Farmer, Ilene Voelker, Bertha Collier, Clara Peters, Irene Gaty, Elva Gaty and Florence Fenimore, Blanche Miller.

We had a good lunch, business and missionary meeting. Pledges made. Helen Bagby I church treasurer and W.S.C.S. treas. Helen Bagby read minutes of last.

Bob Burke dismissed us with a prayer. Cordia Farmer took me and Blanche Miller. Brot me home last Thurs afternoon. Nanni Beard entertained me in her swank. She has those rooms all over and they really look nice. I want 2 entertain them in my room. I want 2 get a sette 1 chair she said Govt. wouldent let me. Govt. won't let us. Poor devils under dogs have anything comfortable I wanted a mirrow rug and interspring mattress. George Shelby and derueicourt said we couldent have it.

I've been in their homes. They sure have soft. My dad Judge J. P. Bush always said if I made my bed hard lay on. It so I do I sit up most time.

I've joined the historical society of Charleston, Mo. Lillian Roberts wanted me 2 bring as if I don't belong. Yes I do I belong 2 Democrat club for years. See it meets Mon. nite at Charleston library. The OES Ime. past matron twice. I've sat in chapter when Mary Jane Truman was installed. Harry Truman came in 1 feller setting by me. He could take a pop at Harry Truman I said no you can't look at FBI all around. I can spot them about 6,000 people in Arena St. Louis. I see Mary Jane Truman installed. See 400 people attended Harry Trumans birthday dinner.

Recently I belong 2 W.C.T.U. Royal neighbors and W.S.C.S. We had 6 at home E.C. Club has Thurs. afternoon. They were Betty Wagner, Naomi Beard, Susie Q. Beard, Vera Ashmore, Willie Elkins and Florence Fenimore. We read club collect. Dues collected. We played bingo lots prizes. Mon. next Home E. C. Club meets with Betty Wagner. She was here Sat. afternoon. Her grandson wanted me 2 go home with them. I told him I couldent. I got 2 get a check up from Doc Fuergonson Clinic. Neomi Beard will take 2 get some shoes with roundin does.

Last Tues. night Willette Thomas and I went 2 see Greatest Story Ever Told. Alberta McKinley went 2. I saw Melvin Bowman and Sam Schyler Bowman. My gransons out. Melvin Bowman kissed her told her to come see me. She said she would some time. Saw Stella Emery of Elite Shop. I said did you know my sister Fannie Bush used 2 date her brother-in-law Jim Emery of Essex, Mo. She said yes I've seen Obermuergra 3 times. Last time at Bloomington, Ill. 1 time in Sikeston.

Bill Duncan of St. Louis, Mo. portrayed Peter. Bill Duncan is a lawyer in St. Louis, Mo. belongs 2 London Ltd.

Crossing Safety Standards Improved

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- With railroad crossing accidents on the increase, Gov. Warren Hearnes announced yesterday formation of a special committee to improve crossing safety standards.

William R. Clark, chairman of the Public Service Commission, is chairman. Working with him will be:

Judge Charles W. Stock of California, president of the Missouri Association of County Judges, Jack Stapleton Sr., chairman of the Highway Commission; Col. E. I. Mike Hockaday, superintendent of the Highway Patrol; Harold Harvey of St. Louis, general attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railroad; D. M. Schmitt of Kansas City, legislative representative of the railroad brotherhoods; R. Dale Findlay, executive secretary of the state safety council, and Eugene Walsh, the governor's legal secretary.

Schmitt will be vice chairman and Mrs. Karolyn Pond of the PSC legal staff, will serve as attorney for the committee.

"I am alarmed at the increased number of accidents which have occurred at grade crossings in Missouri since the first of the year," Hearnes said.

"Since January, 37 accidents in which 59 persons were killed or maimed have been reported to the railroad safety department of the Public Service Commission.

"Since Friday, seven persons have lost their lives at Kansas City and Montgomery City railroad crossings and we must take action to protect Missourians from these hazards."

The governor said the committee's job will be to find out what is causing the sharp rise in crossing accidents and recommend remedial legislation if necessary.

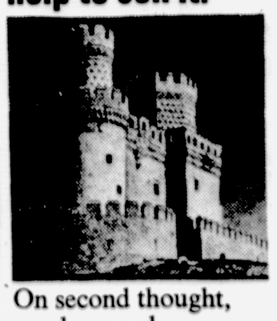
If your home is really your castle, you probably don't need a professional's help to sell it.



On second thought, maybe you do.

You couldn't sell your castle as efficiently as a Realtor®. Because that's his job, to be an expert.

You see, a Realtor is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local board and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Revised Bible To Be Used By Catholics

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

BOSTON AP -- Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, has given official Roman Catholic approval to a Protestant version of the Bible.

The move, described by a priest as a "breakthrough for the ecumenical movement," means Roman Catholics everywhere can use the Revised Standard Version of the Oxford annotated Bible.

The approval covers "common usage," such as home Bible reading and study groups, but does not extend to liturgical use.

Cardinal Cushing gave the version his approval, known as an "imprimatur," late last month. The action was announced Wednesday.

An imprimatur is permission from an ecclesiastical authority that a book may be safely read by Roman Catholics without damage to faith or morals.

The revised Oxford version was authorized by the National Council of Churches of the U.S.A. in 1951 and first published by Oxford Press in 1962 for Protestant use.

The Oxford version has been used for the past three years in Bible courses at Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass., in an experiment.

The Rev. W. Van Etting Casey, a faculty member at the Jesuit institution, said the experiment proved successful and helped speed the approval, which he described as an ecumenical breakthrough.

Thus Roman Catholics now can use a Protestant Bible that also contains background material produced by American Protestant scholars.

Cardinal Cushing, a leader in the ecumenical movement, based his approval on the "best objective scholarship," Father Casey said. The recommendation for approval came from a committee of Protestant and Roman Catholic scholars.

The committee included Father Casey, the Rev. Phillip J. King of St. John's Seminary in Boston, who consulted with the Bible's co-editors, Dr. Herbert G. May of the Oberlin School of Theology and Dr. Bruce Metzer of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

None of the Protestant material in the revised Oxford edition has to be eliminated, church officials here said, adding that only 14 notations are required.

The notations concern the Roman Catholic belief that the mother of God, Mary was a virgin.

One such note concerns the version's reference to "brothers" of Jesus. It says the word also was used to indentify persons of other relationships, such as cousins.

by Walter Millis

The defenses against sedition were rapidly strengthened. Other Congressional committees joined the House Un-American work of exposing Communists, pro-Communists, and suspected pro-Communists, not only in government service, but in the trades unions, the motion picture industry, the universities and schools, and in the press. The Atomic Energy Act of 1946, in making the most stringent provisions for secrecy, required the Atomic Energy Commission to establish a rigid screening of its own and its contractors' employees for "character, associations and loyalty." In 1947 President Truman promulgated the first formal loyalty program, requiring an investigation of the "loyalty" of all persons entering Federal civil employment and providing for the hearing of charges of disloyalty brought against any in the service. In the same year the Taft-Hartley Act required a non-Communist oath from officers of trades unions.

While the investigating committees had long been exposing suspected Communists in government, it was not until the summer of 1948 that the testimony of Elizabeth Bentley and Whittaker Chambers brought to the public the first tangible evidence that, at one time at any rate, there had existed Soviet espionage or been in a position improperly to influence government policy. This helped to awaken powerful support for the Mundt-Nixon bill, introduced by the Un-American Activities Committee earlier in the year. The Mundt-Nixon bill (not itself enacted, but largely incorporated in the Internal Security Act of 1950) adopted a rather new approach. In 1940 the Voorhis Act had sought to compel subversive organizations to register, to disclose their membership, and reveal their finances and activities. While the Communist Party was the principal target, the word "Communism" was not used, and the act was of no effect. The Mundt-Nixon bill now boldly defined "Communist action" and "Communist front" organizations, required them to register and make disclosure, and empowered the Attorney General to see that they did so. The Communists would thus expose themselves, and render themselves subject to the various disabilities that had been or might be imposed upon "subversives". Reliance on the principle of disclosure was believed preferable to the "outlawry" of Communism, as well as less repugnant to the Constitution. In effect, Communists would be isolated from the rest of the community, making it possible to reduce them to a status of second-class citizenship without, it seemed, imperilling the liberties of the great non-Communist majority. To many this seemed a valid solution for the problem of how to control those who were to destroy them, without in the process risking the destruction of the freedoms themselves.

Guyana Proclaims It's Independence

By PAUL FINCH

GEORGETOWN, Guyana AP -- Floodlights lit up the midnight sky Wednesday night and 50,000 Guyanese cheered as the five-colored flag of Guyana went up in place of the Union Jack, signaling independence for another British colony.

The joyous outburst came after a solemn moment in Queen Elizabeth Park when the British flag was lowered in darkness while bands played "God Save the Queen."

A few persons near the press box shouted, "Down! Down for good!"

Then the lights blazed on, and the bands switched to "Green Land of Guyana" as the new national banner was hoisted. Prime Minister Forbes Burnham wept.

Jagan told newsmen: "I have come, as I promised, to honor independence."

Jagan and his People's Progressive Party are boycotting all ceremonies aside from the flag raising and the opening of the first independent Parliament. His Chicago-born wife, Janet, refused to attend the ceremony Wednesday night.

Georgetown, which appeared sleepy earlier this week, came alive with thousands jamming the streets, dancing, cheering, and drinking rum.

Steel bands and calypso singers entertained in major night spots. The holiday was expected to run through the weekend and Monday, which is a religious day.

Flag raising ceremonies took place simultaneously in every town and village of the new nation on the northern coast of South America. They marked the end of 385 years of British, Dutch and French rule.

Johnson Says U.S. Not Over-Extended

KANSAS CITY AP -- Commander Andy Borg of the Veterans of Foreign Wars said today President Johnson has assured him the U.S. military establishment is not overextended and can cope with any aggression.

Borg had written the President that contradictory statements over foreign policy and doubt as to the real enemy in Viet Nam had caused confusion among Americans. Borg called it "a national neurosis about our foreign policy."

As to the foreign policy committee Johnson replied:

"I have noted and I shall consider further your suggestions about bringing to bear distinguished men from outside the government to examine and make recommendations about our foreign policy. We are undertaking steps in this direction which, I trust, will commend themselves to you when they are announced."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

No Man is an island, entire of itself;
—John Donne

This oft quoted phrase by John Donne is typical of one of his great themes in life, man's relation to his fellow man. An English poet, theologian and preacher, Donne had a faith that would not permit him to take an oath which probably kept him from getting his degree at Oxford University. He studied law at Lincoln Inn, then the Humanities. Noting his brilliance, King James I urged him to enter the Anglican clergy. He had been raised a Catholic. After much thought and years of theological study Donne entered the Anglican church in 1615. He was made chaplain to the King, and divinity reader at Lincoln Inn. In 1626 he became dean of St. Paul's Cathedral. He preached to the King and nobility, but was also popular with the people. In a time of great preachers Donne's sermons were unexcelled. They are still read today and he has perhaps reached his greatest acclaim in the Twentieth Century.

Johnson Says U.S. Not Over -Extended

KANSAS CITY AP -- Commander Andy Borg of the Veterans of Foreign Wars said today President Johnson has assured him the U.S. military establishment is not overextended and can cope with any aggression.

Borg had written the President that contradictory statements over foreign policy and doubt as to the real enemy in Viet Nam had caused confusion among Americans. Borg called it "a national neurosis about our foreign policy."

As to the foreign policy committee Johnson replied:

"I have noted and I shall consider further your suggestions about bringing to bear distinguished men from outside the government to examine and make recommendations about our foreign policy. We are undertaking steps in this direction which, I trust, will commend themselves to you when they are announced."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

No Man is an island, entire of itself;

—John Donne

This oft quoted phrase by John Donne is typical of one of his great themes in life, man's relation to his fellow man. An English poet, theologian and preacher, Donne had a faith that would not permit him to take an oath which probably kept him from getting his degree at Oxford University. He studied law at Lincoln Inn, then the Humanities. Noting his brilliance, King James I urged him to enter the Anglican clergy. He had been raised a Catholic. After much thought and years of theological study Donne entered the Anglican church in 1615. He was made chaplain to the King, and divinity reader at Lincoln Inn. In 1626 he became dean of St. Paul's Cathedral. He preached to the King and nobility, but was also popular with the people. In a time of great preachers Donne's sermons were unexcelled. They are still read today and he has perhaps reached his greatest acclaim in the Twentieth Century.

Buying Beef For Your Home Freezer

If you own a home freezer, chances are you've thought about stocking it with beef. Whether you plan to buy several cuts, a quarter, or a whole carcass, there are several factors to consider if you want to be sure of getting the best buy for your money.

One way to be sure is to let the U.S. Department of Agriculture help. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service offers a grading program which tells you not only the quality of the beef you buy, but also the amount of meat you can expect to get from an individual carcass.

Most consumers are familiar with USDA's quality grades for beef. The shield-shaped grade mark is an excellent guide to the quality of the beef you buy.

If you want tender, juicy, flavorful meat, it is best to freeze only high-quality beef. This is why U.S. Choice, the most popular grade of beef, is also widely used in home freezing.

In addition to grading for quality, C&MS also grades beef for yield. The yield grades, which are used mainly by packers and suppliers, measure the amount of usable meat in a carcass or wholesale cut. There are five numerical grades ranging from yield grade 1, which marks carcasses of the highest yield, to number 5, found on carcasses of the lowest yield.

Under ordinary circumstances, as consumers, you do not have to be concerned with yield grades. Their benefit, unlike the quality grades, reaches you indirectly through their use as a pricing tool. But if you buy beef in carcass or wholesale form, yield grades can help you get more beef for your money.

The higher-yield carcasses may cost a little more, but there will be more usable meat--meatier cuts -- in a No. 1 or No. 2 carcass than in No. 5 of the same quality grade.

For example, if you buy 650 pound carcass, each higher yield grade will give you at least 20 more pounds of boneless meat. There are similar differences between wholesale cuts and quarters of beef.

If you plan to buy part of a carcass, you should decide whether you want to get more steaks and roasts or more stewing and ground meat. A hindquarter gives you more steaks -- porterhouse, club, and T-bone -- and oven roasts. The forequarter will contain more cuts, such as those from the chuck, which must be pot roasted or made into ground and stew meat.

Another factor to consider is cost. Because they contain more desirable cuts, hindquarters generally cost several cents per pound more than forequarters of the same grade.

As a prospective buyer, you should also consider the cutting and processing of the meat. Make sure the meat is packaged in portions which fit the size of your family or which will be easy to cook. Most dealers will cut the meat to suit your needs.

Supermarket specials on particular cuts also offer a good way to stock your freezer with the family's favorites. Buying meat this way assures you of getting only the cuts you prefer.

Home freezers are designed to save money on grocery bills by allowing you to stock up on foods when supplies are plentiful and prices favorable. But buying beef in such cuts or of such quality that do not meet your family's preference can hardly be called money-saving.

This is a pitfall which a consumer encounters when he buys beef in a form with which he is unfamiliar. In addition there may be hidden dangers -- disreputable dealers -- which make the buying difficult.

The majority of firms are reputable in their dealings with customers and in their advertising. However, there are some who will take advantage of a customer who lacks a knowledge of the product he is buying.

Misrepresentation and "bait and switch" advertising are two of the most common practices the buyer must watch. Misrepresentation may include leading the buyer to believe he is buying a specific USDA grade, while, in fact, supplying him with meat from a lower grade animal or meat which has not been graded at all. Or, the buyer might receive meat from the forequarter instead of the hindquarter he thought he was buying.

"Bait and switch" advertising refers to the practice of advertising meat at a price designed to attract customers and then switching the customer to a higher priced meat.

Don't be taken in by advertising which offers "something for nothing." No dealer can afford to give beef away, and reputable ones will not pretend to do so.

To be sure, look for the Federal grade mark on the meat itself. The grade mark is your assurance that the beef will be the quality you want, and that you are getting real value for the price you pay.

Ground Lamb Blends Well With Carrots

Take a pound and a half of ground lamb and mix with grated carrots and a few other ingredients. Result? Some meat patties which offer about as economical a main dish as can be found.

This is a quick dish to prepare on days when there's a rush. Not only is the mixing time quick, says Reba Staggs, meat expert, but so is broiling time with six to eight minutes on each side.

Lamb Thriftie

- 1½ pounds ground lamb
- 1 cup grated raw carrots
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons grated onion

Combine all ingredients and shape into patties. Set regulato for broiling. Place patties on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so the tops of the patties are 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil 5 to 7 minutes on each side. 6 servings.

Jamestowners' Ships

The Susan Constant, Good speed and Discovery were the names of the three ships that brought the original 105 pioneers to Jamestown, the first permanent settlement of American shores.

Buying Beef For Your Home Freezer

If you own a home freezer, chances are you've thought about stocking it with beef. Whether you plan to buy several cuts, a quarter, or a whole carcass, there are several factors to consider if you want to be sure of getting the best buy for your money.

One way to be sure is to let the U.S. Department of Agriculture help. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service offers a grading program which tells you not only the quality of the beef you buy, but also the amount of meat you can expect to get from an individual carcass.

Most consumers are familiar with USDA's quality grades for beef. The shield-shaped grade mark is an excellent guide to the quality of the beef you buy.

If you want tender, juicy, flavorful meat, it is best to freeze only high-quality beef. This is why U.S. Choice, the most popular grade of beef, is also widely used in home freezing.

In addition to grading for quality, C&MS also grades beef for yield. The yield grades, which are used mainly by packers and suppliers, measure the amount of usable meat in a carcass or wholesale cut. There are five numerical grades ranging from yield grade 1, which marks carcasses of the highest yield, to number 5, found on carcasses of the lowest yield.

Under ordinary circumstances, as consumers, you do not have to be concerned with yield grades. Their benefit, unlike the quality grades, reaches you indirectly through their use as a pricing tool. But if you buy beef in carcass or wholesale form, yield grades can help you get more beef for your money.

The higher-yield carcasses may cost a little more, but there will be more usable meat--meatier cuts -- in a No. 1 or No. 2 carcass than in No. 5 of the same quality grade.

For example, if you buy 650 pound carcass, each higher yield grade will give you at least 20 more pounds of boneless meat. There are similar differences between wholesale cuts and quarters of beef.

If you plan to buy part of a carcass, you should decide whether you want to get more steaks and roasts or more stewing and ground meat. A hindquarter gives you more steaks -- porterhouse, club, and T-bone -- and oven roasts. The forequarter will contain more cuts, such as those from the chuck, which must be pot roasted or made into ground and stew meat.

Another factor to consider is cost. Because they contain more desirable cuts, hindquarters generally cost several cents per pound more than forequarters of the same grade.

As a prospective buyer, you should also consider the cutting and processing of the meat. Make sure the meat is packaged in portions which fit the size of your family or which will be easy to cook. Most dealers will cut the meat to suit your needs.

Supermarket specials on particular cuts also offer a good way to stock your freezer with the family's favorites. Buying meat this way assures you of getting only the cuts you prefer.

Home freezers are designed to save money on grocery bills by allowing you to stock up on foods when supplies are plentiful and prices favorable.

But buying beef in such cuts or of such quality that do not meet your family's preference can hardly be called money-saving.

This is a pitfall which a consumer encounters when he buys beef in a form with which he is unfamiliar. In addition there may be hidden dangers -- disreputable dealers -- which make the buying difficult.

The majority of firms are reputable in their dealings with customers and in their advertising. However, there are some who will take advantage of a customer who lacks a knowledge of the product he is buying.

Misrepresentation and "bait and switch" advertising are two of the most common practices the buyer must watch. Misrepresentation may include leading the buyer to believe he is buying a specific USDA grade, while, in fact, supplying him with meat from a lower grade animal or meat which has not been graded at all. Or, the buyer might receive meat from the forequarter instead of the hindquarter he thought he was buying.

"Bait and switch" advertising refers to the practice of advertising meat at a price designed to attract customers and then switching the customer to a higher priced meat.

Don't be taken in by advertising which offers "something for nothing." No dealer can afford to give beef away, and reputable ones will not pretend to do so.

To be sure, look for the Federal grade mark on the meat itself. The grade mark is your assurance that the beef will be the quality you want, and that you are getting real value for the price you pay.

Ground Lamb Blends Well With Carrots

Take a pound and a half of ground lamb and mix with grated carrots and a few other ingredients. Result? Some meat patties which offer about as economical a main dish as can be found.

This is a quick dish to prepare on days when there's a rush. Not only is the mixing time quick, says Reba Staggs, meat expert, but so is broiling time with six to eight minutes on each side.

Lamb Thrifties

1½ pounds ground lamb
1 cup grated raw carrots
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons grated onion

Combine all ingredients and shape into patties. Set regulator for broiling. Place patties on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so the tops of the patties are 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil 5 to 7 minutes on each side. 6 servings.

Jamestowners' Ships

The Susan Constant, Good speed and Discovery were the names of the three ships that brought the original 105 pioneers to Jamestown, the first permanent settlement of American shores.

Inviting Attack

By
Congressmen
Craig Hosmer,
California

Up to 149 million American lives can be lost, according to testimony in House Armed Services files, unless surprise nuclear attack upon the United States is deterred.

With a national population of 195 million people, this means you have a 76.4% chance of being one of those fatalities.

That is precisely the stake--your life--you have on a bet that the President and the Secretary of Defense know what they are doing and are correctly answering the questions: "What does it take to deter the Soviets?" and " Will we have it after the cutbacks are made?"

The "cut backs" are those involved in the reported plans of the President and the Secretary of Defense to materially reduce the strategic megatonnage of the United States.

They have announced 425 manned bombers will be scraped. At an average payload of 40 MT per aircraft, 17,000 megatons of nuclear firepower will be eliminated, to reduce by 59 5% our present capacity to retaliate.

To partially offset this reduction, they plan, by 1971, to add 210 new bombers and 360 new missiles to the strategic forces. If these carry the same average payloads as existing weapons, the 17,000 megaton reduction will be offset by a total of 8,760 megatons by 1971.

On this basis the new, 1971, level of our strategic megatonnage will be 71% of what it is today.

Note, with extreme caution, this calculation generously assumes the yet undesigned replacement bombers will actually carry the same average payloads as existing weapons. They are to be the FB111, a variant of the TFX fighter aircraft still under development.

Retired SAC Commander, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, says of the FB111. "this will be inadequate to do the job for several reasons . . . insufficient ranges, insufficient size. It is just not big enough."

The Secretary of Defense estimated earlier this year that the present superiority of United States strategic forces over the Soviet Union's exceeds 3 or 4 to 1."

Thus, at its most generous interpretation, the proposed cutback will reduce this ratio to something around 2 or 3 to 1.

If General LeMay is correct and the FB111 proves inadequate and its megatonnage unavailable, the ratio will slip to between 1.25 and 1.66 to 1.

It is clear that the President and the Secretary of Defense still see a need for U.S. strategic retaliatory forces to deter Soviet surprise attack. Otherwise they would simply eliminate them rather than reduce them.

Marxist-Leninist dogma compels Soviet leaders to carry forward a program of world domination. It charges them, further, to carry it forward with maximum haste, utilizing the highest degree of force which can be employed without provoking retaliatory action that would impose unacceptable damage on the communist homeland and base of power. If they do not do so, they are guilty of the communist "sin" of "deviation" from dogma.

The principal -- perhaps the only -- reason for U. S. Strategic forces is to have the capability to impose unacceptable damage on the communist homeland which, in fact, deters communist leaders from a dogmatic decision to strike us to expedite the program of world domination. Our strategic forces are now realistically based on an understanding of this communist doctrine and are in sensible response to it.

Because our strategic nuclear striking forces are superior to those of the Soviets, they provide an effective major war deterrent that guards not only our country but the free world. The United States is a roadblock to communist domination.

Without this major war deterrent, we would never have been able to encircle Russia with military bases, fight a limited war in Korea, provide an effective airlift to Berlin when the Reds cut off access to that city, maintain our troops in Europe, blockade Cuba, help the Chinese Nationalists at Quemoy and act effectively in the Vietnam situation. The Soviets did not intervene because of the supremacy in strategic nuclear striking power of the United States. That was, and is, the only reason. Weaken or destroy that supremacy and what is there to prevent the Soviets from having a free hand everywhere?

Plans to reduce the strategic forces of the United States by the elimination of hundreds of nuclear bomb-carrying aircraft have set Kremlin computers whirling.

If it is determined that, at a certain point, the cutbacks in our strategic retaliatory capability will weaken us so that we cannot hurt them to the point of unacceptability, then communist doctrine requires Soviet leaders to launch, at that point, and explosive attack against us to remove the United States as a roadblock to communist domination.

The Soviets tend to accept rather large damage factors before they classify them as unacceptable. In World War II they readily accepted 25 million human fatalities and the destruction of 40% of their industrial capacity without considering the combined loss "unacceptable" damage.

The President has never claimed expertise in the area of assessing strategic force capabilities and vulnerabilities. And the judgment and advice of the Secretary of State is no more infallible now than in the past, when his judgment has at times proved fallible.

It has not been revealed how our President and the Secretary of Defense arrived at the conclusion that the proposed cutbacks will not trigger a Soviet surprise Sunday punch. Far better assurances are needed than have been given that they proceed with wisdom.

The United States is a government "of, by and for" the people. It is not, supposedly, a dictatorship. We Americans have a right to know the facts and participate in decisions which control our national and individual survival.

There is a right to know the answers to the many questions posed by the proposed cutbacks so that their validity can be checked and rechecked.

Unless necessary information is furnished so that independent judgements can be made, the only safe assumption is that the projected lowering of present United States strategic capabilities is deadly risky business, to be opposed vigorously.

The joy of the Lord is your strength. —(Neh 8:10)

As we approach our senior years, we should continue to enjoy the breath in us that God has given, and to live happily and joyously. We too are children of God, and when our minds are filled with the thought of happy life is for living then we refuse to give way to negative opinions or appearances. Through prayer we keep in tune with the healing power of God.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Every day my husband grabs the newspaper before I do. He reads only two things -- the sports page and your column. This takes about 15 minutes.

But he doesn't hand the paper over when he has finished reading it. No siree. He spends another 15 minutes drawing moustaches on all the pictures -- then he puts pipes in all the mouths. It makes me boil to have to reach a paper after he has marked it up.

Just once I'd like to see what you look like without a moustache and a pipe, Ann. Say something to the big nut. -- H.L.A.

Dear H.L.A.: I have nothing to say to him but I DO have something to say to you: Order a second subscription. Enjoy the paper with your coffee and let him decorate his foolish head off.

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago an Army buddy of my husband's telephoned to say he is now a patient in the veteran's hospital 10 miles from here. He said he had a weekend pass and asked if he could come to our house. I agree, thinking it would be a pleasant treat.

Well, it has been a series of drunken orgies every weekend since January. I told my husband that I cannot stand it anymore and he said, "Shut up. This is my house, too."

Our three children are ashamed to have guests over and I am a nervous wreck. Last weekend the men got so bombed they couldn't make the stairs. I heard them falling down and getting up all night long. This morning I found them asleep on the floor.

My husband used to enjoy a few quiet beers but he never got drunk until this friend showed up. Please tell me what to do. -- LOST WEEKENDS

Dear Lost: Go to the director of the veteran's hospital. Ask to speak to the doctor in charge of your husband's friend. Describe the weekends.

When the patient is restricted to the hospital (as he surely will be) everyone will be a lot better off.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter who is a senior in college became engaged to a young sailor. Harvey is assigned to a ship at a nearby naval base.

When Harvey is in port, he sleeps on a cot in the basement and keeps his civilian clothes in our closet. I like Harvey but I don't think he ought to be sleeping here weekends and cluttering up our closets with his clothes.

My wife, daughter and I have been having some bitter arguments over this. We all read your column and think you are a fair - minded person. Please settle it. -- RICHIE

Dear Rich: You are bucking the strongest union in the world -- a wife and daughter.

I assume Harvey is sleeping on that cot -- by himself. Since he is going to be a member of the family soon, I say it's OK to let him spend occasional weekends at your home and save the cost of a hotel room.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.
